PRESIDENT WON'T DENOUNCE TREATIES; DEFIES CONGRESS

SEES GOOD FAITH INVOLVED

CITES PRECEDENT OF HAYES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Wilson has declined to carry out the mandate of Congress given in the Jones Merchant Marine act of June 5, 1920, which authorized and directed him to notify foreign Governments within ninety days that this country elected to terminate every treaty provision that restricted the right of the United States Government to impose discriminatory tonnage dues and discriminatory customs duties on imports.

In refusing to carry out this particular provision of the law the President denies that Congress has any power under the Federal Constitution to issue such directions to the President. Under the terms of the Jones act the President was directed to serve this notice of termination of treaty clauses upon foreign nations not later than Sept. 5, 1920. No such notice was served, even informally, by that date, and no notification has since been given by the President, for the stated reason that the President does not intend to be bound by the directions contained in Section 34 of the Jones act.

Other Sections Not Affected.

In announcing the decision of the President late this afternoon Secretary of State Colby declared that the fact that Section 34 of the law involved elements of illegality rendering that particular section inoperative need not affect the validity and operation of the Jones law as a whole, which is regarded by the President as containing a great many "sound and enlightened provisions."

Ordinarily the announcement of the President's decision would not have been given in a press statement in advance of the communication by the President of his views to Congress. But, since Congress will not meet in regular session until December, and it has been generally understood since Sept. 5 that the notice required by the Jones act had not been actually communicated to foreign nations, it was deemed proper to make formal announcement through the press of the President's final decision in the matter.

State Department officials regard President Wilson's act as one of his greatest. Secretary Colby's announcement emphasized this when it declared that if the President had pursued the course directed by Congress it would have been "wholly irreconcilable with the historical respect which the United States has shown for its international engagements and would falsify every profession of our belief in the binding force and the reciprocal obligation of treaties in general."

The giving of the notification to foreign nations which the Jones law contemplated would undoubtedly have confronted the American Government, and especially its diplomats, with a very difficult and complex situation. A careful study of treaties in force between this and foreign Governments, made by the State Department in its study of Section 34 of the Jones law, showed that practically the whole body of the important treaties to which the United States was a party would have been affected by any attempt of this Government to terminate the particular provisions which Congress desires to wipe out of American treaty obligations.

It was pointed out today that at the present juncture of world affairs it would be difficult for the United States, in the absence of such action as President Wilson has just taken respecting Section 34 of the Jones act, to exert the same influence and enjoy the same prestige as it has in its stand for the sacredness of treaty obligations.

Text of Colby's Announcement.

The Department of State has been informed by the President that he does not deem the direction contained in Section 34 of the so-called Merchant Marine Act an exercise of any Constitutional power possessed by the Congress.

Under the provisions of the section referred to, the President was directed within ninety days after the act became law to notify the several Governments with whom the United States had entered into commercial treaties that this country elected to terminate so much of said treaties as restricted the right of the United States to impose discriminating customs duties on imports and discriminatory tonnage dues, according as the carrier vessels were domestic or foreign, quite regardless of the fact that these restrictions are mutual, operating equally upon the other Governments which are parties to the treaties, and quite

West Virginia Strike Threat If Troops Are Kept There

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 24.—A general strike, involving 126,000 organized workers of West Virginia, will be called "if Federal troops are to be used as a strike-breaking agency instead of for the protection of the constitutional rights of citizens of State and nation," said C. F. Keeney, President of District No. 17, United Mine Workers of America, in a statement issued here tonight.

Mr. Keeney added that "before this drastic action is taken, however, the associations of coal miners in Northern and Southern West Virginia will be requested to use their influence to have Federal soldiers removed from the State in order that tranquillity may prevail."

Federal troops have been in the West Virginia fields for several weeks, sent by State request to prevent rioting.

FIGHT AT McGRAW'S HOME

Wilton Lackaye, the actor, and a member of the Lambs, was removed to a hospital in this city last night with a Potts fracture of the left ankle and minor injuries, suffered, he said, when he was attacked by John J. McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants, in the latter's apartment, 301 West 109th Street.

The encounter took place last Saturday night, when McGraw invited him to visit him at the McGraw apartment, the actor declared. He visited McGraw in the capacity of an old friend come to cheer up a man who was reported as downhearted through the loss of his friends at the Lambs, Mr. Lackaye said. The statement was made shortly before the actor was ordered to the hospital by Dr. Benjamin Farrell of 40 East Fortieth Street, his physician.

At midnight last night McGraw made public a statement in which he charged that Mr. Lackaye was under the influence of liquor when he called at the McGraw apartment on last Saturday midnight. It was at Mrs. McGraw's request, said Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, Treasurer and part owner of the Giants, that Mr. Lackaye was requested to leave. On his way out he kicked B. G. Pratt of Chicago, who is visiting McGraw, and was knocked down in the scuffle that followed, said the Magistrate. Mr. Lackaye went down in the elevator, met a friend outside the building, and both got into a taxicab and drove away, the Magistrate said.

"You have Mr. McGraw's signed statement, but I wish to add that I have never heard more abusive and indecent language than that used by Mr. Lackaye when he called at this apartment," Magistrate McQuade added. "Mrs. McGraw finally came into the room and said, 'I want that man put out.' The door was opened and Mr. Lackaye passed out. Clarence McCormick, a broker; B. G. Pratt and I were between Mr. Lackaye and Mr. McGraw when the former aimed a kick, which struck Mr. Pratt."

McGraw's statement, which he signed, follows:

About midnight Saturday, Sept. 18, 1920, Mr. Lackaye of his own volition called at my apartment under the influence of liquor and was reinforced by a bottle of gin which I later returned to him unopened.

After some little talk Lackaye said that he understood I was about to make a statement against the Lambs Club. I replied that if I did it was my own affair. In reply to this he became very abusive, using violent and indecent language. I remonstrated with him, telling him Mrs. McGraw was in hearing and insisted upon his leaving my home. He refused, whereupon two of my guests escorted him to the door. After he got outside the door he kicked one of my guests and in the scuffle that followed slipped to the floor. I did not see anything that happened outside the premises, and I did not strike Mr. Lackaye at any time. JOHN J. McGRAW.

Mr. Lackaye wanted to make the affair public before going to the hospital, a friend said, but he would not state whether he contemplated legal proceedings against McGraw. The same friend said last night that Mr. Lackaye planned to call newspapermen to the hospital today or tomorrow for the purpose of making an additional statement.

Condition Not Serious.

His condition was not considered serious last night, his removal to the hospital indicating that his physician wished hospital facilities in reducing the fracture, it was learned. Mr. Lackaye was under Dr. Farrell's care since last Sunday morning at his apartment, 33 West Forty-fourth Street, where he resides with his son, Wilton, Jr.

Dr. Farrell, beyond stating that his patient had been removed to "a hospital," suffering from a Potts fracture, would not comment further. A nurse who answered the doorbell at the actor's apartment said she had been told not to make public the name of the hospital to which the actor had been taken. The name of the institution appeared to be a closely guarded secret last night.

CHARGES COX GOT HIDDEN AID IN 1918 FROM AIRPLANE MEN

SUMMONS SENT TO BANKER

Col. Deeds Named as a Giver—Democratic Control of Stars and Stripes Asserted.

PROPAGANDA TO EMPLOYES

Testimony on Corporation Aid to Republicans—Palmer Men Defend Trip.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—George R. Lockwood, editor of The National Republican of Washington, following a sharp cross-examination by Senator Reed, raised the question at today's session of the Senate committee investigating campaign funds, of a check for $5,075 deposited in June, 1918, in the City National Bank of Dayton, Ohio, by the Dayton Metal Products Company to pay a note for that amount held there in the name of Governor Cox.

"The effort was to make it appear," said Mr. Lockwood, "that this was an obligation that Mr. Cox had entered into with the City National Bank of Dayton, some time before, but it appears to me, from all the surrounding circumstances, that it must have been a contribution from this corporation to Mr. Cox's campaign fund, because I do not believe that this corporation would have been permitted by Governor Cox to give him this gratuity on any other ground."

In answer to questions by Senator Reed, Mr. Lockwood admitted that his evidence was hearsay, whereupon Senator Reed remarked that, in his opinion, the time had arrived when the committee should "get out of the realm of deduction and into the realm of fact."

Senator Reed refused to let the matter rest there and insisted that the committee, despite the fact that it has no authority to inquire into the conduct of Governor Cox's 1918 Gubernatorial campaign, look into this matter, Chairman Kenyon ordered H. E. Talbott, President of the City National Bank, of Dayton, to come to Washington at once and bring with him cancelled check No. 12341, issued by Dayton Metal Products Company, which is the check referred to by Mr. Lockwood. In the event that the committee is unable to hear Mr. Lockwood tomorrow, it was said that a subcommittee would probably go to Dayton next week to examine him.

It was also brought out in Mr. Lockwood's testimony that many large corporations have placed annual subscriptions for hundreds of their employes with The National Republican, and that the paper is sent to these persons as being the gift of the "Republican organization."

Another assertion was that the controlling stock in the service publication, known as Stars and Stripes, published in Washington, is held by Mrs. E. M. Parks, who, it was stated, is a secretary, employed in the office of W. D. Jamieson, Finance Director of the Democratic National Committee.

Lockwood States Charges.

The formal charges in regard to Governor Cox, made to the committee by Mr. Lockwood, of which charges Senator Reed asserted he would demand proof by Mr. Lockwood or those named by him, are in Mr. Lockwood's own words as follows:

"The Dayton Metal Products Company, Dayton, Ohio, the holding company for aircraft concerns enjoying large war contracts, on June 29, 1918, gave a check for $5,075 (check No. 12341) in ostensible payment of the personal note of James M. Cox for $5,000 with three months' interest. This note is in the possession of the Dayton Metal Products Company, canceled, with no explanation of the payment or evidence that Mr. Cox had performed any service in return therefor.

"An examination of the circumstances would seem to indicate that this was a campaign contribution of the corporation to the Cox campaign; indeed, that is the most charitable explanation of the transaction. There was no reason why Mr. Cox should raise money by giving an unindorsed personal note, and no reason apparent why the corporation should have paid the personal note of the then Governor of Ohio without visible return of service.

"The President of the Dayton Metal Products Company was also President of the City National Bank of Dayton, to which the note was given. The name of the President of the City National Bank of Dayton and of the Dayton Metal Products Company is H. E. Talbott, Dayton, Ohio.

"From all the circumstances a corporation contribution to Governor Cox's campaign fund is indicated. The facts can be developed by calling Mr. Talbott, with a request for the bank and Metal Products Company records mentioned.

Says $21,000 Was Given in 1916.

"Second—The Dayton Metal Products Company contributed checks aggregating $21,000 to a Cox campaign fund raised by Adam Schantz, a Dayton brewer, aggregating $37,000 for use in Cincinnati and Ohio River counties, in the campaign of 1916. It was claimed that these sums, paid in corporation checks, were charged to three stock-

$75,000 HORSE RACE FOR TWO CHAMPIONS

TO BE AT WINDSOR OCT. 12

Ten Furlongs Agreed Upon, and Kilmer, Urging Longer Test, Won't Start Exterminator.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 24.—At a meeting held here this afternoon arrangements were finally completed for the much talked of match race between Samuel D. Riddle's Man o' War, champion of the three-year-olds, and Commander J. K. L. Ross's four-year-old, Sir Barton, the leader of the older division of horses. These owners agreed to a race at a mile and a quarter to be run at the Kenilworth track, Windsor, Ontario, on Tuesday, October 12 for a purse of $75,000 offered by A. M. Orpen, owner of the track, and to which has been added a cup valued at $5,000. The winner will take the entire purse. The $75,000 will be paid in American money. At the present rate of exchange the Canadian track owner must pay the winner about $83,000 in Canadian money.

The purse of $75,000 is the largest ever offered here or in Canada for a match race, and there is no record of a greater prize having ever been offered anywhere for a similar test, though the gross value of some accumulative stakes like the Futurity has been greater in one or two instances.

There have been a few memorable match races in American turf history, the most notable of which were the meetings between Ten Broeck and Mollie McCarthy, Domino and Henry of Navarre, Salvator and Tenny, Ethelbert and Jean Beraud and Hourless and Omar Khayyam. Domino, greatest money winner of the American turf, ran a dead heat with Henry of Navarre at Gravesend on Sept. 15, 1894. Salvator defeated Tenny by a very slight margin in a match race at Sheepshead Bay on June 25, 1890. In 1917 Major August Belmont's Hourless and Wilfred Viau's Omar Khayyam met at Laurel, Md., and Hourless was returned the winner.

The horses are to meet at scale weight for age, which means that Man o' War will carry 120 pounds and Sir Barton 126 pounds. In the agreement drawn up here today it was agreed that the race should be run rain or shine. In the event that one of the horses is unable to start the other will be awarded the cup after covering the distance, though the purse will be withheld.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of Exterminator, one of the greatest distance horses this country has had in several years, was a party to the conference as it had been hoped to make this a three horse race. Mr. Kilmer, however, held out for a race at a mile and a half and wanted it to be made a handicap. The longer distance, he felt, would better suit his gelding and he desired to have the weights assigned by W. S. Vosburgh, the official handicapper of the Jockey Club. As the other owners would not agree to these conditions Mr. Kilmer declined to start Exterminator.

There would have been much interest in the three-cornered race, but the chief fervor among turf followers has been for a race between Man o' War and Sir Barton, admittedly the two greatest horses in the country today. The race should be one of the greatest turf events ever held in North America, and it will certainly be one that will long be talked of.

Turf followers are generally pleased that the race is to be at weight for age,

LOWER PRICES OR UNEMPLOYMENT, SAYS ROSENWALD

Buying Must Be Stimulated to Normal, Asserts Head of Mail-Order House.

TO KEEP FACTORIES GOING

CUTS BY MARSHALL FIELD

Manufacturers Ask Workers to Reduce the Cost of Clothing by Speeding Up Production.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—"I am not by nature a pessimist and for that reason I am loath to predict hard times. Nevertheless it may be that we may be compelled to go through a period of readjustment which will mean losses on accumulated stocks of merchandise and more or less loss of time for the working classes," said Julius Rosenwald, President of the great mail order house of Sears, Roebuck & Co., discussing today with a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES the significance of the announced reduction in prices of various staple articles of merchandise dealt in by his and kindred establishments.

Mr. Rosenwald for the first time disclosed the character of some of the articles on which Sears, Roebuck & Co. have made price recessions. At the same time he stated that from a variety of causes sales have declined during the last few months, with a consequent accumulation of stocks. "Many of these lines," said Mr. Rosenwald, "can be replaced today at much lower prices. Therefore, we have made drastic reductions in the price of a number of articles of which the following are examples.

"Standard percale, which was 40 cents a yard, we are now offering at 19 cents; silk taffeta, which was $2.57 a yard, is now $1.48; sheeting 27 cents, now 15; muslin 35 cents, now 15; flannel, 43 cents, now 29; gingham, 39 cents, now 23; overalls, formerly priced at $2.50, are now $1.48; women's shoes, which were $4.98, are now $3.98; Ford size automobile tires, were $18.10, are now priced at $13.45.

Loss to be Considered.

"While these reductions will result in a considerable loss," commented Mr. Rosenwald, "it has always been our policy to reduce prices and refund the difference whenever the market values decline after our catalogue is printed. We are now vountarily refunding to an average of 20,000 customers daily. We note concessions in every line with the probable exception of hardware. Unless prices generally are reduced sufficiently to stimulate buying to the normal the inevitable result will be the closing of factories and consequent unemployment.

"It seems to me that this is the necessary result of the rapid increase in prices due to various causes—the war, of course, extravagance of the people due to inflation in wages, and an exceptional demand for our products at home and abroad, which has ceased now, since the foreign demand has slackened and all forms of necessary expenditure have caught up with increased earnings.

"For instance, a great many people who were fortunate in possessing long term leases have only just commenced to feel the burden of greatly increased rents, and the same is true of those people who had the luck or the foresight to be well stocked with articles of clothing—they are just beginning to feel the pinch of high prices.

"People now find it necessary to restrict themselves in purchases, not alone of luxuries but of many articles that are considered necessities. Consequently, the demand for all kinds of goods has greatly diminished during the last several months. This recession in demand became noticeable about the

Lloyd George Averts Coal Strike for a Week And Men and Employers Will Confer Again

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The coal miners agreed this afternoon to suspend for one week the strike scheduled for Monday and to meet the coal mine owners in an endeavour to arrange with them a system of payment which would result in simultaneously increasing their earnings and the output of coal. Their decision was reached after a conference with Lloyd George, Bonar Law and Sir Robert Horne in Downing Street, and is believed in official circles to amount to a practical abandonment of the strike.

The coal mine owners, it is known, are anxious to have an agreement with the miners, and there is so much difference between the recent output of coal and the amount mined in normal times that it is considered there should be little difficulty in agreeing on a scale that will enable the miners to get the increased wages they desire. Suspension of the strike is recognized here as being a great victory for the Government. The miners have been forced to drop both their demands, first, the right to control the profits and prices of the industry, and, secondly, a wage rise on the ground of high cost of living, and they have been induced to accept the Government's contention that the output could be considerably increased if miners and mine owners would co-operate.

The miners gave way, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from a well-informed source, because they realized that obstinacy would jeopardize their own organization. A clear statement of the Government's position and a ruthless analysis of the miners' contentions by Sir Robert Horne and Lloyd George at a series of interviews had been published in all the newspapers and had created a division in the ranks of the miners themselves. Robert Smillie, it is now known, realized two or three days ago that an order to strike meant serious defections, and began to work hard to allay the trouble he himself had raised. He knew, too, that the railwaymen and transport workers, the other two partners in the triple alliance, would not give much more than moral support. J. H. Thomas and the moderate majority of the railroaders were absolutely against the extremist demand for a sympathetic strike, and the dockers' wing of the transport workers were equally opposed.

The preparations the Government has made to equip the country to face a period of industrial war still remain ready for instant use. What they are is a strict official secret, but they are known to be very complete. The first of them, an extension of Summer time for one month, to assist in the saving of coal, was, indeed, announced today, and it is believed that the knowledge of the miners that the Government was equipped for all emergencies has helped to induce them to avoid the struggle.

The passing of the immediate strike danger will, it is hoped in official circles, have a beneficial effect on Anglo-American exchange. The pound fell in New York so heavily in the few days during the crisis as to add a penny in every shilling to the cost of food here, and great relief will be felt if the better news causes a reaction.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 24.—A legislative inquiry into the cost of building materials is to be conducted by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, of which Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings is the head and which already has given several months to investigation of the housing situation. Its powers have been materially broadened for the task ahead of it by the extraordinary session and an additional appropriation of $25,000 provided to defray the expenses.

The broadened scope of the inquiry and the enlarged powers delegated to the Lockwood committee include the right "to fully investigate and ascertain housing conditions and causes for lack of construction of new houses, flats, tenement houses and apartments in the cities of the State and especially in the City of New York; the increases made in rents, and report fully the facts showing such lack of construction and accommodations and the extent of the increases in rents; to investigate and report whether or not the construction of such new buildings is in any way impeded or injuriously affected by the existence of one or more combinations, associations, agreements or understandings operating or transacting business within the State between manufacturers of and dealers in any of the materials or supplies that enter into the construction of buildings, or between individuals, groups or combinations of individuals, and to ascertain and report to what extent the decrease of such new building operations is due to withdrawal of loanable funds on mortgages on real property that were formerly available from corporations, associations, individuals, trustees or estates and the reasons therefor, and to ascertain and report fully the character of investments of such corporations, associations, individuals, trustees and estates, and the advantage, if any, to them of preferring other investments to bond and mortgages on real property; to examine into, ascertain, publicly disclose and fully report as to the practices and usages obtaining in businesses and trades concerned with the construction of dwelling structures and corporations, associations and groups of individuals dealing in or furnishing building supplies, materials and labor in the construction and repair of housing structures, and to include in its investigation and inquiry any other thing or matter, not specifically mentioned, deemed by said committee relevant or pertinent to the general question of providing housing accommodations for the people of the cities, and especially of the City of New York."

2,500 ICING PLANTS MOVE TO COMBINE

EMBRACES MEAT PACKERS

Project to be Submitted to Refrigerating Organizations for Approval.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 24.—Plans were formulated here today for the creation of the American Association of Ice and Refrigeration, which, it is expected, will embrace 2,500 corporations and firms.

The plan provides for the coalition of all the important ice and refrigeration interests in the country, creating one powerful federation of all the cold storage plants, refrigeration manufacturers, ice manufacturing establishments and engineering associations related thereto.

Taking part in the gathering which launched the movement were the National Ice Association of America, the New York State Cold Storage Association, the American Society of Refrigerating Engineers, the National Association of Ice Industries, the Refrigerating Machine Manufacturers, the National Association of Cold Storage Subdivision of the American Warehouse Men's Association, the American Association of Refrigeration and the Eastern Ice Manufacturers' Association.

The meeting was presided over by Frank A. Horn of New York, President of the American Association of Refrigeration.

The plan of federation is to be submitted to each of the several bodies for consideration and approval. Each body joining the federation would retain its identity. Ultimately, it was announced, it is hoped to bring into affiliated membership the fish industry, the Amalgamated Perishable Products Interests, ice cream manufacturers, the meat packers and all other inustries employing refrigeration upon a large scale.

'SAME OLD REBELS,' HILLQUIT BOASTS

Will Fight Till Working Class Controls Government, Cries Socialist.

DENIES "REFORM" OF PARTY

Affirms Internationalism—Denounces the War and "Rotten" Capitalism.

Morris Hillquit, Socialist leader, in a speech at Yorkville Casino, 210 East Eighty-sixth Street, last night declared that in the face of the second Albany ouster the Socialists justly were defiant and that they did not change their Constitution to suit "the capitalist gang at Albany or any other capitalist gang." He said the campaign would be waged in the spirit of revolutionary Socialism and would be kept up until "class conscious revolutionary Socialists will have possession of this country and make it a place fit for free men and women to live in."

"We have not changed," said Mr. Hillquit, in discussing the expulsion of the three Socialist Assemblymen and the resignation of two others. "We are the same old rebels. We are the same revolutionary Socialists we have always been."

The speech was made at a dinner given to celebrate the return of the five Socialist Assemblymen from Albany. It opened the State campaign of the Socialists and also signalized the return to active political life of Mr. Hillquit, whose health for several years prevented him from taking direct part in the Socialists movement.

Besides Mr. Hillquit the speakers included the five ex-Assemblymen, August Claessens, Louis Waldman, Charles Solomon, Samuel De Witt and Samuel Orr; Charles W. Ervin, editor of The New York Call; Theresa Malkiel, Algernon Lee, Abraham Cahan, B. Charney Vladeck and Norman Thomas. Joseph D. Cannon, Socialist candidate for Governor, was Chairman.

Cheer "Movie" of Debs.

The reception accorded to Mr. Hillquit was equalled only by that which greeted motion pictures of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for President, who was shown in his prison suit at the Federal Prison at Atlanta.

Mr. Hillquit opened his address by saying that Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet should be congratulated for refusing to sit with the three Assemblymen, Claessens, Waldman and Solomon, and that Orr and De Witt should be congratulated for refusing to sit in the Assembly with Sweet.

Had the Socialists remained in the Assembly they would not have been able to accomplish one one-thousandth part of what they would accomplish by their absence, Mr. Hillquit said. Taking up the allegations of some editors that the Socialists should have been allowed to remain because they "surrendered" by rewriting their constitution and the assertions of others that they were still defiant, together with the charges of the Communists that they were submissive, Mr. Hillquit said it was only fair to make the position of the Socialists clear before another campaign was begun.

He said the Socialists in Albany did not plead reform. "They were defiant, and justly so," he added. "For, comrades, we never changed a particle of our constitution in order to make our-

HYLAN MEASURES LOST

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 24.—The extraordinary session of the Legislature, called by Governor Smith to adopt measures for relief of the housing evils in New York and other cities of the State, adjourned tonight after ordering a legislative investigation of the building materials situation, calling on the Federal Trade Commission and Congress to take steps toward stimulating investment and in the erection of dwelling houses, and the passage of a score of measures directly affecting the relations of landlord and tenant.

The housing relief measures presented by Mayor Hylan as well as his municipal bus bill were lost. The Legislature adopted a bill providing for rebates in cities outside of New York City where the Public Service Commission decides increased telephone rates made effective Sept. 1 last are unfair. The bill appropriating $3,000,000 for a hospital for the State's mentally disabled World War veterans was also passed.

The bill which would have rendered incomes from interest on building mortgages exempt from the State income tax, if not in excess of $40,000, failed of passage because of opposition in the Assembly. The Senate passed the bill without a murmur. Many economists and tax and realty experts at the public hearing on the bill yesterday asserted that it would bring no real relief, but would upset the fiscal system and be subversive generally of sound principles of taxation.

Little Done Toward New Construction.

In the way of direct legislation nothing, or next to nothing, has been done by the extraordinary session to stimulate new construction, declared to be the most vital need, if the housing problem is to be solved. What has been done is embraced in three concurrent resolutions in addition to the one ordering the Lockwood committee inquiry into the building materials situation. One of these calls for an investigation of building materials prices by the Federal Trade Commission. Another calls upon Congress to investigate and provide Federal measures of relief with regard to the procuring of building materials. A third resolution asks for priority in transportation for building materials, next after foodstuffs and coal.

The score or more measures more or less directly related to housing enacted undoubtedly will be signed by Governor Smith. The majority of these were of an emergency character directed at unfair practices by landlords in New York and other large cities.

The housing and municipal bus bills introduced on behalf of Mayor Hylan were adopted by the Senate but were defeated in the Assembly. John B. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel; Frank Mann, Tenement House Commissioner, and David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, were much in evidence in the legislative precincts while the Hylan measures were being considered. All three were lobbying on the floor of the Senate while the debate was on in the House.

Following the passage yesterday of half a dozen housing measures that were non-controversial in character, the Senate and Assembly, at their final sessions today, took up the more essential bills which had been discussed at yesterday's hearings. The legislative leaders, in joint session with members of the Housing Committee, representatives of Mayor Hylan and of the real estate interests, had spent the better part of the night hours in whipping these bills into shape for final passage.

Suspends Summary Ejectments.

A new measure was introduced today and rushed through to final passage under which, for a period of two years until Nov. 1, 1922, summary proceedings in rejectment cases before the Supreme Court, and city and county courts, will be suspended. The measure will make uniform the practice in dispossess cases in these higher courts and the municipal courts.

Under the law as it stands, the landlord, failing to recover possession of his property through action in the municipal court owing to the temporary provisions for the protection of tenants enacted at the regular session last Spring and at this extraordinary session, may attain his object much more readily by action in the Supreme Court where all he has to prove is ownership of the property and the absence of any contract or agreemnt for its continued occupation by the tenant. Such proof being produced, the court had, no discretion but to order the tenant to vacate within twenty days.

Under the bill passed today, the Supreme Court will have no jurisdiction in actions brought to recover possession of property except where proof has been produced that the tenant is objectionable, where the owner, a natural person, not a corporation, desires to recover possession of the premises in order to occuy them himself or where it is sought to demolish the building for the erection of a new building. In such event, however, not only must the plans have been filed and approved by proper authority but assurances must be given to the court that work is to begin within sixty days.

Representatives of real estate interests complained bitterly over this legislation, which they declared would make it possible for tenants to continue in possession of premises they now occupy indefinitely without any relief for the landlord. They declared they would take steps to have the constitutionality of the measure tested as soon as it became law, on the ground that it takes away property without due process of law.

To meet the situation arising out of the wholesale service in New York City of dispossess notices for Oct. 1, the Senate and Assembly passed tonight a Housing Committee bill which would make it impossible for a landlord to dispossess a holdover tenant except on one of the three grounds stated above. This bill when signed by the Governor will, according to Senator Lockwood, render wholly ineffectual all notices requiring tenants to move on Oct. 1. The bill does not apply to buildings in course of construction or begun after it becomes law.

25 Per Cent. Increase Stricken Out.

An important action by the extraordinary session was the striking out from the law enacted at the regular session of the clause which would make a 25 per cent. increase in rent during the twelve months preceding its enactment "fair and reasonable" in the absence of proof to the contrary. The reason for its elimination, according to Senator Lockwood, was the general misunderstanding by the public of what it really meant and that on some occasions it had been misconstrued even by the courts.

Under Senate Bill No. 5, passed in both houses today, when a tenant is sued for non-payment of rent and sets up as his defense that the rent is unreasonable, the landlord must prove that it is not by producing authenticated statements of income and cost of maintenance of the property involved in the litigation. The bill also provides that this proof must be included in a bill of particulars to be furnished the tenant defendant prior to trial, in order to give him a reasonable opportunity to test its accuracy. The case may be tried by a judge or, if either side demands it, by a jury.

The tenant must deposit one month's rent with the clerk of the court and if, in the event of an adverse decision, he should appeal the case, continue to make such deposits monthly until the case is finally decided by the higher court. Hotels containing more than 125 rooms and rooming houses where renting is by the week are exempt from the provisions of this bill, nor do they apply to buildings in course of construction or hereafter begun.

Another bill passed today will make it impossible for a landlord to maintain non-payment proceedings where the rent has been raised to any extent above the amount in force during the preceding month. His only remedy will be to bring action for the rent and back the dcgand up by a bill of particulars, demonstrating to the satisfaction of the court the reasonableness of the increase.

New Dwellings Tax Exempt.

Both Houses passed the Housing Committee's bill exempting from local taxation for a period of ten years new dwellings or tenements of at least four stories with all stories above the ground floor being used exclusively for dwelling purposes and on which construction is begun within two years, with the provision that they shall be ready for occupancy within two years after construction began.

Other measures adopted directly affecting the relations of landlord and tenant were those making any lessor, agent, manager, superintendent or janitor who willfully violates terms of cases requiring the furnishing of water and other facilities guilty of a misdemeanor.

The Hylan housing program, embodied in a series of five bills drafted by the Corporation Counsel's office, was strenuously opposed by J. Henry Walters, President Pro Tem. of the Senate, who objected to the proposal of using the city's sinking funds even to meet the housing emergency. He maintained that the plan would impair the city's credit, which depended on confidence in the adequacy of its funds to take up maturing city bonds. Other Senators protested, and finally Senator James J. Walker, leader of the Democratic minority, who sponsored and fought for the bills, was compelled to amend the principal bill to limit the amount which can be used for this purpose to 25 per cent. of available funds in the custody of the Sinking Fund Commission.

Even then, Senator Walker said, the plan was unsound and full of peril.

"I would not object if it was proposed to lend the city's money on gilt-edged securities," he said. "But real estate mortgages, especially when, as provided in this bill, money can be lent up to 50 per cent. of the value of the property and improvement, are not gilt edged securities. The savings banks cannot lead in excess of 60 per cent. of such values.

Senator Walters blocked a bill providing for the creation of a permanent State housing board as one of the administrative State departments, on the ground that there were too many State departments already. He declared that, in his opinion, housing was a municipal, not a State, problem.

The Legislature passed the bill authorizing the Controller to increase the interest on short term notes and bonds to "the best rate obtainable by him." The present legal rate of interest on such securities is 5 per cent. The Senate fixed the rate at 6½ per cent., but the Assembly failed to concur, and left the rate to be determined by market conditions.

Mortgage Exemption Bill Lost.

The Assembly was obliged to await Senate action on bills before progressing with business. The Senate was in session all day and the Assembly did not meet until late in the afternoon.

The lower house defeated the bill exempting mortgages from the State income tax by a vote of 63 to 40. The measure was fought by up-State representatives and though its supporters succeeded in disposing of it so that they might again call it up, a test of the strength of the opponents showed such action would be futile and the measure was allowed to expire.

Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Chairman of the Housing Committee, announced immediately after the Legislature adjourned that the committee would meet in New York City within the next few days and start the investigation. The committee is also charged with investigation of the claims of banking and insurance companies that they are investing in real estate to their limit.

When Mayor Hylan's housing program was called up Speaker Sweet left the rostrum and argued for its defeat. When motions were made to discharge the bills from the Cities Committee, so that they would be before the House for consideration, he declared that the Legislative Housing Committee had sat in New York City for months studying the housing problem and that neither Mayor Hylan nor his representatives had ever appeared before the committee and offered the suggestions contained in the measures sent to the Legislature.

New York City Republicans joined with the Democrats in endeavoring to bring the measures before the House, but their efforts were lost by a vote of 44 to 38.

An appeal to Governor Smith to veto one of the newly passed rent bills and thus save realty owners from "committing suicide" was made yesterday by Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association. Mr. Browne requested the Governor to discard the bill exempting mortgages from the State income tax.

Mr. Browne wrote that realty had fought for an income tax for years and that now, when realty asked that the tax on mortgage income be remitted, it would mean a loss of tens of millions of dollars to the State. It will completely "disorganize the State's finances," said Mr. Browne and will automatically transfer the loss to a direct State tax. This means that New York City's budget will be increased tens of millions of dollars "which realty must pay."

Further, stated Mr. Browne, mortgage exemption would not bring $1 of additional mortgage money into the market, and even if it did, realty was "paying too dear for its whistle. Realty's excuse is that Congress will follow suit and exempt interest on mortgages from all Federal income tax," he continued. "Congress will not do so, but even if it should the consequences would be different from what realty expects.

"Federal tax exemptions are responsible for an outside market interest rate of from 8 to 10 per cent., and even higher. The more exemptions the higher the rate goes. There are many tax-exempt 6 per cent. interest bearing securities that can be bought below par. Most of our States have either no usury law or a higher than New York's usury law of 6 per cent.

"This is largely a railroad and manufacturing nation, and railroads, industry and commerce can afford to pay much higher interest rates than realty, and, with borrowers bidding against one another the world over, these must pay the market rate, even were it from 10 per cent. to 12 per cent.

"If mortgages and deeds of trust are exempt from State and Federal income tax, corporate as well as individual funds are exempt, so that realty is where it started from and has no tax-exemption advantage except that it would be placed on a par with Federal, State and municipal securities. How can New York realty, with its 6 per cent. usury law, expect to compete for money loans when its competitors are paying 2 per cent. to 4 per cent. per annum more interest and in many cases selling their bonds below par? What is wanted is not more 'tax exemptions,' but the repeal of the Federal excess profits tax and the surtax on income, which are largely responsible for the prevailing high interest rates.

"In addition, tax exemption of mortgages and deeds of trust would switch capital stock into mortgages and deeds of trust which would be legally such, but actually mortgage stock, something akin to debenture stock."

Unless public funds are made available for building, rent laws will be of doubtful avail, said Health Commissioner R. S. Copeland in a telegram yesterday to Senator C. C. Lockwood of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing.

"Experience of other countries proves the necessity of providing for each community a housing body, empowered to determine what are the essential and what are the unessential buildings, and to prohibit the latter," he said. "Contracts now pending in this city for commercial and other unessential construction will absorb practically all labor and material possible to assemble.

"The public health demands shelter and decent shelter. Many of us believe the Legislature will fall short of its duty to society if it adjourns without giving every guarantee that houses shall be built. If private capital cannot be induced to provide housing in the interest of health, safety and morale the State must do it. Since it is a matter having a direct bearing on the public health, it is a thing in which the whole public has a direct and positive interest. Here is an emergency which every other country has shown cannot be met by private agencies and which so far has not been solved here.

"In the name of the health and lives of our citizens I beg of you to leave no stone unturned in protecting the women and children of this city. If there shall be found a man cruel enough to attempt to set aside the humane efforts of the Legislature we may, with safety, leave it to our far-seeing courts to vindicate your action. Unless public funds are made available for building purposes adjournment of the Legislature leaves us just as doubtful as ever as to whether relief is coming. You desire to terminate all uncertainties and to this end provision must be made for public building should capital fail to respond immediately to the generous concessions made by the Legislature. To complete your work then, we beg you to provide for the right to prohibit unessential buildings and to expend public money for building homes."

The Citizens Union has sent a memorial to the Legislature advocating the immediate enactment of measures providing for State and local housing boards and approving the creation of a Rent Commission for New York City to relieve the municipal courts. The union also approves the realty tax exemption on new buildings for a limited period, but disapproves the proposal to exempt income from mortgages from the State income tax.

HYLAN ACCUSES RAILWAYS.

Declares Traction Lawyers Sought to Kill Bus Bill.

Mayor Hylan said yesterday that representatives of the traction companies in this city were busy in Albany trying to kill the municipal bus bill. The Mayor's statement read:

"The traction representatives are at Albany in force in opposition to the demands on the Legislature of five and a half million people to enact a law to give to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the power to purchase and operate buses to meet the necessities of the traveling public in the City of New York.

"Governor Smith has requested the special session of the Legislature to give to the people the relief they demand. If the Legislature fails to act in accordance with the Governor's request the Republican Party, their leaders and legislators will be responsible for withholding from the people the right to purchase and operate buses and secure relief from overcrowding and the congested condition of the transit lines in this city.

"The people of the city and of the State, irrespective of party affiliations, should demand of their party leaders, their Assemblymen and Senators that this bill be enacted into law."

GERMAN SURGEONS DISCUSS NEW YOUTH

CLAIMS MANY SUCCESSES

Other Doctors Question the Results Achieved and Doubt Patients Will Live Longer.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—Will humanity soon be enabled to renew its youth and drive old age back in defeat? The old hope has been roused again during the past few years by Professor Steinach's "renewal of youth theory," experiments for the testing of which have been carried out in Germany and Austria.

The theory was discussed at a scientific and medical congress at Bad Nauheim when Professor Eichtenstein of Vienna gave interesting details of his practical investigations. The theory is founded on what is termed a simple and safe operation which is not even new. Steinach had tried experiments first on animals, Professor Eichtenstein declared. As a result old and lean rats became fat and active.

It was Eichtenstein who carried out the first experiments on human beings. About three months after the operation the first patient experienced a great increase in strength. His skin became smooth and firm again and his hair began to grow again. A second operation was performed on a man of 72, and there were similar results. The third patient was a man of 61, who received no more than seven stone. For five months no change was visible, but after that a trembling of the hands with which he was afflicted disappeared and he became so strong he could even indulge in mountaineering. In twenty-six cases there were only two quite unsuccessful; in all others a noteworthy improvement in mental and physical strength took place.

There was a good deal of criticism in the subsequent discussion. Dr. Payr, a well-known Leipzic surgeon, declared operations on animals could not be regarded as conclusive, for the ageing of animals was physiological and took place as a whole, while in the case of human beings it set in from one or more directions. As regards experiments on human beings, he believed much depended on the physical state of the person operated on.

Such operations were often followed by mental disturbances, though it might in the future be possible to avoid that. The alleged renewal of youth was, in cases he had observed, little more than relief felt and improvement brought about by the disappearance of ailments of long standing. Patients had declared to him that after the operation they felt quite youthful again, but that did not mean that they would necessarily experience prolonged life.

Most of the criticism was directed against taking up too optimistic an attitude toward Steinach's theory, the beneficial results of which as practiced no one called in question, but it is obvious that it will be necessary to observe the results very closely over a long period of time before the theory can justify the somewhat sensational title given it by its discoverer.

LEGION NOT IN PARADE.

Henry W. Buxton, Chairman of the New York County American Legion, denied yesterday that the Legion would participate in a parade demonstration in favor of bonuses for ex-service men and women. He issued this statement:

"Although repeated statements have appeared in certain New York newspapers to the effect that the American Legion would participate in a parade to be held as a demonstration in favor of a bonus for ex-service men and women, no official action was taken until last night, when representatives from the 200 posts in New York County held a meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania, and a resolution was adopted requesting me to communicate to every newspaper published in New York County the fact that New York County American Legion will not participate in such a parade."

GENERAL BECOMES A PRIEST

Alfonso Fusco Commanded Italian Troops on the Austrian Frontier.

ROME, Sept. 23.—General Alfonso Fusco, who took a prominent part in the fighting along the Austrian frontier early in the war, has entered the priesthood, according to a notification sent to the Vatican by Monsignor Caillot, Bishop of Grenoble. When the war broke out General Fusco was in Paris, being in France on a pilgrimage to Lourdes and the sanctuary of La Salette. When he learned that Italy had entered the struggle he hurried to Rome, joined the colors and went to the front, where he fought until struck down by a serious illness.

After his recovery, General Fusco, who is now 63 years of age, resumed his ecclesiastical studies and received his minor orders at Lourdes. His ordination to the priesthood occurred at La Salette.

CHARGES COX GOT HIDDEN AID IN 1918

holders of the company, Colonel Deeds of airplane fame, H. E. Talbott, and C. F. Kettering. That it was a corporation contribution, however, is indicated by the fact that later the funds of the Dayton Flood Prevention Commission were looted by means of fake vouchers for service by dummies in a sum sufficient to repay the contributors to this fund, and in the case of the money given by the Dayton Metal Products Company's checks, restitution was made direct to that corporation. Adam Schantz, the brewer, who raised this fund, later had to pay over money to meet the increased income taxes of the dummies in order to square their accounts with the Federal Government.

"First, the contribution of the Dayton Metal Products Company to a campaign fund;

"Second, the looting of a fund raised by popular subscription for flood prevention in order to reimburse corporate and other contributors to a Cox-Wilson campaign fund. The facts can be developed by calling Adam Schantz, H. E. Talbott, C. F. Kettering and Colonel Deeds of Dayton, Ohio. It can also be learned in this way whether the large checks given by Colonel Deeds toward paying for the Cox special train to San Francisco with the accompanying band and several barrels of 2.75 beer, was on behalf of himself or of the corporation."

Offered as Lead for Inquiry.

"You are testifying," said Senator Reed to Mr. Lockwood, "to something that somebody told you and are putting this in as a mere lead and not as a statement of fact?"

"Yes, sir, but I will guarantee the committee these facts will be as stated if they call the witnesses," was the reply.

"You take it that this $5,000 was a campaign controbution?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"I think that that is the most reasonable interpretation of the plyment," Lockwood replied.

"I don't know anything about this," interrupted Senator Reed. "But what I object to is that a man finds a note of an individual in a bank, and finds that a corporation drew a check that paid the note, whereupon he concludes that it was a political contribution merely because that man happens to be in politics when it might have been any one of a thousand business transactions."

It was at this point that Senator Reed demanded an immediate investigation of the charge.

Mr. Lockwood was the second witness at the afternoon session. He said that he was the editor and publisher of The National Republican, a weekly printed in Washington, and that among the stockholders of the publishing corporation were William B. McKinley, Republican candidate for Senator from Illinois; John T. Adams of Iowa, John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, and A. S. Hert of Kentucky, members of the Republican National Committee; Colonel William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee; George W. Fairchild, Charles D. Hilles, former Chairman of the National Committee, and Alva Martin of Virginia.

Records Stolen, Lockwood Declares.

Senator Reed had before him as he began his cross-examination a large packet of letters, soliciting circulars and other written or printed sheets, all of them pertaining to the business of The National Republican. Mr. Lockwood told Senator Reed that the documents had been stolen from his files and sold by a former employe. Apparently he did not know to whom they were sold, nor did he know how they came into the possession of Mr. Reed.

"It may be true that they were obtained in a mysterious way," remarked Senator Reed, "but the fact remains that the character of the evidence is not destroyed, even though it comes through tainted hands. Personally I don't know how they got out."

Mr. Lockwood said that he owned the controlling stock in the paper and was in entire charge of its policy. In the last year and a half, he said, he had received about $35,000 from the Republican National Committee, the last payment, which was for $15,000, having been made in July of this year. In return for the payments, Mr. Lockwood said, he mailed the paper to persons listed to him by the committee.

The number of persons whose subscriptions have been paid by the committee Mr. Lockwood estimated at between 40,000 and 45,000.

"Now, is it not a fact," asked Senator Reed, "that large blocks of subscriptions have been paid for by corporations?"

"Yes, we have sent out papers to persons whose names were on lists given to us by business concerns," Mr. Lockwood answered.

"Does the Republican National Committee know about these corporation lists?"

Names of Corporations Cited.

Senator Reed then read into the record the names of a number of corporations which have made annual subscriptions for their employes, the number of employes receiving the paper varying from 50 to 250 per corporation. Among the names read into the record were those of the Fairbanks Company of Springfield, Ohio; the Dayton Manufacturing Company, the National Cash Register Company, the Davis Sewing Machine Company, the Dayton Malleable Iron Works and the American Rolling Mills Company.

Mr. Lockwood said that he did not doubt the accuracy of Senator Reed's information and that the subscription lists from which the names were taken were those of The National Republican.

"As a matter of fact," continued Senator Reed, "haven't you been making what I may call a drive to get corporations to make subscriptions and to give you lists of employes to send the papers to?"

"Yes."

"I will read at this point," said Senator Reed, "from a letter written to persons receiving the paper in which it is stated that the papers are sent to these people 'at the instance of the Republican organization.' Now I ask you if when you wrote 'at the instance of the Republican organization' such a statement was true?"

"It may have been used in acknowledgment of other forms of subscription," Mr. Lockwood replied.

"So the man who gets the paper thinks it is the Republican organization and does not know that it is John Smith & Co. who send him the paper?" persisted Senator Reed.

Mr. Lockwood admitted that such might be the case in some instances.

Paper Indorsed by Hays.

Senator Reed next read a circular letter in which The National Republican was referred to by Chairman Hays, of the Republican National Committee and Chairman Fess, of the Republican Congressional Committee, as one of the most valuable Republican publications in the country.

"Now, do you mean to say that Hays and Fess did not know of this drive to get corporations to subscribe for your paper in blocks?" demanded Senator Reed.

Mr. Lockwood replied that he had no reason to make any such admission.

"I want to know whether Hays and Fess knew you were getting money from corporations to spread Republican propaganda?" Senator Reed again asked.

"I don't know whether they knew it or not," Mr. Lockwood answered.

In one of the letters read by Senator Reed, Mr. Hays appeared to have written that he had been advised that "funds are being raised to increase the circulation of The National Republican in localities where the opposition is strongest."

"Did you give copies of this Hays letter to your solicitors who sought corporation subscriptions?" inquired Senator Reed.

"They probably had copies of the letter," Mr. Lockwood replied.

"And you mean to say Hays did not know what you were doing?"

"I don't know that he did."

Might Be Charged as "Expense."

"Again," said Senator Reed, "I wish to call your attention to another letter in which you refer to a certain corporation tax expert who advised that the subscriptions to your paper might be charged as an expense. Is this a copy of the opinion?"

"Yes."

"I will put it into the record. It appears to have been written by Lawrence Barenson of 60 Wall Street, New York, who gives it as his opinion that such subscriptions by corporations may be charged as a bonus by way of a subscription to The National Republican, and so on. I will say that a man who advises such a way to keep the Government from getting its taxes is not an ornament to his profession."

"He is a Democrat and a prominent lawyer. The opinion was obtained by one of our field men," Mr. Lockwood said.

Senator Reed next submitted to the witness a long list of names of men who, according to the document, are employed by the National Cash Register Company. Mr. Lockwood said that this was probably a list of men for whom the Cash Register Company paid subscriptions to the National Republican.

At this point Mr. Lockwood made his charge about the $5,000 check said to have been used to pay Governor Cox's note in the City National Bank of Dayton.

Tells of "Stars and Stripes" Control.

The controlling ownership of the service paper "Stars and Stripes," which is a private publishing concern, and not an official organ of the American Legion, was disclosed by Joseph L. Heffernan, secretary and treasurer of the Stars and Stripes Publishing Company. Mr. Heffernan said that the present "Stars and Stripes," which was not to be confused with the famous paper published overseas by soldiers of the A. E. F., was started in June, 1919. He explained that when the present paper was started it appropriated the name of the old official organ of the overseas men. He described the present publication as an "independent organ for soldiers."

The capital stock of the company is $200,000 of which $101,000 has been paid in. Of this amount he said that Mrs. Parks had paid in about $48,000. Her total holdings he placed at $51,000. Heffernan said he first met Mrs. Parks in the offices of the Democratic National Committee, where she is employed as a secretary to Director of Finance Jamieson.

The witness asserted that on two or three occasions recently Captain Richard Waldo of New York, whom he described as an employe of the du Pont interests, had visited him in Washington and tried to get him to sell the paper. He charged that Captain Waldo had said that unless the paper were sold it would be bankrupted and that one of the things that would happen would be the loss of its advertising. Heffernan also said that he had information that Senator Edge, a member of the investigating committee, was "active in this scheme against us and is in direct touch with those who are against us." He was unable to back up his charge and admitted later that it was hearsay.

Among others who, according to Heffernan, are active in opposition to The Stars and Stripes, are Secretary of War Baker, Lieut. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, President d'Olier of the American Legion, Delancey Kountze, Eric Fisher Wood and other prominent members of the American Legion.

"What did Waldo tell you when he asked you to sell?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"He said," replied Heffernan, "that if we did not sell we would be bankrupted in six months. Captain Waldo was connected with a foreign language newspaper advertising agency controlled by the du Ponts."

Feared Ban on Paper's Name.

Heffernan, asked to tell how Mrs. Parks obtained control of the paper, said that he and the other original owners were afraid that unless they were able to get some influential support a bill might be introduced in Congress to take the paper's name away from it since, as he put it, Secretary Baker thought the paper should be discontinued and it was opposed by so many prominent American Legion men.

"I felt we needed some support to influence Congress," he said, "and so I went to the Democratic National Committee offices. Mrs. Parks was the only person there at the time. I explained to her my mission and after several conferences she asked if we could not take her in as an associate, which was done. So she agreed to finance the paper in return for a block of stock. To date she has paid in $48,000."

"Did she get the money from the Democratic National Committee?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"I do not know; we divided the stock, she taking $51,000, while we retained $50,000 of it."

"So she has the controlling interest?" said Senator Kenyon.

"Yes."

"Then the Director of Finance of the Democratic National Committee, through his Secretary, controls the paper?" Senator Edge asked.

"I don't know," replied the witness.

Senator Kenyon showed a recent copy of the paper which contained a half-page laudatory article on the Democratic nominees. Heffernan said that the article was an advertisement which had been paid for by the Democratic National Committee. He said that through an oversight the fact that it was a paid political advertisement was not printed above the article.

"And so you are printing a paper for soldiers and circulating it among soldiers under the name Stars and Stripes, when the majority of the stock is owned by an employe of the Democratic Committee?" observed Senator Kenyon.

Heffernan admitted that this was true, and added that the American Legion had been organized in Paris by officers who, with one exception, were Republicans. The exception was Bennett Clark, son of ex-Speaker Champ Clark.

He read extracts from a letter in which the writer said that Scott C. Bone, publicity director of the Republican National Committee, was quoted as having said that the American Legion Weekly was very friendly to the Republicans, while Stars and Stripes was pro-Administration. He said that the letter was from an employe in Mr. Bone's office, but did not say who the employe was.

Richard S. Jones, editor of Stars and Stripes, was the next witness. He asserted that the paper was in no wise political but that it endeavored to be strictly neutral in politics.

Palmer Assistants Explain Trip.

Other witnesses heard today were Assistant Attorney Generals Stewart and Nebeker, and Special Assistant to the Attorney General J. Edgar Hoover. They told of the San Francisco expense vouchers placed in evidence yesterday. All of them attended the Democratic convention, but they said that they had gone to the coast on official business and that during the days they were attending the convention they had made no expense charges against the Government.

Mr. Stewart and Mr. Hoover gave statements to THE TIMES last night which were printed in today's TIMES, and which statements were in substance what they testified to today. Mr. Nebeker explained that he had attended only one session of the convention and remained less than two hours. He is in charge of oil land litigation, and at the present time, he pointed out, the Government has pending cases in California and Wyoming involving more than $20,000,000.

"I frankly admit," said Mr. Nebeker, "that I timed my trip West so as to be in San Francisco at the time of the convention, and I was anxious to do all I could for Mr. Palmer and I only regret that I was able to do so little. But the fact remains that my trip was entirely official and necessary."

Robert T. Scott, secretary to Mr. Palmer, testified that the Attorney General had paid all of his own expenses to San Francisco. A secretary and two Secret Service men accompanied Mr. Palmer, all of them at Government expense. Since the attempt to blow up his home, numerous threats against him, Mr. Scott explained, Mr. Palmer is always accompanied by Secret Service agents. The secretary who went with Mr. Palmer was Mr. Montrose. Mr. Scott also went to San Francisco, but explained that he paid his own expenses.

Peace League Collections $851,861.

Herbert S. Houston, Treasurer of the League to Enforce Peace, was the last witness. He gave in detail the history of the activities of that organization, of which ex-President Taft is President and Alton B. Parker is Vice President. Since its organization in 1915 the league has collected, Mr. Houston said, $851,861.59. It has a balance of $600 now on hand.

Mr. Houston said that the league, under its constitution, could take no part in politics and that it had taken no part in the present campaign. Its principal activity, he said, was propaganda showing the working of the League of Nations. The peace league, he added, favored the ratification of the Treaty with the Lodge amendments to the covenant.

In answer to Senator Kenyon's question as to the amount of money which the League to Enforce Peace had raised in the five years of its existence, Mr. Houston replied:

"It has been a little less than $4,000 per year per State, or a total of $851,861."

Asked as to how this money had been expended, he stated that a good deal of it had gone for the distribution of printed matter about the League of Nations from Mr. Taft, Herbert Hoover, Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, Oscar S. Strauss and other leaders of public opinion. Hoover's plea for America going into the League, "Why Fiddle While Rome Burns?" had been none of the most successful pieces of printed matter that had been sent out, Mr. Houston said.

The committee wanted to know if speakers had been paid. To this Mr. Houston replied, "Never a dollar, except their traveling expenses," adding emphatically that this included Mr. Taft, who had not only never received any money from the league for his services, but had sent his check for $500 every year as a contribution to its funds.

As to the contributions of Bernard M. Baruch toward the maintenance of the league's Washington bureau during the fight in the Senate last Winter, Mr. Houston said that these were accepted without any conditions as to the conduct or the personnel of the bureau and that no point had ever been made of the fact that the three men who had been placed in charge of the bureau, Dr. Talcott Williams, Harry Rickey and Denys P. Myers, were all Republicans.

The League to Enforce Peace, it was stated by Mr. Houston, was prevented by its articles of incorporation from taking part in the campaign and that its activities, therefore, were limited to answering questions as to the work being done by the League of Nations and to distributing news reports in regard to work.

The committee adjourned until 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Group Collections Made Here.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—The Senate Committee investigating campaign funds today inquired into the New York City Republican campaign organization. L. E. Pearson, General Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee for the State, said that $376,000 had so far been turned in to national funds from its work.

"We have never made up a quota or discussed the amount we expect to get," he said, explaining that the work was still going on.

U. P. Stevens, Chairman of the committee raising money in the Borough of Manhattan, explained the group organization.

"We have organized thirty groups, each representing an industry or business, on the principle worked out for Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives," he said. "Each Chairman makes up his own list of prospective contributors. We have never mentioned any limit that we are to go to, except that we are to meet the National Committee requirements and not to take over $1,000 from any individual."

Albert G. Towers, in charge of the Maryland financing for the Republican National Committee, said that he, with the assistance of a "paper committee," had collected $9,055 toward a $25,000 total.

DENY SERVICE PAPER CONTROL.

Prompt denial was made yesterday by both Democratic and Republican officials of the testimony and suggestions before the Senate Investigating Committee that two soldier publications were controlled by the political parties. Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee denied that his organization had anything to do with The Stars and Stripes, while Scott C. Bone, Director of Publicity of the Republican National Committee, emphatically denied that The American Legion Weekly was controlled by the Republican National Committee.

selves acceptable to the capitalist gang at Albany, or to any other capitalist gang.

"We say to the capitalists that our creed, our faith, is not a matter of debate with you. We stand here on the principle that, no matter what we think, no matter what we are, no matter how radical we may be, we have been elected by our districts and we have a right to our seats.

Still Revolutionary, He Declares.

"We have not changed. We are the same old rebels. We are the same revolutionary Socialists we have always been.

"The tone of our declaration was different in 1920 from what it was in 1917. That is our affair."

In 1917, said Mr. Hillquit, referring to the St. Louis platform, the Socialist declaration was made at the beginning of America's entrance into the war, at a time when the United States "was about to begin to participate in an unjustifiable holocaust in which the capitalists of all lands dragged us."

Mr. Hillquit said it was necessary to write the 1917 declaration in the way in which it was framed because of the necessity for expressing a "conscious revolutionary spirit."

In 1920, however, with the war over, it was for the Socialists, he said, to point out "the lessons of devastating capitalism as exemplified by the war." It was for the Socialists, he declared, to point out that only the abolition of "the whole rotten system that led up to the war" would solve the problem.

Prior to 1920, Socialists had never found it necessary to affirm their disbelief in violence, he said. That the party did not believe in violence appeared to be self-evident, and it did not appear to Socialists that it was necessary to say so in their platform, he went on. That they did so after the first Socialist trial was due to the fact, Mr. Hillquit said, there were many who thought the Socialists stood for violence and the destruction of religion.

"I pity the anarchists of the poor who think that a bomb can change the social system," he said. "I pity the anarchists of the rich who think they can keep on chaining us down to the same dastardly system they represent. Remember also, you gentlemen of the press, that we are no mere social reformers willing to patch up the present system in order that it may last for some time. We are International Socialists. We are revolutionists and we are out to overthrow the entire rotten capitalist system with its ugly class wars, its profiteering, its fortunes, its palaces, its violences and all the insanity of horrors it implies."

Predicts "Glorious Fight."

After saying that Socialists were not engaged in "verbal firecrackers, but in actual work," Mr. Hillquit said his comrades were being told that the lesson of the Albany ouster was that parliamentary action was antiquated. The present fight, he declared, proved that Socialists were coming back to wage a new and more glorious fight.

"This is the struggle of the working class in the spirit of revolutionary socialism," he added. "We will wage a campaign until the working class, emancipated, class conscious and revolutionary, will have the possession of this country and will make it a place fit for freedom and women to live in."

In his address Mr. Ervin predicted that the Socialists would send twenty-five representatives to the Senate and five to Congress. Claessens referred to the second ouster "as the last kick of a dying jackass." He said the Socialists ought to be happy for it.

DeWitt, who resigned, said the only thing that angered him in the proceeding was "the insult they flung in my face when they said Orr and I were fit to sit in the Assembly."

Theresa Malkiel appealed for campaign contributions and said that while the Socialists had a million dollars' worth of propaganda because of the second expulsion, it was unfortunate that they were expelled only twice a year.

The motion pictures of Debs shown by the Labor Film Service bore a caption which said, "Debs is serving a prison term, for he loved liberty too well when there was no liberty."

SMITH STANDS BY RECORD IN OFFICE

COMPLAINS OF REPUBLICANS

Declares Hostile Legislature Responsible for Defeat of Progressive Measures.

WALKER INDORSES LEAGUE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 24.—Prominent Democrats, men and women, from various parts of the State attended tonight the notification ceremonies of Governor Smith and Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, nominee for United States Senator, and the other nominees on the Democratic State ticket. It was a real old-fashioned outburst of enthusiasm. Union Hall was packed to the doors and several hundred persons stood up throughout.

The greatest ovation was accorded to Governor Smith when he entered the hall. The band was playing "East Side, West Side," but stopped suddenly while the leader directed a change to "Hail to the Chief." When the Governor arose to speak he was cheered for nearly five minutes.

Governor Smith was introduced in a short speech by Judge D-Cady Herrick, who made the notification speech at Syracuse two years ago. Judge Herrick warned his hearers that the Democrats of the State were entering upon a campaign fraught with grave consequences both in the State and the nation. "The Democratic Party has shown that it is fitted to govern," he declared. He paid a tribute to the rise of Governor Smith from a poor boy to the Executive Chamber, and said his example should be a lesson to many others.

"To me, Governor," continued Judge Herrick, "has been assigned the pleasant task of notifying you of your renomination. The prediction that I made two years ago that you would make good has come true. You have made good as a Governor, as a legislator, as a member of the Constitutional Convention. Many reforms have been proposed by you, but have been defeated by a partisan Legislature. No breath of scandal has ever come to any department during your two years' administration. No appointee of yours has been touched by scandal. You have made good and the people know it."

Among those who occupied seats on the stage were W. W. Farley, Democratic State Chairman; Judges Frederick Crane and Abram I. Elkus of the Court of Appeals; Martin H. Glynn, Peter G. Ten Eyck, candidate for Congress from the Twenty-eighth District; former Senator Healy of Yonkers, former Mayor C. F. Burns of Troy and John H. McCooey of Brooklyn.

Governor Smith's Acceptance.

In accepting the nomination, Governor Smith said he did so fully conscious of the responsibility that went with it. He told his hearers he entered the campaign with a definite and progressive program. He denied a statement of Judge Miller "that all issues must be subordinated to Republican victory," and declared that the State, too, had its problems, adding that for the part of his program not accomplished the Republican Legislature was responsible.

"While I entered upon the duties of my office with an absolute faith in the good intentions of the existing agencies of government," said Governor Smith, "I felt that we were passing through a period that called for extraordinary measures and extraordinary effort. We had but just laid down our arms after the great war. I therefore summoned to my aid the assistance of a large body of men and women who had given of their time and their intelligence and their industry to the Government during its period of stress, in order that they might assist in suggesting solutions of the problems of reconstruction that were pressing upon the State.

"I especially charged them with a study of measures of taxation that would bear equally upon all classes of our people. I charged them with studying the question of the production and distribution of the necessities of life, to the end that they might be obtained by our people at the lowest cost. I told them that the State required more stringent and more universal laws for the protection of the health, comfort, welfare and efficiency of our people. I asked them to give their time to problems of finance and banking, as well as questions of unemployment, industrial relations, housing, the position of women in industry, education and military training.

"When it became evident that the State, in order to meet its running expenses, was obliged to resort to an income tax, I especially charged them with a study of the structure of the Government itself, looking to economy in administration as well as to a greater efficiency.

"They started upon their great work, conscious of the fact that they had been called to duty by the greatest State in the Union. The work that they did, the facts that they collected, the suggestions that they made, the remedies that they proposed, written into one volume, has set a standard for the whole country as important and progressive as communities anywhere would care to be guided by.

Work for the Schools.

"I approached my relations with the Legislature in the broadest spirit of co-operation. I charged the Legislature with making better provision for the conduct of our common schools. In my first message I said that the efficiency of the schools cannot rise above the standards and qualifications for the teaching service. I strongly suggested that, if this efficiency was to be maintained, school teachers must be adequately paid and fairly pensioned.

"I called the attention of the State to the number of illiterate adults among our population and I had provision made for their education. I called the attention of the State to the necessity for continuation schools, and I advocated and signed bills to take care of this important function in our educational system.

"As a result of my insistence that this great branch of the Government be sustained in the highest degree of efficiency I had the pleasure of signing the largest appropriations for educational purposes in the history of the State. So that there may be no doubt about it, permit me to give you an idea by the figures themselves. In 1920 I signed bills for $40,000,000, as against $11,000,000 in 1918.

"I brought about a reorganization of the Public Service Commission in the First District, whereby men of extraordinary ability in the fields in which they were employed took the place of a cumbersome commission which, because of quarrels among themselves and the ever-existing temptation among large bodies to shift responsibility, had brought the work of that department to a practical standstill.

"I vigorously urged amendments to the law so as to give municipalities the right to purchase, own and operate their own public utilities.

"I have recognized that transportation, light, heat and power are necessary services to the life, health, comfort, convenience and industry of our great cities. I have held that where those services are monopolies, they should be public monopolies, especially where they offer a service of universal use.

For Home Rule Principle.

"I strongly urged the extension of the home rule principle to the localities of the State.

"I gave my special attention to the operation of the barge canal. When I entered upon my duties as Governor I appointed Lewis Nixon, one of the foremost naval engineers in this country, as Superintendent of Public Works. Following him, I appointed Edward S. Walsh, a practical canal man, who was for many years superintendent of the Western Transportation Company, the largest owner of boats operating on our State canal.

"I pushed to completion the canal terminals, and it was my pleasure during the first year of my administration to open the first canal terminal in the State, located in New York City.

"I urged and signed bills committing the State to the policy of construction of grain elevators at the important terminal points, in order that the canal might enter into vigorous competition with the railroad, its old-time enemy.

"I urged upon the Legislature the absolute necessity of fixing a State policy with regard to the development of our great water power resources.

"Instead of initiating a broad, progressive policy for the development of water power, the Legislature sent to me a bill committing the State still further to the old-time, reactionary policy of permitting the development of our natural resources by individuals for personal profit, which I promptly vetoed, declaring that while power rested in my hands special privilege, under whatever guise it may travel, will never again be permitted to reach out its hand and grab from the people of this State the natural resources which belong to them and which should be developed for their own use and profit."

Struggle for Better Working Conditions.

Governor Smith spoke of his "long and bitter struggle" to obtain from "an unwilling and hostile Legislature" changes needed in the workmen's compensation law, and of his final success in wiping out an industrial injustice to working men and women. He told of his advocacy of laws to promote the health and welfare of all workers and to strengthen the child labor laws.

"A reactionary Republican majority in the Legislature," said the Governor, "disregarded my every suggestion along these lines, and in an hour of excitement during the closing days of the Legislature one of the leaders congratulated the members who had stood by and refused even to debate these progressive measures upon the great service that they had rendered to the Republican Party.

Says Legislature Shifted Housing Problem

"At the last regular session of the Legislature," the Governor continued, "I forwarded a report from the Reconstruction Commission dealing with every phase of the housing situation as it confronted the State at that time. The report contained not only the details of an exhaustive study of the subject, but it made definite and concrete proposals looking to their remedy.

"The Legislature satisfied itself by the passage of several laws which tended to relieve temporarily the political pressure upon themselves, and left the question of its future solution entirely without action. Had they given the time, the thought and the attention that this great subject deserved at the regular session, the extraordinary session now in progress would not have been necessary."

Declaring the Republican plank for the political equality of women stood as a "hollow mockery of their entire performance," the Governor told of his appointment of women to important executive positions and congratulated his party for having nominated a woman for a State office.

Concerning State finances, Governor Smith pointed out that he had saved the State nearly $7,000,000 stricken from appropriation bills. He spoke of his recommendation for an executive budget and declared the reactionary forces in control of the Republican Party in New York were against it.

Governor Smith closed with the assertion that the Democratic Party did not enter the campaign on the defensive, but boasting proudly of its achievements.

Will Represent All, Says Walker.

"I accept the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate," declared Lieut. Gov. Harry C. Walker, "sustained by the presence in my party of an abundance of progressive thought and action, and determined on my own account to be representative of all of the people and not any group, class or special interests. I am proud that the manner in which the Democratic Party accorded me the nomination leaves me free of obligation to any one save the people. I am encouraged to feel that repudiation of the last vestige of misrepresentation and arbitrary adherence to reactionary and wornout politics is uppermost in the public mind. The people will have progress."

Lieut. Gov. Walker discussed constructive Federal legislation and the conduct of the war by the Administration at Washington. Speaking of the League of Nations, he declared the Constitution "is safe and American principles are not sacrificed when we agree with others against the shedding of blood and destruction of life and property on fields of battle."

"Our internal situation is most pressing for solution. Prompt and effective remedy is immediately needed. However, I am confident that with the signing of the treaty reconstruction and readjustment will set in automatically and the good sense of the American people will assert itself most emphatically in the legislation essential to restoration of pre-war and peace conditions.

"Unselfishly our people undertook to bear, with the other afflictions of war, an unusually large part of the financial burden incurred. The degree of sacrifice involving self-abnegation never has been approached in history, and we are cheerfully content to go through with it, but we will owe nothing to future generations if we should relieve ourselves of some of this onerous burden."

In conclusion Lieut. Gov. Walker said: "Government should not be spread over the people like a blanket, but should be an expression of popular will and collective purposes. The Democratic principle appeals to me and represents my firm conviction. Autocracy in any of its forms provokes my resentment. Centralization of power, monopolistic control and special privilege are all hateful to me.

"My congratulations to you and your associates on the Democratic ticket. The splendid appeal which you have made to the men and women of the State of New York in the cause of good government during the last two years will lead a great majority of our citizens to send you back for another term."

LOWER PRICES OR UNEMPLOYMENT

middle of May. The first few months of this year our business was fabulously increased over preceding years, but in May it perceptibly diminished and in July and August had fallen below the corresponding period of last year."

"What is your opinion of the general situation?" Mr. Rosenwald was asked.

"Unless prices are made sufficiently low to stimulate normal buying it will be inevitable that unemployment will result. I am not by nature a pessimist and for that reason I am loath to predict hard times. Nevertheless it may be that we will be compelled to go through a period of readjustment which will mean losses on accumulated stocks of merchandise and more or less loss of time to the working classes. But, once readjustment sets in, it will stimulate building, which appears to have stagnated, and will furnish employment to thousands in those lines of industry which have been idle for many months.

Have Fewer Employes.

"With the natural decline of our business we ourselves are employing approximately 10 per cent. less people than we did a year ago. This, however, was not the result of any discharging of our employes, but from merely not replacing those which drop out through ordinary causes, and through not engaging as many for prospective increased business which our previous experience has always warranted us anticipating."

The movement toward lower commodity costs in the Chicago district was carried further today and reductions covered a large field. Marshall Field & Co. stated a cut had been made in wholesale prices of 30 per cent. on ginghams and some other lines of cotton goods.

"We have entered a period of deflation in prices," said one of the managers of the firm, "and we may expect it to reach every line of trade and continue until a more normal basis has been reached. There have been sharp recessions already in some of the important raw materials, and there will be cuts in practically all of them undoubtedly, which will make for easier prices in manufactured goods. Either wages must decrease or labor efficiency must increase. Already a big improvement in efficiency is being recorded, according to reports from many industries."

The Philipsborn Company, one of the mail-order specialty houses, stated that new catalogues now being sent out carry price reductions of 20 to 30 per cent. The reductions cover the entire range of merchandise handled and are the result of the shrinkage in wholesale prices.

The Chicago grain markets again recorded declines, and accompanying this movement came lower prices in flour and provisions.

Flour dropped 35 cents per barrel for the best Spring wheat grades from the Northwest and showed a loss of almost $4 per barrel from the top war price of May, 1917. Wheat values were 7 cents lower for cash for the day, while futures dropped 12 cents, as a result of the lack of confidence in values and selling created by the declines of late in automobiles and of 30 to 40 per cent. in many commodities.

Corn meal dropped 1½ cent per pound today, following corn, which declined 6 cents in the cash market, and sold the lowest since June, 1917, when 92 cents was the inside for the December delivery, which means new crop grain. Oats that sold at record levels of $1.29 in July last were off 62 cents from the recent top, or over 50 per cent., while rye was off 92 cents from the war level in 1917.

Mess pork and all hog products have been lower than at present, but today prices were over $30 per barrel below the record made in July, 1919, with lard off over 15 cents per pound. Short ribs sides, which are used as rough bacon by many consumers, are 13 cents lower. Hogs show practically $6, cattle $3.50 and lambs a loss of $9.40.

Reviews of business conditions also carried comment on the slowing down of industry and the consequent decline in commodities.

"There have been distinct signs of slowing down in a number of industries, particularly in the automobile industry," the monthly report of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank says.

"Another direction in which the easing is noted is in the building trades. This has been particularly beneficial in that it has caused a decline in prices of building materials and also indirectly caused greater efficiency of workers. It is variously estimated that the net costs in building are 15 to 20 per cent. lower than a month ago.

"The price of wool has declined 25 to 40 per cent. from May 1. Hides and skins are lower in price."

FULL FORCES AT WORK DESPITE PRICE CUTS

Corporations Report That Reductions Are Not Causing Loss of Employment.

Inquiries at a number of corporations domiciled here showed yesterday that the reduction of prices in many directions has not resulted in a material growth of unemployment. The steel industry has been busy all through the Summer and Autumn and so it is not surprising to find that the Steel Corporation, representative of the trade as a whole, has as large forces at work as can be got together at the various plants. The corporation normally employs between 250,000 and 275,000 skilled and day labor at its mills and mines. While the recent epidemic of railroad strikes forced curtailment of operations at some steel centres, letting men out of their jobs temporarily, this condition has changed for the better and full employment is reported general.

The Barrett Company, which makes roofing and road materials and chemicals at forty-eight plants in many parts of the country, employs about 5,000 men and full forces are working, it was learned. The American Can Company has passed through the busiest months of its year's activities, which end with the canning season, and because of this, it was said at the company's office, there has been some reduction of pay rolls at several of its forty-five plants.

The American Locomotive Company at its four plants in the United States and one in Canada is working with a full schedule of men and efforts are being made to keep organizations at maximum efficiency. This concern, with other manufacturers of railroad equipment, is preparing for a substantial inflow of orders for cars and locomotives in the next few months.

The Phelps Dodge Corporation, with mines in Arizona and Mexico, is keeping its mining and refinery forces at maximum strength, comparable with the numbers employed before the war. The general mine production of copper companies throughout the country is estimated at between 50 and 60 per cent. of the capacity which had been developed at the time the armistice was signed through the pressure of war demands for the metal, but, in the case of the Phelps Dodge Corporation's organization, it was said yesterday, the men not engaged in turning out ore are busy dveloping new reserves.

The current demand for copper is reported light, although better than in the three months after the war ended. In the last week the larger producers have eased their offering price for electrolytic copper from 19 to 18¾ cents a pound, hoping that this would stimulate buying. The sales representative of a leading company said yesterday that indications were seen of a growing demand in the next few months, part of it being reflected in increased inquiries from foreign consumers.

ASK WORKERS TO CUT COST OF CLOTHING

PRICE OF COLLARS REDUCED

Period of Readjustment, Says Maker —Downward Movement to Continue, Bankers Say.

A request to their union employes for co-operation in speeding up production without lowering wages to meet adverse conditions in the men's clothing trade was decided upon yesterday by the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Association at a meeting at the Hotel Brevoort.

"The attitude of the public, fostered by Government and newspaper campaigns, is that of restricting purchases until there is a decided reduction in the price of clothing," a statement issued after the meeting read. "It is clear from opinions privately expressed that manufacturers will not purchase piece goods for the Spring season unless they are able definitely to determine manufacturing costs and to offer clothing at prices which will attract business on a competitive basis."

The Clothing Manufacturers' Association and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America have an agreement to refer all industrial problems and disputes to an arbitration board of which Dr. William M. Leiserson, whose title is "impartial chairman," is the head. The meeting decided to present the following requests to Dr. Leiserson and the union as measures that are essential to establish conditions under which the New York manufacturers can do business on a competitive basis with manufacturers of other cities:

"The right of the manufacturer to install piecework; scales prevailing in other clothing markets to be the base rates for New York workers; the co-operation of workers in maintaining individual records of production in shops and cutting rooms; individual standards of production for week workers in shops and cutting rooms; the right of the manufacturer to change contractors; adequate freedom to discipline and hire workers and to introduce improved machinery; the agreements maintained by the union in other markets in which adjustment machinery is functioning successfully to be made the basis of relationship between the association and the union."

Half of Employes Out of Work.

William Bandler of Currick, Leiken & Bandler, President of the association, presided. A report of conditions was received which showed that approximately half of the 60,000 employes in the industry in this city were out of employment. The report, which was unanimously adopted, read in part:

"Inside shops disorganized by abnormal conditions require radical reorganization if they are to live. They need greater liberty to introduce improved machinery and protect themselves against lay downs. Discipline has been difficult to administer. They have not had the freedom in the selection of new workers essential to balanced and efficient production.

"The hope for better business and more employment during the coming Spring season lies in correcting the effect of the present high wages, low production and bad manufacturing conditions. This should be accomplished by an increase in output, not by a cut in the earning power of the workers.

"The association, union and the impartial chairman have an obvious duty to establish conditions which will permit manufacturers to get business and give the workers employment. This should be brought about by negotiation and arbitration."

B. H. Gitchell, labor manager of the association; Professor W. E. Hotchkiss, executive director of the National Industrial Federation of Clothing Manufacturers; Dr. Joseph Willetts, Charles Elfelt and Gordon Wagonette were appointed a committee to confer with the union and the impartial chairman.

At the headquarters of the union it was learned that the request of the employers for a return to piece work and to discipline their own shops probably would be opposed. It was said that A. I. Shiplacoff, former Assemblyman, would probably represent the union in the negotiations.

Price of Collars Reduced.

A reduction of from 10 to 30 per cent. on the wholesale price of soft collars by Earl & Wilson of Troy, N. Y., effective on Oct. 1, was announced last night by Elmore Leffingwell of 122 West Fourteenth Street, their New York representative. The firm reduced the wholesale price of stiff collars on June 1. According to E. H. Betts, President of Earl & Wilson, this cut will permit retailers to sell high-grade soft collars, now being sold at 35 cents each, for 25 cents apiece.

That the downward price tendency is a genuine movement which will continue gradually was the general opinion expressed by bankers. "There has been a gradual recession in the cost of living since February," said Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company. "I feel that it is a more or less general movement of prices, due to liquidation that has been going on the last several months as a consequence of the stringent credit situation. The Federal Reserve Bank and banks throughout the country co-operating with the system have been endeavoring to curtail inflation and conserve the limited credit resources of the country for essential and productive industries in business.

More Price Cuts.

Price cuts in a number of lines of merchandise were announced yesterday by Wanamaker's through Joseph H. Appel, advertising manager. Mr. Appel said that reductions had been made in many lines, the principal decreases being in women's clothing, shoes, men's furnishings and hosiery.

George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, commented sacastically upon the Republican charge that the high cost of living had been due to the Democratic National Administration. "I wonder whether Senator Harding and the Republican orators will give the Democratic Administration credit for it," he said. "They are unanimous in the charge that the Administration was responsible for the high cost of living and for failing to check its advance.

"By the same reasoning, since the Administration is still in power, since the Republican Congress did nothing effective in this direction, and since the Government departments have been busy, the Democrats must be responsible for the drop.

A decline in food and restaurant prices was predicted by August Janssen, head of the Society of Restaurateurs. In New York City, he said, the decline in restaurant prices would be brought about largely as the result of a co-operative purchasing plan under which forty restaurants have combined to buy supplies.

CROW-ELKHART CUTS TO PRE-WAR PRICES

General Motors, However, Declares No Reductions Will Be Made Now.

ELKHART, Ind., Sept. 24.—Announcement was made today by the Crow-Elkhart Motor Corporation that the prices of all models of its output had been reduced to pre-war figures. The action was taken, it was stated, because of general conditions in the industry.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The directors of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, after a lengthy discussion of the situation, sent a telegram to the National Chamber of Automobile Manufacturers in New York, asking for a statement either affirming or denying the report that a general cut in prices throughout the automobile industry is contemplated.

No reduction is to be made in the price of any General Motors Corporation automobiles, according to a statement issued yesterday by W. C. Durant, President of the company. He said:

"General Motors has never favored or encouraged profiteering. On the contrary, it has always given to the motor-buying public splendid value, which is alone responsible for the enormous business enjoyed by the corporation."

PREDICT CHEAPER CLOTHING.

Retailers' Delegates at Chicago Say Peak Is Reached.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The peak in clothing prices has been reached. This was the conclusion of the 1,000 delegates to the convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers at the closing session today at the Hotel Sherman. The association, numbering 6,000 members, is said to do 75 per cent. of the clothing business of the country.

Mrs. Carrie G. Hull, President of the Dutchess Manufacturing Company, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., warned the dealers to be careful in their buying.

"Do not stop buying, although the prices are high," she said. "If you do stop, you will clog the wheels of the industry."

Eli Strauss of Baltimore said a cut of from 10 to 20 per cent. in textiles would be reflected in Spring prices, but that, while the top of the price advance had been reached, there could be no material reduction until labor costs receded.

Professor Horace E. Secrist, Director of the Bureau of Business Research of the Northwestern University, told the delegates an investigation he had made showed the merchants made a net profit of $7.30 on every $100 transaction, $70 going for merchandise and $22.70 for operating expense.

PRICE REDUCTION IN WOOLS.

Cleveland Company Announces Cut of 15 to 30 Per Cent.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 24.—A price reduction of 15 to 30 per cent. in wools was announced today by officials of the Cleveland Worsted Mills Company. George H. Hodgson, Vice President of the company, in announcing the reduction, said the lower cost of raw materials was the cause.

"The price reduction is effective now," he said. "It will not reach the people until Spring, when goods we are manufacturing now will be placed on the market."

LUMBER PRICES DROP.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 24. — Lumber prices fell here today when a co-operative ready-cut house company announced a 20 per cent. reduction in retail lumber prices.

Company officials admitted that Henry Ford's action on the price of automobiles instituted the drop in lumber prices.

Yarn Prices Receding.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The cotton yarn prices have been slowly receding for the last two months and efforts have been made by knit goods manufacturers to establish prices that would start trade. The reductions have not been radical.

after a meeting of the council on Sept. 16, and William H. Boyd, Broadway leading man, with whom McGraw engaged in a bout at fisticuffs in the Lambs on Aug. 8, was suspended. Meanwhile, John C. Slavin, the veteran comedian, who was taken to St. Luke's Hospital from in front of McGraw's apartment that same Sunday morning suffering from a fractured skull, continued to improve, according to the reports of doctors yesterday.

"I have been away in Canada most of the Summer," Mr. Lackaye said in his statement yesterday, "and have had no part and little knowledge of the nasty mess at the Lambs between McGraw and Boyd. When I returned a mutual friend told me that McGraw felt very badly about the whole affair, that he had lost most of his friends and that he was very lonely.

Sent a Message of Cheer.

"Through this friend I sent McGraw a message of cheer. I told him that twenty-five years ago a man told me that a man who stuck to his friends when they were both right and wrong was the only worthwhile friend. I told him that I was still his friend and that I would like to see him.

"After McGraw had received this message I called him up on the telephone and he told me to come up to his house. He said that several friends were there and that he wanted me to meet him. I went to his house on his invitation, and, acting only in the interest of friendship, I told him that the best thing he could do was to let the Lambs quarrel fade out of the picture as soon as possible.

"McGraw suddenly became suspicious and demanded to know who had sent me there. I told him that no one ever sent me anywhere, and that I was acting purely on my own initiative. I also told him that if he felt any suspicion as to my motives that I would have to leave.

"It was when I put out my hand to shake hands with McGraw before leaving that he attacked me without any warning of what was coming.

"McGraw put up his right hand as if to shake hands with me, but suddenly drew back his left arm and smashed me in the jaw. I crumpled up on a sofa by my side and my right ankle twisted under me. I got up then and aimed a few blows at McGraw on my own account. The fight was stopped by some of the persons in the room. I went to the street without any assistance, called a cab and went to a drug store. It was only the day after the quarrel that I called a doctor and found that I had suffered a fracture of the ankle.

Talk Drifted to Lambs Dispute.

"McGraw received me very cordially when I went into the house. The talk gradually drifted to the Lambs dispute and then McGraw seemed to go into a rage. He said that he was going after the Lambs, both collectively and individually, and used the foulest language in mentioning either the organization or the members.

"My personal conviction is that McGraw has been ridden so hard by all his former friends that he is running amuck with rage at them all. He refuses to take any advice except that which agrees with his own ideas. When I got back to town I found that I was one of the few friends he had left in the city.

"I think that McGraw intended to fight me even when he first received me with such apparent signs of friendship. The friend who took my first message to McGraw was in the house during the early part of the evening, but left before the fight started. I think McGraw had told him there was going to be trouble."

Mr. Lackaye, it was pointed out last night, was the possessor of a season pass to the Giants' games, a legacy from the late John T. Brush. He rarely used the pass, not at all in the last few weeks and did not know whether it had been revoked as were the passes of other members of the Lambs. In fact, he had been in the habit of paying his way, it was said.

"Mr. Lackaye is suffering from a Potts fracture of the left ankle. I cannot tell you more, and I'm not at liberty to state to what hospital he was removed," Dr. Farrell said last night. The facts of the case have been made public."

Nature of Actor's Injury.

A Potts fracture is a break in the lower inch and a half of the fibula, a bone in the leg, a common accident to football players, and is usually caused by a sudden twist of the ankle. It cripples its victims for a few weeks. It was necessary to remove Mr. Lackaye to the hospital to put in place the proper splints and to X-ray the break.

Mr. Lackaye is 56 years old. He has played in many notable successes and is a prominent member of the Actors' Equity Association and other theatrical organizations. He is a Virginian by birth, but has been a resident of this city since he began his career at the Star Theatre here with Lawrence Barrett in "Francesca da Rimini." He has since appeared in many roles, and is well remembered as the creator of the rôle of Curtis Jadwin in "The Pit." He also starred in his own play, "The Law and the Man," and last appeared in "Balmy Days."

District Attorney Swann, who was in Milford, Conn., last night, was asked as to the status of the McGraw-Slavin case.

"As soon as Mr. Slavin is in such condition that he will not suffer any ill effects," said Mr. Swann, "we intend to pursue our investigation of this case and to try it if possible. Up to this time Mr. Slavin has not been able to leave the hospital, and we did not wish to endanger his health."

Mr. Swann said he had not learned of Mr. Lackaye's statement, but that he would look into the matter upon his return to his office on Monday.

BAN ON PEKING BONDS.

Shanghai's Institutions Fear Forced Redemption by Foreigners.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21 (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—All of Shanghai's larger Chinese commercial and banking institutions have placed a ban upon the latest issue of bonds offered by the Peking Government and sold for a time in Shanghai at 12 per cent. of their face value. It was reported in Chinese financial circles in Shanghai that the Peking Government brought out $20,000,000 worth of these bonds after failing to obtain money for current needs from Japan or from other sources.

The attitude of the commercial and financial interests in connection with the bonds was set forth in a telegram of protest sent to the Peking Government. This was signed by 52 local organizations and the Shanghai Street Unions, representing all the larger trading guilds of the seaport. In this message it is pointed out that these bonds will in time come into the hands of foreigners, who will enforce the demand that they be redeemed at full face value.

SUGGESTS ARTICLE X. AS HARDING 'TEETH'

RULE BY LAW, NOT EQUITY

Charges That the Republican Party, Not Wilson, Put the United States Into World Politics.

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 24.—Characterizing Article X. as "the teeth of the League of Nations covenant," Vice President Marshall, in a speech here tonight, said he believes that Senator Harding's attitude is to reject the League but to use the article for "teeth" in The Hague tribunal.

"Reading between the lines," he added, "the world is to be governed by Judges and not by statesmen, by law and not by equity." He went on:

"Self-interest as well as duty demands that some plan be devised and tried to promote peace, to lessen if not wholly eradicate the evils of war and to conserve the resources of the world. I prefer the League of Nations without reservations, although the Democratic Party's attitude is for the League with reservations if desired.

"The 'entangling alliances' charges of the Republicans are familiar and interesting. President Wilson did not put this country in world politics. That honor belongs to the Republican Party, which was the governing power when the ship of state was turned from coastwise into transmarine traffic. It loaded Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands, with all their complications, upon us, and called it 'benevolent assimilation.' Their heads, then, were among the stars and not upon the Constitution of the United States.

"They still propose to be altruistic. Don't forget that altruism in a Republican is treason in Woodrow Wilson. They put us into world politics and now they object to a Democratic President doing the best he can with the situation.

"Some day we shall free the Filipinos. We have taught them the art of self-government and how we love it and value it. Honor will demand that we prevent any power on earth wresting the right of self-government from them. Shall we assume that burden alone or share it with the other free nations of the world as a member of the League of Nations?"

Suffragists to Oppose Brandegee.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 24.—The State Woman Suffrage Association, at a special meeting today, voted to oppose the re-election of Senator Frank B. Brandegee, according to a statement issued by the Executive Committee of the association tonight.

Toronto Forbids Irish Meeting.

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—The Police Commissioners today forbade the Self-Determination for Ireland League to hold public meetings here on the ground that they might lead to breaches of the peace. The Independent Labor Party has registered a strong protest.

$75,000 HORSE RACE FOR TWO CHAMPIONS

as that is regarded as the only true test of horses. These horses are the respective champions of their divisions, and to run them under assigned weights in a handicap might leave some rankling doubt, unless it should happen that Man o' War carried more than the scale weight and won despite it.

There is no doubt that many thousands of racing folk will see the race, many going from here for the event, for there has been increasing interest in the match ever since it was first proposed, during the meeting at Saratoga. So keen has been the competition for the event that big offers have been made by Maryland and Kentucky tracks, as well as the one which finally got the race.

Mat Winn, manager of the Latonia track, was prepared today to make an offer equalling the one made by Kenilworth in an effort to have the champions meet at Latonia. Word came from Kentucky today that he was about to leave for the East to see Mr. Riddle and Commander Ross in an endeavor to get the race for Kentucky. It was at first hoped that the pair would meet at Saratoga, and the Westchester Racing Association later offered inducements to have the two stars start in the Jockey Club Stakes. Trainer H. G. Bedwell refused at that time because he did not believe that he could get Sir Barton in shape in time for the race.

It is the opinion of most racing men at Aqueduct that Man o' War will be returned the winner, but all those interested in turf affairs hope that both horses will be at their best for the meeting. It will be the first attempt of Man o' War to race against an older horse, but his performances have been so remarkable this season that he will be favored. On the other hand, Sir Barton is a great horse when at his best, but trainer Bedwell has found him a hard horse to train. For some time he has been getting his racer into shape and he expects to have him in superb form to meet Man o' War.

Made Same Time at Distance.

The only line on their relative speed that can be drawn from this year's performances is taken from the races Man o' War and Sir Barton ran at a mile and a quarter at Saratoga. The two horses covered this distance in exactly the same time with the same weight up, each carrying 129 pounds and each running the distance in 2:01 4-5. Sir Barton first made this time, setting a new track record, in the Saratoga Handicap, in which he defeated Exterminator, which carried two pounds less. Man o' War equaled the time in the Travers Stakes, in which he defeated Upset and John P. Grier. Both horses won their races easily, though Sir Barton had to withstand three successive challenges in his test. Man o' War was always a length or more in front in his race and was never extended to win.

The fact that both horses made the same time under the same weight would indicate that Man o' War was the better horse, taking into account his age allowance. There will be a difference of six pounds when they come together at Windsor.

As a three-year-old Sir Barton won the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Withers and Belmont Stakes and was defeated by Purchase in the Dwyer Stakes. Man o' War did not start in the Derby this year, but won the Preakness, the Withers and the Belmont Stakes, and in each of the last two named made better time than that registered by Sir Barton. Man o' War set a new American record in the Withers Stakes and a new world's record in the Belmont Stakes.

LANDING OF ALIENS HALTS FOR 48 HOURS

MANY EXAMINED ON SHIPS

Delays Due to Application of Literacy Test Main Cause of Situation.

Before leaving for Washington yesterday morning to consult the Department of Labor on the congestion at Ellis Island, Immigration Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis gave orders to officials in charge to stop the landing of aliens for forty-eight hours.

A number of detained aliens will be sent away today on various steamships to their own country. This will give a little more room in the dormitories on Ellis Island, which is the chief point of the congestion.

The chief delay in passing incoming aliens is the literacy test, which takes up the time of the inspectors. An immigrant may have eight or nine cards passed to him by the inspectors before he finds one that he can read in his native language. The illiterates come mostly from Greece, Portugal and Italy. The Jews nearly all pass the test, as Yiddish is recognized as a language.

As Ellis Island was closed some of the inspectors were sent to the steamship piers to examine the steerage passengers from the ships and 1,128 were taken from the Cunarder Carmania, which arrived on Wednesday and is due to sail again today at noon, and 524 off the French liner Touraine. The 1,000 on the Celtic will have to remain on board probably, until tomorrow. The 1,700 on the Patore liner Patria were also partly inspected, as were the 2,000 on the transport Thomas, of whom 350 were found to be illiterate.

Immigration inspectors said that the congestion at the island was due in part to immigrants not having sufficient money to proceed to their destinations. There are 1,111 destitute aliens on Ellis Island and only 414 ineligible.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Assistant Secretary of Labor Louis F. Post, after a conference today with Commissioner of Immigration Wallis, over the congestion at Ellis Island immigration station, announced that the situation will be relieved early next week. Mr. Post asked Commissioner Wallis to prepare a statement showing just what is needed in the way of additional quarters and Inspectors.

AERO CLUB TO SELECT BENNETT CUP RACERS

Committee in Paris Will Choose Three Machines Without Elimination Trials.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—No elimination trials of American entries for the forthcoming James Gordon Bennett international aviation cup race will be held, the special committee of the Aero Club of America decided today. The three machines which will fly the Stars and Stripes during the race will be selected by the committee on the field Monday morning. The committee's decision will be final. No appeal from it will be permitted and no other American machines except those selected will be allowed to take the air.

Five French machines will go over the course tomorrow, beginning at 7 A. M. They will be sent away every ninety minutes and the three French representatives will be selected from them. Pilots Barault, flying a Borel machine; Captain de Romanet and Jean Casale in Spads; Sadi Lecointe, the favorite, and Kirsch, flying Nieuports, will compete. All five machines have 300 horse power Hispano motors, their wingspread varying from 6 meters for the Nieuports and 6½ meters for the Spads to 7.10 meters for the Borel.

The three British entries apparently are dwindling down to a Martynside, with Captain F. P. Raynham up, neither Harry G. Hawker nor L. R. Tait-Cox having yet arrived with the former's Sopwith or the latter's Nieuport. Hawker and Tait-Cox have not been scratched officially, however, and it is possible they will compete.

The French are sanguine concerning their chances of winning, owing to the fact that none of the American or British machines have yet gone over the course, while all the French machines have negotiated the distance repeatedly, Lecointe making the best time of all.

Lecointe yesterday inspected the American machines. He expressed great admiration not unmingled with a certain pessimism as to the possibility of making safe landings with the heavily laden machines, which have a narrow wingspread. Lecointe said to one American pilot:

"Are you going to fly this! If so, you are a greater daredevil than I am, and I have the reputation of being somewhat of a daredevil."

The landing field is rather bumpy. There are thousands of mole holes, but it is impossible to fill them, according to Cortlandt Field Bishop of the American committee. The aviators are expected to land at a speed of nearly 100 kilometers.

PRESIDENT WON'T DENOUNCE TREATIES

regardless also of the further fact that the treaties contain no provisions for their termination in the manner contemplated by Congress.

The President, therefore, considers it misleading to speak of the "termination" of the restrictive clauses of such treaties. The action sought to be imposed upon the Executive would amount to nothing less than the breach or violation of said treaties, which are thirty-two in number and cover every point of contact and mutual dependence which constitute the modern relations between friendly States. Such a course would be wholly irreconcilable with the historical respect which the United States has shown for its international engagements and would falsify every profession of our belief in the binding force and the reciprocal obligation of treaties in general.

Veto by Hayes a Precedent.

Secretary Colby, commenting on the point made by the President, that Congress had exceeded its power called attention to the veto by President Hayes of an act passed by Congress in 1879, which required the President to give notice to China of the abrogation of Articles V. and VI. of the Burlingame Treaty. President Hayes declared that "the power of making new treaties or modifying existing treaties is not lodged by the Constitution in Congress, but in the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, as shown by the concurrence of two-thirds of that body." On this subject as well as the effect of an attempted partial abrogation of a treaty, as contemplated by the recent act, the words of President Hayes are significant. Said he:

"As the power of modifying an existing treaty, whether by adding or striking out provisions, is a part of the treaty-making power under the Constitution, its exercise is not competent for Congress, nor would the assent of China to this partial abrogation of the treaty make the action of Congress in thus procuring an amendment of a treaty a competent exercise of authority under the Constitution. The importance, however, of this special consideration seems superseded by the principle that a denunciation of a part of a treaty, not made by the terms of the treaty itself separable from the rest, is a denunciation of the whole treaty. As the other high contracting party has entered into no treaty obligations except such as include the part denounced the denunciation by one party of the part necessarily liberates the other party from the whole treaty."

The Merchant Marine act was approved June 5, in the final rush of the session's close, with no opportunity to suggest, much less secure, its revision in any particular. To have vetoed the act would have sacrificed the great number of sound and enlightened provisions which it undoubtedly contains. Furthermore, the fact that one section of the law involves elements of illegality rendering the section inoperative need not affect the validity and operation of the act as a whole.

Text of the Obnoxious Section.

That in the judgment of Congress, articles and provisions in treaties or conventions to which the United States is a party which restrict the right of the United States to impose discriminating customs duties on imports entering the United States in foreign vessels and in vessels of the United States, and which also restrict the right of the United States to impose discriminatory tonnage dues on foreign vessels, and on vessels of the United States entering the United States, should be terminated, and the President is hereby authorized and directed within ninety days after this act becomes law to give notice to the several Governments, respectively parties to such treaties or conventions that so much thereof as imposes any restriction on the United States will terminate on the expiration of such period as may be required for the giving of such notice by the provision of such treaties or conventions.

It became known today that several foreign Governments had filed diplomatic papers with the State Department in which they had made reservations concerning the operation of Section 34 and in which objections to the action prescribed in that section were presented, but that no formal protests had been received. On the other hand, no nation had signified its willingness to agree to the denunciation of a part of the treaty or treaties it has entered into with this Government.

Officials are uncertain whether President Wilson's decision has created a precedent. It is declared to be in consonance with the action of a court which should declare a part of a law unconstitutional while not invalidating other features in the same law. But such a comparison is defective, it is asserted, inasmuch as President Wilson assumes that Section 34 of the act is not law at all, and that in passing it Congress transcended its constitutional powers.

President Wilson and the State Department are declared to have taken the ground that, if the President had carried out the instructions contained in Section 34, such action on his part would have constituted a violation of America's treaty obligations to other powers. An analogy is drawn between a treaty and a contract. Refusal to carry out an obligation in either, it is argued, would amount to an infraction of the treaty or contract.

It was also recalled by officials that the Merchant Marine act was passed at the close of the last session of Congress; that it reached President Wilson only half an hour before Congress adjourned, and that it was not his desire to veto the entire act. On exhaustive examination of the problems created by Section 34, the President became convinced that Congress had exceeded its power, and that the execution of its dictates in that section would compel the United States to exhibit a want of regard for the sanctity of international engagements.

There were indications in State Department circles that compliance by President Wilson with the requirements of Section 34 would have involved this Government in a diplomatic tangle promising complications of a most serious character. It would have been within the province of other powers to construe America's action as a determination to destroy the reciprocal features of treaties and to respect only those parts of treaties which worked to the advantage of the United States. There might also have ensued critical economic conflicts with dynamic possibilities, tending further to drive nations apart, with consequent and universal retrogression to outworn and dangerous principles of international intercourse.

GRAND JURY HEARS WORLD SERIES PLOT

Told How Former Player and Boxer "Fixed" the White Sox-Red Series.

$100,000 WAS TO BE PAID

Only $15,000 Turned Over, It Is Said, Because Boxer "Held Out" on the Rest.

GAMBLERS' RING ORGANIZED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The gamblers' inside story of the baseball bribe offer by which the last world's series is alleged to have been fixed by a coterie of White Sox players to the Cincinnati club became public tonight, substantially in the form in which it has been told to the Cook County Grand Jury.

The central figures in the story are the ones about whom the entire investigation of alleged crookedness in organized baseball centres. According to the gamblers' account of the transaction the amount actually paid to White Sox players was $15,000, though more was promised.

This story is as follows:

A few weeks before the close of the 1919 season a professional boxer was approached at the Polo Grounds in New York by a player, since retired from organized baseball, and asked whether he could find a gambler who would pay $100,000 to "fix" the world's series. The boxer agreed to put the proposition before Arnold Rothstein, a big New York operator.

The boxer approached Rothstein with the plan and was chased from his office. This did not stop him, however, and after consulting friends he announced that Rothstein was agreeable and that everything was arranged.

The deal was for 100,000 in installments, $15,000 after the Sox lost the first game, $20,000 on the morning of the third day, $25,000 on the fourth morning, and the balance after the series ended.

The ballplayer made another appointment at which were present two Sox players to verify his statements.

After this the boxer scurried around forming a combination to place wagers, intending to have agents in every big city. The ballplayer did the same, for he had no intention of giving the boxer a monopoly of the good thing, although that had been the understanding. Deals were made with several big gamblers, including one known at New Orleans tracks, and subsequently warned away from the track.

When the series started, however, the player could not go to Cincinnati. So a go-between was engaged to act as intermediary for the boxer and the Sox players who had agreed to "throw" the series.

Everything went according to schedule. The boxer obtained backing and fairly swamped the country with money on Cincinnati against the Sox. The Sox lost the first game, Cicotte pitching. The boxer handed over $15,000 the next morning.

The second game also went to the Reds, Williams hurling. By this time the boxer had visions of saving the remainder of the sum he had promised to pay, so he stalled when he met the Sox go-between in Chicago the third day. This go-between's name is known to the Grand Jury.

The boxer exhibited a telegram from New York, which he had arranged to have sent, reading: "Money on way," those of Rothstein. He kept the Sox go-between waiting almost to game time by explaining the telegraph cashier was out to lunch and he would not get the money until after the game.

The Sox go-between accepted the alibi, and meantime had to hurry out to the White Sox park to see that all was right. The boxer thought if the Sox lost the third game the Reds certainly could win two of the next five on their merits against the demoralized Sox, and that he would save the rest of the promised payment.

Then came the only hitch in the whole plan. The fixers reckoned without Pitcher Kerr, who was not in the deal, and the Sox won the third game. The sure-thing gamblers lost nearly all they had won on the first two games, but still had the bulk of their money on the result of the series, which they won.

It had been agreed to prorate the cost, according to the amount placed, and the boxer furnished $2,800 of the $15,000 paid. What the ballplayer received from the other gamblers he let in on it is not known.

It was the boxer's understanding that five White Sox players were in on the deal. Four members of the team were known to be honest beyond question—two pitchers, two outfielders and an infielder. Concerning the others the boxer had no information.

Comiskey Attacks Johnson.

Charles Comiskey, President of the White Sox, issued a statement today disclosing the fact that he heard, after the first game of the 1919 world's series, that some of his players were "throwing" the games, and immediately called in Manager Gleason and told him to safeguard the series as far as possible.

"It was nearly nine months ago that Mr. Johnson, who is the President of our league, gave out interviews referring to recognized gambling in connection with baseball," said Mr. Comiskey in his statement. "Immediately afterward the Board of Directors of the American League called upon Mr. Johnson for proof to substantiate his statements so that the board might eradicate the evil, but Johnson did not even attend the meeting of the board, much less give the desired information.

"The world's series of 1919 started Oct. 3, 1919, in Cincinnati. Immediately I began to hear rumors that some of my ball players had been fixed. I sent for John Heydler, the President of the National League and a member of the National Commission. This was the morning of the second game. I told him of the rumors I had heard. I told Mr. Heydler I was sending for him, and not for Johnson, because I had no confidence in Johnson.

"I immediately sent for Manager Gleason. I also told him of these same rumors. I told Gleason to take out any ball player who did not appear to be doing his best. The stories of fixing would not down. I offered a reward of $10,000 for proof of the fixing of any of my ball players. I had heard that a gambler in East St. Louis had been crossed by the gamblers and had lost $5,500 on the game, and that he would tell the story of the alleged frameup if he could get his $5,500 back.

"I sent Manager Gleason and another man to East St. Louis and offered to pay this man the $5,500 in question if he would give us the information, but to no avail.

That the investigation will be thorough in its scope and will be finished by the present Grand Jury even if it has to remain in session as a special jury and hold night hearings, was promised. That evidence is already at hand which incriminates eight or ten players was not denied. In the event of indictments being voted players will be charged with conspiracy to defraud and with obtaining money by means of the confidence game. Any one who paid money or promised to pay a player to fix a ball game will be dealt with in as severe a manner as the law allows.

B. B. Johnson, President of the American League is to be recalled to tell what he knows of a plot to force the Chicago White Sox to lose this year's pennant. That a club is being held over the heads of the Sox players who are in the grip of the gamblers, who threaten to expose their actions in the world's series if they do not let Cleveland win the pennant, is a statement attributed to Johnson and the Grand Jury is anxious to hear of the plot in detail and at first hand.

The Benton-Herzog accusations against each other will also be aired Tuesday, and at that time it is expected that John A. Heydler, President of the National League, will be present and will produce affidavits he is said to have taken from the players after the New York-Chicago game of last year about which the alleged attempt to bribe Benton hinges. Before coming here, Mr. Heydler plans to visit a number of cities having major league teams for the purpose of conducting a personal investigation of several leads he has received.

The names of various Chicago players have been mentioned in connection with the charge that they threw the world's championship to Cincinnati. Comiskey has so far refused to make public the names of the players whose pay checks and bonuses were held up for a time, but it has become generally known that the players are:

Happy Felsch, centre fielder.
Claude Williams, pitcher.
Chick Gandil, first baseman.
Eddie Cicotte, pitcher.
Fred McMullin, utility player.

SAYS ROTHSTEIN WILL BE CALLED IN INQUIRY

Grand Jury Foreman Declares New York Turfman Will Be Questioned.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—H. H. Brigham, foreman of the Cook County Grand Jury investigating alleged baseball gambling, tonight told newspaper men that the name of the man who "fixed" the 1919 world's series for Cincinnati to win had been given to the Grand Jury. This man, Brigham stated, acted as a representative of a ring of gamblers who offered Chicago White Sox players money to throw games to the Cincinnati Reds.

Brigham declared that the testimony thus far given had caused the Grand Jury to decide to subpoena Arnold Rothstein of New York, well-known turfman; William Burns, former Chicago American and Cincinnati National League pitcher; Abe Attell, former featherweight boxing champion, and several other well-known sportsmen.

Mr. Brigham said that the testimony was, in his opinion, "sufficient to indict several baseball players and at least one or two well-known gamblers."

"Through the testimony of one witness we stumbled upon evidence that left us dumbfounded," he declared. "Naturally this evidence cannot be made public, for if the men whom it implicates realized what has been told the jury they would immediately cut off other sources of information. We know they have the power to do this."

Mr. Brigham said that he did not think the jury would find it necessary to summon any of the Chicago American League players or Charles (Buck) Herzog, Chicago National League second baseman.

"We are getting plenty of evidence," he said, "and probably won't need to question them. You can draw your own conclusions from that."

Brooklyn and Cleveland Hold Big Edge in Pennant Races

Neither Brooklyn nor the Giants played yesterday, and the race for the National League pennant remains unchanged. This means that if they win two of their six remaining games the Robins will be beyond the reach of New York and will clinch the flag. Since five of these six games are scheduled with the Giants, in order to win two Brooklyn would have to defeat the Giants at least once. The Giants have eight more games to play. If the Robins should win two and the Giants should win all except one of the Brooklyn series the standing would be:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Brooklyn	91	63	.591
New York	90	64	.584

If Brooklyn should win but one game from the Giants and lost the five others, the best the Giants could do by winning all of their games, except one with Brooklyn, would be to tie for first place.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians moved nearer to the pennant by defeating Chicago, and, regardless of the outcome of the game at Cleveland today, the Indians will have a pronounced edge on the White Sox. With nine more games to play, the Indians have won as many as the White Sox and have lost three less. If Cleveland wins today and breaks even in its remaining eight games Chicago must win five straight to tie Speaker's men. Five victories for Cleveland in its remaining nine games would put the pennant beyond the reach of the Yankees, whose chances dwindled yesterday when the Senators won one game at the Polo Grounds.

HEYDLER ATTACKS BENTON STATEMENT

Pitcher's Story Differs from What He Previously Told, Says N. L. President.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 24.—A challenge to any one "inside or outside the ranks of professional baseball to appear before the Chicago Grand Jury and prove than any championship game played in the National League in 1919, or 1920," was not "won or lost strictly on its merits," was made in a statement issued here tonight by John A. Heydler, President of the National League.

Mr. Heydler's statement is as follows:

"I cannot discuss the results of the investigations so far made. This is a matter for presentation to the Chicago Grand Jury.

"I wish, however, to make this statement. Every championship game played in the National League in 1919, as well as this season, has been won or lost strictly on its merits. I challenge any of these muckrakers, either inside or outside the ranks of professional baseball, to appear before the Chicago Grand Jury and prove otherwise.

"Regardless of the alleged attempted fixing of the first two games of the last world's series, I always have contended, and do now contend, that the best team won the pennant on the level.

"If the testimony given by Pitcher Benton of our New York Club is correctly set forth in today's accounts, then that fellow either perjured himself before the Grand Jury or in his private examination before me.

"No suspicion should be fastened on any player or group of players because of Benton's statement."

Mr. Heydler refused to make known the results of his investigations in Detroit. He announced he would leave late tonight for Cleveland to continue his probe, going later to Cincinnati.

DIFFERS WITH COMISKEY.

Garry Herrmann Takes Issue with Owner of White Sox.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—When it was called to his attention today that President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox said that he received no aid from any member of the National Baseball Commission in his investigation of the Cincinnati Reds-White Sox world series, President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, and at the time of the 1919 series chairman of the National Commission, said:

"Mr. Comiskey probably meant that he did not receive any tangible results from investigations made by members of the National Commission. I know positively that President Johnson of the American League made an eager investigation. He talked to me about it several times. But proof is difficult to secure. There was no need of investigation by me, as the Reds were not involved. When the truth is known, as I hope it will be, the guilty men of baseball should be banished from the game forever."

RUTH CRASHES OUT HOMERS 50 AND 51

Mauling Monarch Passes Half-Century Mark and Sends Fans into Hysteria.

YANKEES WIN AND LOSE

Drop Opener to Senators, 3 to 1, but Capture Second, 2 to 1—Babe Is Big Factor in the Victory.

Babe Ruth crashed forth his fiftieth home run of the season at the Polo Grounds yesterday in the first inning of the Yankees' first game with Washington and placed himself upon a pedestal in the baseball world from which no landlord living can evict him. Babe's home run bat cudgeled his fifty-first homerun in the second game for good measure, and the impatient millions who have been waiting restlessly for the last few weeks for just this very thing to happen can now go back to minding their own neglected business.

A crowd of 25,000 fans blazed into hysteria when the Mauling Monarch passed the fiftieth mark and gave the slugger a whoop and a hurrah he will never forget. The crowd was in full cry as Ruth cantered over the plate, smiling a smile as broad as his massive shoulders and raising his cap to the populace. It was one of those events in sport which will furnish chatter for years to come.

Baseball has never before developed a figure of such tremendously picturesque proportions as this home-run king of the Yankees. With no weapon but a primitive club, he has manipulated it in a manner which would make the famed clubbers of the Stone Age look like experts in battledore and shuttlecock. Ruth has hit almost as many home runs as Heinz has pickles, in fact he is a greater pickler than the world has ever before known.

Acosta Is the Victim.

Little Jose Acosta, the Cuban, was pitching when Babe made his fiftieth clout. The count was three balls and two strikes on Babe when one came over just where the super-clouter wanted it. The ball went high into right field, struck the front of the grandstand roof and bounded back onto the field. The second home run was made in the second game, against Shaw. This bang went among the buzzing fans in the right-field bleachers.

In spite of Babe's rap in the first game, Washington won the decision, 3 to 1, while the second game went to the Yanks in a ninth-inning finish, 2 to 1. Acosta was disappointed because Ruth nicked him for his record homer. You'd think a pitcher would be glad to have the honor of serving the ball which resulted in Ruth's fiftieth homer, but not the Cuban. He tried to fool Babe, and said, after the game, he meant to chuck him one close inside, where Babe couldn't get the full swing of his bat against the ball. His control left him on this on pitch, and Ruth did the rest. After that Ruth was an easy victim for Acosta and, aside from the home run, the Yanks got only two hits, singles by Lewis and Mays.

Shaw, who twirled for Washington in the second conflict, was made to order for Ruth, and, besides a home run in the first inning, Babe got a double and two singles. He had a perfect batting average in this game of 1.000. If it were possible for Babe to get a batting average of a million, he's probably just the lad who could do it.

When the baseball world was stunned by the news that Babe Ruth had been sold to the Yankees for $125,000 and Babe had ventured the remark that he would make fifty home runs this season, wise baseball men tapped themselves on the head, winked an eye and said that Babe was cookoo in the attic. Those who knew Ruth's marvelous ability had faith in his own predictions, and this morning many of them are probably collecting private little wagers as a result of their convictions. Those who made such bets got mighty good odds.

Yanks Wabbly in First Inning.

The Yanks lost the first game in the opening inning, when Washington banged Carl Mays for three hits, which netted a pair of runs. Judge got a triple when his hit bounded over Ruth's head and Harris walked. Rice knocked a double to right, scoring Judge. Harris tried to score on the hit, but was thrown out at the plate, Meusel to Ward to Hannah. Roth's single sent Rice to third. Roth stole second, and when Hannah threw wild to catch him Rice scored. The Yanks' defense was wabbly in this inning, and the Senators took advantage of it.

In the Yanks' first there were two out when Ruth came up. He plastered his fiftieth homer off Acosta, and then the Cuban closed like a clam. Lewis opened the second inning with a single, and was forced by Meusel. Mays got the only other hit off Acosta in the third, and was out trying to stretch it into a double. After that the Yanks were harmless against the little Cuban's curves. When Ruth came up in the fourth he grounded to Judge, who threw to Acosta, covering first. Babe walked in the sixth, and in the eighth Harris chucked him out at first.

The Senators got another in the sixth. Harris singled to centre, and when Ruth threw the ball back to Pipp Harris went right along to second. Rice rolled to Mays, who threw to Ward to head off Harris, but the runner beat the ball in. Roth whacked a long sacrifice fly to Lewis, scoring Harris.

Shaw and Rip Collins were the pitchers in the second game, but Rip retired in the third after he had turned his ankle going after Rice's infield tap. Thormahlen finished the game for the Yanks.

The Fifty-first Circuit Smash

As in the opening game, there were two out when Ruth came to bat in the first inning. He walloped the ball into the right-field bleachers for his fifty-first home run.

That life-sized wallop, with its attending tally, looked big enough to win, until the sixth, when Roth singled off Thormahlen and Ellerbe sacrificed. After Shanks had walked, O'Rourke bounded a single off Ward's shoes and Roth scored the tieing run.

Ruth was a busy citizen throughout this game. He singled in the fourth and also in the sixth. There were two gone when Babe singled to right in this chapter. Pratt got a single to short and Lewis walked, filling the bases. While Meusel was at the bat Ruth took the situation into his own hands and tried to steal home, but died in the noble effort.

Babe opened the last of the ninth with a stinging double close to the right field foul line. Ruth took a big lead off second and Gharrity whipped the ball down in an effort to catch him. The ball went to centre field and Babe galloped to third. Pratt stung a single to left centre and Babe galloped home with the victory.

Curves and Bingles

Where are the skeptics who said it wasn't possible for Babe Ruth or anybody else to make fifty home runs in a season?

The Washington Club wasn't much of a success during a Democratic Administration. Perhaps it would be just as well to change the Administration in November to see if they would be any better under the G. O. P.

Nick Altrock, the prince of baseball pantomime artists, had a good time and so did everybody who watched him.

Babe Ruth presented one of his home run bats to Mlle. Nouvart Dzeron Koahkarian, who will sell it to the highest bidder for the Near East Relief Fund.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson occupied two or three seats in a box and allowed that he'd like to have Babe on his club during the world's series.

All the Brooklyn players and the Giants spent their day off watching the games.

There was a large gathering of Cubans present to cheer Jose Acosta. For a little guy the boy can surely pitch.

While Pipp was batting in the first inning of the opening game a foul tip hit Umpire Tommy Connolly on the leg, and for five minutes he hopped around on one leg like a stork. None of the players was injured in the rush to the plate to offer him sympathy.

Like a good salad, the Yanks needed a lot of pepper to season them in that first game. They appeared asleep in the feet and hands.

Ruth has made 100 home runs in his major league career of six years. This is remarkable when it is considered that most of the time he has been a pitcher. Hans Wagner played ball twenty-one years before he made 100 home runs.

CLEVELAND RECRUIT BAFFLES WHITE SOX

Mails Allows Only Three Hits and Indians Take Second Game of Series, 2-0.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 24.—Walter Mails, Cleveland's left handed recruit pitcher, was too much for the Chicago White Sox today, and they lost their opportunity to take the lead in the American League championship in this series by losing to the Indians, 2 to 0. The White Sox are now one and one-half games behind the leaders, and were they to win tomorrow's game they would be one-half game behind Cleveland.

Mails had the White Sox batters completely puzzled and won his fifth consecutive victory since joining the local team. He allowed only three hits and struck out six men, the hits coming in the first and fourth innings. Jackson made a single in the first with two men out. In the fourth, Eddie Collins and Felsch gathered one each.

The local southpaw was in danger only once. That was in the fifth inning, when by phenomenal pitching he extricated himself. After striking out Risberg, Mails lost control long enough to issue three of his five bases on balls, filling the sacks. He then steadied himself and retired the side by fanning Weaver and Eddie Collins in succession.

It was in this inning that the White Sox came their nearest to the home plate. In the other innings they reached second base only twice, Eddie Collins advancing in the first and fourth innings. The side was retired in order in five of the nine innings.

The Indians bunched six of their nine hits in the first two innings and scored the only runs of the game. From then on Faber pitched airtight ball and only four Cleveland players reached first base. Smith got as far as second in the eighth, when he and Gardner singled.

FOOTBALL ELEVENS TAKE FIELD TODAY

PENN TO MEET DELAWARE

Brown, Penn State, Syracuse, Rutgers, W. and J. and West Virginia Have Games Also.

This day of grace—or of disgrace, as the case may be—is not only a red letter day, but a college letter day, for it is to witness the formal opening of the football season of 1920. It will not be split wide open in a hurry, for the gridiron squads of almost all the universities and colleges are still rather inchoate masses, with the coaches just beginning to deduce therefrom some kind of promising lineups. Nevertheless, the players of many institutions of the first or second rank will for the first time face actual conflict other than that against the insensate tackling dummies or the often audacious scrub elevens.

All the athletes who are to get into action today are undoubtedly anticipating it as a relief from the arduous hours of plugging practice, with no objective in sight save to become hard and fit and to master all the plays, offensive and defensive. Even though the actual games may produce in certain cases only practice, and that less valuable than the daily skirmish with the scrubs, there will be the added zest offered by alien antagonists and by the opportunity to stack up points which will count on the season's record.

Only a few of the group ordinarily considered as entitled to a look-in for high rating will perform today on the barred field. Harvard will get away on the Autumn campaign with an adversary which may prove quite troublesome, the Holy Cross collegians from Worcester. The two elevens did not meet last year, but it is safe to say that the Crimson coaches and players are not anticipating any particular sinecure in this afternoon's engagement at Cambridge with Coach O'Donnell's charges.

Elevens Always Dangerous.

There's a little coterie of Catholic colleges in this region—it includes Holy Cross, Fordham, Georgetown and Boston College—any one of which is likely to set off a football bomb or a baseball mine or any other kind of sporting explosive at any time, and to select a shining mark for its target. The unhappy experience of Yale's eleven at the hands of the Boston collegians is a case in point, and, although these institutions are more likely to shine upon the diamond than the gridiron, there is almost always a latent power in their football teams which enforces respect. Hence Harvard appears billed for no joy ride today.

Pennsylvania's bark, supposed to have a very tidy bite, also will be launched today, but against the rather inconspicuous gridiron team of Delaware College, which was thoroughly trounced last year by the Quakers to the jangling tune of 89 to 0. Coach Heisman is likely to give a good many of his promising youths a chance to get out there on the Franklin Field turf for a few minutes' exercise against the boys from over the State border.

Sanford will deploy his Rutgers forces against Ursinus in the opening game. The men from Collegeville usually put a good scrappy team on the gridiron, but their resources in material are not such as to give them usually much of a chance against teams of the normal Rutgers power. In their clash last season the New Brunswick eleven was on the long end of a score of 34 to 0.

Brown to Play Rhode Island.

Brown will face a plucky rival at Providence this afternoon in the person, or persons, of the Rhode Island State squad. The Little Rhody collegians are usually counted upon to give Ed Robinson's Providence machine a pretty thorough workout. In 1919 they held Brown to a 27 to 0 tally.

Boston College, one of the gridiron sensations of last year, will journey up to Orono to tackle the University of Maine in the opening game, while Bowdoin will reciprocate by a trip to Springfield to meet the Y. M. C. A. collegians, usually a thoroughly capable bunch of football players. Muhlenburg will go to State College to give Bezdek's Penn State aggregation its first outside opposition, and New York State will open at Georgetown. None of these four games was played in 1919, so there will be no value in the scores for comparative purposes.

Meehan's strong Syracuse eleven will entertain the Hobart team from Geneva, N. Y. A top-heavy score is hardly expected thus early in the proceedings, but the Orange machine expects to have some of the kinks shaken from its joints in the encounter.

The formidable array of the West Virginia squad, which wreaked much havoc last year, will open its season today against the West Virginia Wesleyan athletes at Fairmont. The latter eleven is by no means of the meek and passive order, and the mighty mountaineers expect to have their hands quite full.

TWO YALE PLAYERS HURT.

Crane and Cochrane Lost to Football Squad Temporarily.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 24.—With another collection of injuries, the Yale football squad closed the third week of its preliminary practice this afternoon. Paul Crane, the former Andover star, reopening an injury to his knee, and Cochrane, the scrub fullback, receiving a body bruise which will prevent his playing for several days. Crane hurt his knee playing baseball and was compelled to leave the nine most of the season. The injury received today will prevent his playing football again till late this Fall. Cochrane has shown remarkable promise in practice during the past fortnight and was today given the position of varsity fullback, only to be injured almost immediately. He was replaced by Boltwood. Crane's injury closed a run of the brilliancy which gave him a 'Varsity place last year.

With the thermometer at ninety, the first and second 'varsity today ploughed through half an hour's scrimmaging for the final drill of the week, the regulars going across for two scores through runs of Quarterback Kempton and Halfbacks Jack French and Malcolm Aldrich. The touchdown of French was due directly to a ball fumbled by Quarterback Thorne Murphy of the Scrubs.

TIGER PRACTICE RETARDED.

Princeton Eleven Given Light Work Because of Hot Weather.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 24.—The heat on University Field was too oppressive to allow the Princeton squad their usual workout on the gridiron this afternoon, and Head Coach Roper took advantage of the situation to test the football mentality of his men. After half an hour at light work, such as throwing passes and punting, the entire squad was assembled under the east goal posts and for two hours and more Roper, together with his assistants, lectured and fired questions at the men as they reclined on the turf.

At the close of the period the coaches selected a miscellaneous eleven and distributed it over the field. Roper then called out the veterans on the squad and had them explain to the others what men they should cover for each position and at what point in the field. By that time the sun was slanting low over the bleachers and the various elevens went through a very short signal practice in the shade.

Scrimmage is still scheduled to start tomorrow, but Keene Fitzpatrick, who is in charge of the conditioning of the men, stated tonight that unless the weather grows decidedly cooler tonight he will not risk his men in a practice game.

HARVARD READY FOR HOLY CROSS ELEVEN

Worcester Team Likely to Play Open Game Today Against Heavy Crimson Line.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 24.—After their hard work of the last three days in scrimmage play against the scrubs, the Harvard 'Varsity football candidates had a letup today. Head gear and all protective padding was abandoned in the locker building, the players going to the field lightly clad and even without jerseys.

There was no scrimmaging. Instead the coaches drove the three elevens hard on kickoffs and receiving kickoffs, and the little groups of players were held for long sessions by the position coaches. The signal drills also were long.

Harvard will use only a few plays against Holy Cross tomorrow, but these will be varied. The Holy Cross team is not expected to uncover very much in the way of open football, but Coach O'Donnell's first string line is known to be a husky one and well-drilled.

The plan the Harvard coaches is to use practically all of the members of the three elevens which have been practicing in the Stadium all the week. The first lineup will show a rushline averaging about 193 pounds, and the backs, not including the quarter, will average about 175 pounds.

Gratwick has been showing much progress and has just shot up ahead of the other 'Varsity substitute half back of last year, Hamilton. Owen, the freshman half back, and Fitts, the best kicker, probably will not be used at all tomorrow, and Hubbard possibly will be unable to play. Otherwise Coach Fisher can use all his likeliest candidates.

EASY DAY FOR COLUMBIA.

Gridiron Squad Has Mild Workout —Freshman Practice Starts.

The mildest football workout of the season was ordered for the Columbia squad yesterday as a result of the long list of injured players on the Blue and White roster. After a leisurely exercise in passing and kicking the pigskin one eleven was sent through a signal drill, the other candidates taking turns at filling some of the positions on the 'Varsity. The squad was dismissed for the afternoon nearly an hour before the usual time and no practice will be held today. By Monday, when a scrimmage will in all likelihood be attempted again, Coach O'Neill hopes to have the hospital list materially reduced, although there are a number of valuable players who will not be able to get into the opening game next Saturday with Trinity.

Captain Jack Kienninger and Charlie Applebaum, full back, will be two of the regulars who will be forced to sit on the side lines during the initial battle. Most of the other first-string candidates are expected to be back in uniform before Saturday and the line should be complete from end to end. A report was received yesterday from surgeons who have been treating Frank O'Brien, the end who was taken to St. Luke's Hospital on Wednesday with an injured back. The report said that the player was improving rapidly and would be on his feet within two weeks.

Twenty freshmen had their first drill yesterday under Coach Carl Merner and more would have been on the field had complete equipment been available for them. Merner gave the yearlings their first taste of the fundamentals and kept them falling on the ball and kicking and passing after the 'Varsity had left the field. A second workout will be held today and a dozen more cubs will join the squad. With the field at his disposal all afternoon, in the absence of the 'Varsity, Merner will probably order a protracted drill.

INJURED ATHLETES RETURN.

Miller Among Those to Leave Infirmary for Football Drill.

Some of Fordham's injured football candidates returned to practise at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon. Miller, one of the end candidates, who has been confined to the infirmary for the last week with torn ligaments, was out for a light workout, and should be ready for tomorrow's scrimmage. Banks, another end, who wrenched his knee running down a punt last week, will probably don his togs today or Monday.

Coach Joe Dumoe spent the major part of yesterday's practice putting the tentative elevens which he has selected through rapid-fire signal drills. The Maroon athletes are learning a mass of shift plays and trick formations which they expect to use with great success when the season opens next Saturday.

Cliff Steele, the former Syracuse quarter back, reported for practice yesterday, and he should prove a valuable addition to the Fordham team. He is very fast, and is a good punter, and as the Maroon team is in need of kickers he should fit in very nicely.

UPSETS RULE GOLF AT CHERRY VALLEY

Grant Peacock Only Favorite to Meet Expectations in Invitation Tourney.

The second day of the invitation golf tournament at the Cherry Valley Club, Garden City, presented one upset after another. Grant A. Peacock, the home club headliner, who captured the qualifying medal Thursday, did win his way into the semi-final round, which will be played this morning, but little else was according to expectations.

Gardiner W. White, for instance, can do such golfing tricks as be runner-up for the metropolitan championship, yet when he tries to buck against weaker opposition in an invitation event, he is promptly ousted. White ran up against W. M. Young, a homeless golfer, who plays as "unattached," in the first round of match play yesterday morning and came off second best, by a score of 3 and 2. Frank W. Dyer of Upper Montclair, runner-up for the New Jersey title, found himself matched with Alex Calder, a home club player of the athletic family which gave to sports such stars as Eckie Calder, former Columbia basket ball and football player. Dyer went out by 2 and 1. This same Alex Calder kept up his astonishing work all day, and in the afternoon's second round eliminated C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., of Greenwich by 5 and 4.

So it went all down the line. John M. Ward, who changed his mind over Thursday night and agreed to enter the match rounds instead of withdrawing, drew Arthur McKenna of the Garden City Country Club as a first-round opponent in the second sixteen. But the veteran was defeated by 3 and 2. Even W. L. Richard of the Engineers' Club lost to J. K. Van Vranken.

Two home club men and a couple of visitors gained the semi-final bracket. Calder will meet A. S. Bourne of National this morning in the upper half, and Peacock, who continues to be a favorite for ultimate honors, will play A. S. Knapp of Westbrook. Bourne advanced at the expense of J. T. Adams of Cherry Valley and R. W. Hubbell, another local player, by scores of 6 and 5 and 3 and 2, respectively.

Knapp had a good deal harder job eliminating Young. Reaching the eighteenth hole, he was 1 up, after having been 3 up at the fourteenth. Both were on the green in two, but Young was stymied. After changing his mind three or four times he finally chipped over, but landed short. Knapp then found he was stymied, and on his next was left with a putt that halved the hole instead of winning it. In the morning Young played brilliant golf in beating Gardiner White. He wound up the match by 3 and 2, and it was rather disappointing that he didn't play out the bye holes, for he had a 4 and a 3 for a 75. White consented to play in the beaten eight, but came within a narrow margin of losing to Richard Lounsberry, the Sleepy Hollow man, who has been playing golf less than three years. White managed to overcome him only on the nineteenth hole.

F. C. Russell of Cherry Valley was forced to go nineteen holes in the second division to beat G. A. Paul, and in the afternoon was carried to the first extra hole again before he could shake off E. L. Maxwell.

MONSOON CLINCHES SEAWANHAKA PRIZE

Takes Second Race for Forty-Footers in Fluky Wind—Pingvin Wins in Special Match.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Light winds again marred the racing in the special series arranged by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club to wind up the regular racing season in Long Island Sound today. At the regular starting hour there was practically no wind blowing. There was a little breeze up aloft from the south, just enough to give the forty-footers of the New York Yacht Club steerage way. As the wind looked as though it might grow stronger Chairman John C. Work of the Race Committee decided to send the big sloops away over a course that took them well to the south on a beat against both wind and tide.

Instead of growing stronger the breeze petered out and the craft had the greatest difficulty in bucking the tide. Well on in the afternoon the wind finally grew stronger, and, with lee rails awash, the craft were able to finish. The winner was Monsoon, the property of F. D. Strachan. As Monsoon also won on Thursday she cannot lose the series prize, no matter what she does in the third and last race tomorrow. As might have been expected, there was a big difference in the times of the various craft. Monsoon won by a good five minutes from Zilph, the second yacht home.

Although the committee managed to start the forty-footers on their scheduled gun, it was not so fortunate with the other divisions. The handicap class was to have been the next division away. Three yachts were in the division. With the exception of the Norwegian boat Pingvin not one was able to buck the tide and cross the line. As the same conditions were in order when the victory class came to the line, the committee decided that the best thing to do was to call off all racing until a breeze arrived.

Late in the afternoon the good old sou'west wind came and the little fellows were then sent over short courses. Three of the fish class had an interesting race, each one being steered by a woman. The winner was Manatee, the property of A. Strauss, sailed by Miss Strauss.

The Norwegian boat Pingvin showed a clean pair of heels in the percentage class. She was not racing in the class, but sailing a special match against M. E. Hatfield's Kein. Pingvin won by 3 minutes and 21 seconds actual time.

The winner in the victory class was Soixante-Quinze, the property of Swan & Stewart. Thirteen came in for Mrs. Morgan's Mary Rose. Both yachts were protested by E. G. Potter, who claimed that the craft had fouled a mark. No decision was given on the protest. In Class S Spinster had a sailover.

132 LICENSES ARE GRANTED IN BOXING

Applications of Fighters and Officials Approved Under Walker Law.

Many local exponents and officials of boxing, together with a number of representatives from other sections of the State, were yesterday granted licenses to pursue their connections with the ring sport under the Walker law. In a joint statement from the Boxing Commission and the License Committee, it was disclosed that a total of 132 individual licenses had been favorably acted upon, and that four additional clubs had been granted permits to conduct bouts under the law. The awarding of licenses to clubs brings the total number of sanctioned organizations in the State up to seven.

The announcement of licenses granted yesterday followed a long and tedious session of the two committees held in their headquarters at 291 Broadway. Chairman Joseph Johnson of the Boxing Commission and Larry Maguire of the License Committee, with their colleagues, spent one of the busiest sessions in the early history of the re-established sport before the details were finally arranged to complete satisfaction.

Licenses to boxers and referees outnumbered the others issued. There were thirty-four boxers placed on the sports' accepted list and a similar number of ring arbiters. Twenty managers received licenses, thirteen judges, ten seconds, nine physicians, seven timekeepers and five trainers.

The scope of the work accomplished was Statewide. The metropolitan district, naturally, led in number of individual licensees, but every other part of the Empire State where boxing is conducted was also represented.

TO HONOR AMERICAN OLYMPIC ATHLETES

Mayor Hylan to Award Medals to Members of U. S. Team Who Took Part in Games.

Members of the Mayor's Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests, officials of the Amateur Athletic Union and representatives of various local athletic clubs will journey down the bay to welcome home the last of the returning American Olympic games competitors, scheduled to arrive here on the Mobile next Thursday. Plans for a royal welcome to the incoming athletic stars, and detailed arrangements for the city's official welcome to the victorious team of Uncle Sam, were arranged yesterday at a joint conference between the officials in charge of the affair, held in the Municipal Building. It was decided that a delegation of city, A. A. U. and club officials shall make the trip down the bay in the police boat John F. Hylan. The start will be made in time to permit the delegation to welcome the Mobile below Quarantine.

It is expected that 10,000 persons will be in line in the parade in which the Olympic victors will participate next Saturday afternoon. The column will assemble at Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, and the line of march will be down that thoroughfare to Ninth Street, to Fourth Avenue, to Lafayette Street, to City Hall, where the marchers will be reviewed by Mayor Hylan and Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee. All of the members of the team and official representatives of the United States to the Olympic Games will be presented with medals bearing the coat of arms of the City of New York surrounded by a laurel wreath.

The parade will begin at 2 o'clock, and after the review and the award of medals it will be dismissed at Broadway and Park Place. Grover A. Whalen will be Grand Marshal, and his aids will be selected from the various amateur athletic clubs and from the National Guard.

ROYCE ROOLS WINS BANQUET HANDICAP

Cook's Racer Noses Out Favorite by Driving Finish in Third Race —Frigate Victor.

A. K. Macomber's Royce Rools, which has the reputation of being one of the most uncertain horses on the American turf, showed a flash of good form at Aqueduct yesterday and easily captured the Banquet Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, which was the feature of the card. There were but three starters, and the winner led home Tailor Maid by a length and a half, with Thunderstorm bringing up the rear, badly beaten.

Royce Rools has taken the measure of some of the best horses in the country and has been defeated by some very bad ones, and his inconsistency made trouble for previous owners. He has run nearly a dozen races this season and yesterday was the first time that he scored.

Thunderstorm opened favorite and was well supported, but it became evident that Royce Rools was well fancied when at the last moment there was a rush to back his chances. The rush resulted in the Macomber gelding going to the post a slight favorite.

The lightly weighted Tailor Maid jumped into the lead at the break and set a fast pace until well into the stretch, at one time being three lengths in front. Thunderstorm raced after her, while Royce Rools was reserved for the rush in the final furlong. Thunderstorm went wide at the turn and lost considerable ground, and to further reduce his chances he swerved badly from the middle of the track to the rail and got in behind Tailor Maid.

Royce Rools Keeps to Rail.

Meantime, Royce Rools had clung to the rail at the turn, saving much ground and once straightened out he quickly caught Tailor Maid and after racing with her for a few strides he drew away. Jockey Mooney took no chances, however, and rode his mount out to the end so that Royce Rools was doing his best, though apparently having the race won easily. Thunderstorm had most of the running taken out of him in the early stages and after losing ground he had little chance, but he moved up with another rush right at the finish and made Tailor Maid do her best to take the place.

Another racer that came to life after numerous failures was Richard Cook's Albert A., which won the third race at a mile and defeated the odds-on favorite, Abadane. Albert A. was a complete surprise to the majority of the players and was quoted at 5 to 1. Natural Bridge was third among seven starters.

Abadane was an 11 to 20 choice at post time with practically no support for any of the others in the race. St. Isador went to the front with a fast pace for six furlongs, when he folded up and dropped out of the contest. But while he was winging in front he carried Abadane along at a fast clip while Albert A. was not rushed until he was rounding the turn into the stretch. There Ensor moved up when Abadane made a bid for the lead. The latter soon caught the tiring St. Isadore, but Albert A. moved up steadily and under a hustling finish by Ensor outlasted the favorite and won by a neck. Natural Bridge was third, six lengths back. Abadane came out of the race very lame, which probably accounted for his defeat, though he closed gamely and held on to the very end.

Frigate Wins Handicap.

Half of the card was reserved for two-year-old events, the best of which was the Colin Handicap at five furlongs, which was won by the Oneck Stable's Frigate. This gelding took the measure of Quecreek and Smoke Screen, two juveniles which have performed well in the best of company. Dry Moon and Pluribus also started.

Frigate went to the front with a rush, assumed a lead of two lengths and won easily by a length and a half. Quecreek was well up throughout but Smoke Screen closed with a rush and took third from Dry Moon by a nose. Pluribus was last all the way and evidently is not ready for a race up to his standard.

R. T. Wilson's Locust Leaves won the fifth race in a driving finish with Liola, in which the jockeyship of Ensor again was evident. This was a test at six and a half furlongs for fillies and mares. Liberty Girl and Liola raced together for five furlongs when Ensor moved up with Locust Leaves and in the last few yards got up to win by a head. Liola was badly used up chasing Liberty Girl and had little left when the challenge came at the finish. She was tiring but saved second by nearly a length from Rollicking Airs.

LEOCHARES WINNER AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Aged Gelding Leads Blazes by a Neck in Annapolis Handicap—Irish Kiss Third.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 24.—The Annapolis Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, was won here this afternoon by Edward B. McLean's aged campaigner, Leochares, which appears to be at the top of his form just now. The old gelding got up in a driving finish to win by a neck from Captain Ral Parr's Blazes. Irish Kiss was third and Bolster last.

The race lost some interest through the withdrawal of The Porter and Paul Jones, winner of the Kentucky Derby. These two racers like a soft track, and the course was fast today. Those remaining put up a fine contest. Blazes had all the speed at the start and was two lengths in front in the back stretch. Leochares was reserved for the final furlong, and, moving up with a rush, he caught Blazes at the sixteenth pole and poked his head in front to win. Blazes weakened slightly and again showed he did not like the distance. Irish Kiss and Bolster were never serious contenders, though Irish Kiss did show speed for half a mile.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 24.—Leon Duray, the French automobile driver, before a crowd of 18,000 people at the Eastern States Exposition track this afternoon, lowered four world's dirt track records. Duray raced his car around the saucer in the mile in the record time of 1:03, hanging up the three, four and five mile marks all on the same trip. His time for three miles was 3:10 2-5; four, 4:13, and five, 5:15 4-5.

She won by three lengths from Brig of War with Sam Reh third among the four that went to the post. Lady Luxury was handled by Meehan, was kept off the pace, while Brig of War was in the lead. SETS WORLD'S MARK IN ONE-MILE TROT

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 24.—The Mineola Fair and Horse Show, which came to a close this afternoon, was one of the most successful yet held here. The big crowd that attended had thrills galore. It saw the world's three-year-old one-mile trotting record on a half-mile track broken and witnessed the local track record shattered in the pacing race, the second on the program.

The horse show enthusiasts applauded liberally when 11-year-old Frank Hitchcock was awarded the blue in the championship class for the best hunter and jumper exhibited. This youthful rider, who yesterday was not the least unnerved when thrown from a mount in the ring, today piloted Cavalier, a chestnut gelding, over the jumps at 4 feet 3 inches. There were nine other entries in the event.

Worthy Thies, a three-year-old bay trotter, hung up a new mile world's record for three-year-olds on a half-mile track—2:09¼. He was sent against a record of 2:11¾ and was driven by E. Crossman. Direct C. Burnett, a gray gelding, owned and driven by John A. Kilgard of Hartford, Conn., hung up a new track record, pacing the last heat in 2:06¼. The record on this track, made several years ago by Kitty Hawkes, was 2:07¾.

The horse show awards were:

THREE NET TEAMS ADVANCE.

Play Is Continued in Mixed Doubles of Hoboken Club Tourney.

Three matches in mixed doubles constituted yesterday afternoon's program in the tournament of the Hoboken Tennis Club at Castle Point. In the men's singles, the remaining semi-final match will be played this afternoon between Fred Anderson of the Terrace-King's County Club of Brooklyn and Alfred D. Hammett of the University Heights Club. The winner will meet Lindow Vandeventer in the final tomorrow.

All three of yesterday's matches were won by decisive scores. Miss Marie Wagner and Al J. Ostendorf, long accustomed to each other's play in doubles, utilized their excellent team work to defeat Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Ingo Hartmann, 6—1, 6—2, while Mrs. D. C. Mills and Gerald Emerson advanced at the expense of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martin by scores of 6—0, 6—2.

INTERCLUB TENNIS TITLE IS AT STAKE

Eight Teams of Nine Men Each to Begin Play in Annual Tournament Tomorrow.

Play for the Interclub tennis championship of the metropolitan district will start tomorrow, with eight teams of nine men each entered. In the upper half of the draw, the University Heights Club will meet the Jersey League team, composed of representatives of a combination of New Jersey clubs. This match will be played on the University Heights courts. The New York Tennis Club will battle the Montclair T. C. on the latter's courts in the same part of the draw.

In the other half, the West Side Club will meet Amackassin on the Amackassin grounds, while the Harlem Club team will be the guests and rivals of the Terrace-Kings County Club, across the bridge. The semi-finals will be played a week from tomorrow, and the finals the following Sunday.

The Interclub championship was first contested two years ago, and was won then by the University Heights players. Last year the Heights team again reached the final, after an unexpected defeat of the West Side racquet swingers, but lost the title to the New York T. C.

In the opening round tomorrow, opinion among local tennis followers is that the University Heights and New York clubs will advance to the semi-finals in one half, while the West Side and Terrace-King's County combinations are the favorites in the other. However, the West Side club sometimes finds it difficult to get its full strength into action in team tennis, while the Amackassin Club is something of an unknown quantity. Leonard Beekman and R. O. Stoddard are Amackassin stars, but Beekman has been ill lately and may not be able to compete. Ralph Baggs will captain the West Side team.

Captain R. C. Van Vliet, the Hoboken Club star, will play with the Jersey League, and Oelsner and Oakley will be among the leaders of the Montclair team. Frank and Fred Anderson will try to lead the Brooklyn combination to victory. The University Heights Club will present a strong combination in both singles and doubles, under the captaincy of Herbert H. Manchester. Manchester will play in the singles and will be paired with White in the doubles. Ben Letson and Joseph Mersereau are another doubles pair, and Alfred D. Hammett and Emoree H. Henderson, finalists in three or four of the leading doubles tournaments of the local season, will again be paired. Other members of the team are Paul Martin and Edward Clapp, who will probably confine their efforts to the singles.

Camel CIGARETTES

Philadelphia Tuesday.

Howdy Pete!

Always learn something when I head into this old town. Passed my deck of Camels to a fine, business-looking citizen in the Pullman dressing room this morning and this opened up a conversation. Listen, Pete, that man talked the Camel language according to Hoyle!

"Camels are the very quintessence of cigarettes", said this party. Pete, get that word? It fits—it spreads the news—it spills the whole Camel story! And, if you don't get what I'm driving to you, look the word up in Webster's! Why, Uncle Dan put it there when he dreamed Camels were coming! That man slipped into one word:—mellow-mild-body, no cigarette aftertaste, no cigarette odor—and—the best cigarette in the world at ANY price!

Pete, why do you hear men of all types everywhere actually boosting Camels? That's because they know Camels are right! They know from Camels flavor that Camels have the quality—and—they know that Camels blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos makes the most delightful cigarette any man ever put between his lips!

Old oil well, I'm no gusher, but the way Camels are going to more and more men every one of the seven days in every week is a sight to see!

Leaving for K.C. tonight housed as close to the roof as they could put me! Drop me a line care the Hotel Baltimore.

Peter: Like that Camel "smoot" up top? Think I'll adopt it as my letter head. S

THE BRUSSELS CONGRESS.

The International Financial Congress has met at Brussels. Whether it will do anything more than pass resolutions is still to be seen, but it is something that it has at last got together in spite of considerable opposition. This is a congress called by the League of Nations; it is to be attended by delegates and experts from members and non-members, from Germany and the neutrals as well as from the allied States. The field is the world, and it is already apparent that a good deal of seed will fall on stony ground.

The chief purposes of the meeting are officially set forth as "the examination of proposals for the re-establishment of international credit, consideration of temporary expedients for facilitating international commerce, and the practicability of international loans." These are important subjects, but they are not the only ones. In France, for instance, the most important subject is the indemnity, and there has been desperate fear that the Brussels Congress might do something which would lighten the German load, and thereby throw more of a burden on France.

So French influence may be counted on to do what it can to restrict the activities of the congress. All must sympathize with the French fear that the Germans may get off half-punished, but it is fairly evident by this time that the indemnity which can be collected, whatever it may be, will be far from sufficient to meet French losses. Perhaps somewhere there is an ideal balance between the demand of justice for reparation of injuries done in the war and the expediency which would re-establish the old economic world as soon as possible; but our statesmen have had little luck in striking ideal balances of late. However, there is a wide field for the congress outside of consideration of indemnities, particularly in the reconstruction of Eastern Europe. And most important of all is the fact that this is the first really international conference devoted to common interests since the war. The old habit will be hard to recover, an German recalcitrance may do what it can to continue the rift which was produced by German aggression; but at least the mere meeting of this congress means another step toward reconstruction.

REPUBLICAN TAX REFORM.

In the Republican national platform the people are told of the "staggering" burden of taxation imposed on them. A floating indebtedness of more than $3,000,000,000 will be inherited by the next Republican Administration from its predecessor, and the Government fiscal policy "must be deeply influenced by the necessity of meeting obligations in excess of $5,000,000,000 which mature in 1923," but sound policy equally demands the early accomplishment of that real reduction of the tax burden which may be achieved by substituting simple for complex tax laws and procedure, prompt and certain determination of the tax liability for delay and uncertainty, tax laws which do not for tax laws which do excessively mulct the consumer or needlessly repress enterprise and thrift.

Then there is a long lament on the causes of the high cost of living. One of the remedies is the "revision of war-imposed taxes unsuited to peace time economy." In his speech of acceptance on July 23 Mr. HARDING said that he believed "the tax burdens imposed for the war emergencies must be revised to the needs of peace, and in the interest of equity in the distribution of the burden." He said that the Republicans "promised that relief which will attend the halting of waste and extravagance, and the renewal of the practice of public economy, not alone because it will relieve tax burdens, but because it will be an example to stimulate thrift and economy in private life."

The Republicans in Congress have shown no disposition to afford relief by halting waste and extravagance or practicing public economy. Now it appears that the promises in the Republican platform of the early "real reduction of the tax burden" were not meant to be kept. Representative GOOD of Iowa, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, has been at Marion, conferring with Mr. HARDING. After the conference he made the unblushing declaration that it is "not the plan to bring up new reform measures in the short session of Congress, but that, in case of Republican victory, a new tax bill, with sweeping revisions of the excess profits tax and repeal of the transportation tax, will be taken up at the following session."

Just as the Republicans in Congress have postponed economy and have contented themselves with making Democratic "extravagance and waste" one of the platitudes of the Republican stump, so now they break their deliberate promise to the country. They try to turn the "staggering" burden of taxation into a campaign issue. The reduction of taxation, so imperatively needed, is merely a secondary and conditional policy. They promised it should be early. Now they say that we can only have it late. Elect a Republican Congress and President and in 1922 or 1923 or somewhen they will revise the tax laws. When they thus break a solemn and vital platform pledge, how can anybody trust them? How can anyb.ly believe that they will make at any time the tax reforms which they now so jauntily postpone?

We doubt if ever before so cynical a confession of insincerity, such an undisguised trifling with a cardinal national policy, has come from a political party.

CHAOS AT ELLIS ISLAND.

For several years the authorities at Washington have urged a thoroughly rational and feasible program for the control of immigration. It is "scientific selection and efficient distribution." This means that the privilege of coming to America shall be extended only to those who are physically and mentally fit, and that when each immigrant arrives he shall be placed in the community where his abilities find most scope and where there is need of his labor. In that way, and in that way only, can we hope to Americanize the newcomers. The program calls for organized and intelligent supervision, both in European cities and at the ports of debarkation here, but in comparison to the great issue involved that should be a minor detail. Ever since 1914 it has been obvious that the end of the war would bring a tide of immigrants, yet not one effective step has been taken to cope with it. Present conditions at Ellis Island are actually worse than during the record immigration before the war.

In last June 49,706 immigrants were inspected, out of whom 1,783 were found to have ailments that made it necessary to detain them for treatment or to send them back. During the June of 1914 55,931 immigrants arrived, or over six thousand more than during last June; yet 316 less, or only 1,467, were then certified as physically unfit. Among the ailments recently discovered were loathsome and contagious diseases of the skin and eyes, together with diseases more familiar here. In three recent shiploads, 1,000 people were found who did not have money enough to pay their way to their destination — less than $20. Some were quite penniless. Even for those who are fit to land there is not sufficient accommodation. Last Wednesday night 3,319 immigrants were detained in quarters where there were beds for only 1,500. Some lay on the floor, some slept in chairs and many actually slept standing. In the New York room, which accommodates at most 250, were packed 1,300 women and children. According to reports from the steamship companies, all steerage accommodations are booked for a year to come. In Danzig alone there are said to be 50,000 refugees.

All this can mean only what it has meant in the past. The emigrants from Central Europe who settled on the east side two and three decades ago were mainly not Socialists, not proletarians, but skilled artisans and traders of the middle class. What they found here were the slum tenement and the sweatshop—unbelievable wretchedness and squalor. Under the leadership of a few "intellectuals"—MORRIS HILLQUIT, ABRAHAM CAHAN and others—they became Socialists and, furthermore, formed the various "industrial" unions among garment workers, which are among the ablest, most vigorous and successful labor organizations in the country, and the specific program of which is to gain control of their industry as a soviet or guild. In the steel industry, the coal mines and the textile trades a similar movement among undigested aliens is in its initial stages. In a word, these people who were not originally Socialists are made Socialists and revolutionaries by the conditions they find on our own soil.

The new Commissioner of Immigration, Mr. FREDERICK A. WALLIS, has done his best to cope with the situation at Ellis Island and to draw public attention to conditions that are beyond his power to remedy. Mr. FELIX WARBURG is heading a movement "to discourage this unbusinesslike method of turning loose thousands of the Jewish people all at once upon the tide of immigration," and is urging the authorities at Washington to hold up passports in Europe. These are only temporary expedients. Until we take the fundamental step of "scientific selection and efficient distribution," the immigrant flood will continue to endanger us.

EUROPE AND THE LEAGUE.

We gladly make room for the letter on the League of Nations sent to THE TIMES by Mr. JAMES M. BECK. On the general question he is entitled to his convictions, and it would be useless to attempt to persuade him to a different mind. In several matters of fact, however, he appears to be confused or misinformed.

For example, he speaks of the "Supreme Council" of the League. There is no such body. Is not Mr. BECK thinking of the Supreme Council of the Allies? He talks of "the proposed international court" as having an "advantage" over the League. But he must be aware that this international court is a creation of the League, and could not exist or function without it. More surprising is Mr. BECK's credulous acceptance of the Republican legend—we prefer to call it that rather than lie—that the House of Commons "burst into derisive laughter" when LLOYD GEORGE first referred to the establishment of the League of Nations. A search of the original records of that session of Parliament would have shown Mr. BECK that the account of the incident which he repeats was a grotesque or malicious perversion of what actually happened.

Mr. BECK will also pardon a polite skepticism regarding his evidence that there is in Europe little or no "faith in the future of the League." What he reports is mostly negative. But there is a great body of positive proof that the most influential men in England are working and waiting for the full operation of the League. They have formed and financed the League of Nations Union as a means of educating the people and winning hearty support. The Prime Minister is for the League. So are the two living ex-Premiers. So is Viscount GREY and Lord ROBERT CECIL and a host of other prominent men. Mr. BECK might profit by reading an article on "Realities of the League" in the Contemporary Review for September. It was written by Lord EUSTACE PERCY. He, as is well known, has been a severe critic of the League of Nations, especially of British foreign policy in connection with it, but he does not shut his eyes to the fact that the League is doing its work hopefully. And he has one sentence which might especially interest Mr. BECK. It is: "To say, as Lord SYDENHAM is reported to have said in the House of Lords, that such an organization [i. e., the League] can never exercise effective power is to talk mere unintelligent nonsense."

No one denies that Europe has been disappointed in the League. This is mainly because America has thus far denied its own and refused to enter it. But, on the other hand, there is no denying that Europe is doing her best to make the League a going concern. There is abundant evidence, also, that she has a pretty accurate idea of the partisan motives and the bitter personal hatreds that have placed a dead hand upon the United States until after the Presidential election. When our present fury of prejudice and misrepresentation has passed, Europe confidently looks to this country, after recovering from its political debauch, sanely to take its place in the League alongside the other civilized nations.

AMERICA ALWAYS FIRST.

The imagination of Candidate HARDING, responsive to the suggestion of Chairman HAYS's campaign poster "Under Which Flag?" continues to take alarm at the danger that the Star-Spangled Banner will be supplanted by the standard of the League of Nations. Addressing a delegation of dentists and plate-glass insurance agents at Marion, Mr. HARDING, after listening to the singing of the national anthem at attention, turned and said to his visitors:

I never before [many times the national anthem has been sung on the front porch] felt quite so moved by the singing of the last verse of the national anthem. I wonder how many Americans could catch the soul and spirit of the song and prefer a conglomerate flag of the League of Nations to the Stars and Stripes. Oh, my friends, I know what is in your hearts! You are thinking just as I do, of America first.

The baleful flag of the League of Nations, which is to hold Americans in thrall if the United States accepts the Treaty and joins the League, as thirty-nine other nations have already done, is a Republican campaign fiction; it will be thrown out with other headquarters litter after Nov. 2. What makes Senator HARDING's appeal peculiarly insincere is that the Republican Party, if successful in the national election, will endeavor to undo its work in the Senate and bring about ratification of the Treaty and acceptance of the Covenant. Most Republicans who support Mr. HARDING believe that the United States must not remain isolated, and that it cannot make over the Treaty and amend the Covenant to suit itself.

Senator HARDING knows that there is no danger of the American people deserting the Stars and Stripes and marching under a "conglomerate flag" while they sing an international anthem. He has many Democratic neighbors who will not vote for him. There are hundreds of thousands of men and women in Ohio who will support the Democratic candidate and register their approval of the League of Nations for its promise of promoting arbitration and averting war. If the Republican candidate could have a visitation of genuine patriotism, he would say to this great body of his fellow-citizens: "Oh, my friends, I know what is in your hearts! You are thinking just as I do, of America first." After Election Day, when the bitterness and meannesses of partisan warfare are swept into the dustheap and men and women become normal again, they will all be able to join in the national anthem without the imputation being cast in the teeth of any of them that they are disloyal to the flag for espousing the cause of the League of Nations.

A NEEDED FUND.

Lean and starved is the Democratic campaign fund this year. Doubtless Governor Cox's pursuit of the Republican money-getting "boys" has chilled some usually generous purses. Anyway, the Republicans always have the longer list of subscribers. While it is highly respectable and morally unimpeachable to be poor, it is mighty inconvenient for the conductors of a political campaign. They have got to have money.

The other day Mr. WILSON subscribed $500, and was promptly reproached for his penuriousness by the same tolerant Republican souls that would have called him a suborner of corruption and the father of fraud if he had subscribed $1,000 or even $750. His subscription is one that can be made and should be made by thousands of Democrats simply well off, "forehanded," without being rich. Mr. WHITE, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, proposes to raise a fund by subscriptions of $500 and to use the proceeds in putting "the truth about the League before every voter." The truth about the League is best obtained from the text of the Covenant. It appears that, in spite of various publications of it, a large number of voters don't know what the Covenant is and are liable to the misconceptions and falsehoods disseminated so copiously by the Republicans. To distribute the Covenant is the soundest and most useful purpose for which Democratic campaign money can be used.

Give the voters the text, the facts, and we needn't worry about their decision. It is to be hoped that $500 subscriptions will pour into headquarters.

THE SOVIETS COME DOWN.

While TROTZKY talks gallantly about "sending our diplomats to Riga and our armies to Warsaw," and discourses of strategic withdrawals and contraction of overextended lines very much in the manner of the German General Staff, JOFFE at Riga talks sense. He proposes an armistice, and as prior condition is willing to abandon all the terms proposed at Minsk which would have made of Poland a Bolshevist province, as well as unacceptable conditions relating to the southeastern frontier. Indeed, early dispatches from Riga represent him as giving up practically all of the conditions proposed at Minsk, which the Poles found impossible.

In other words, the Bolsheviki have accepted the results of the battle of Warsaw. One has to be a little cautious in hoping for too much, for past experience has shown that they usually have one or two terms up the sleeve which are not produced until a later and more auspicious moment; but so far they seem ready for peace. TROTZKY is doubtless sent out to whip up the morale of the army in case there is need for further fighting, but the Soviet Government appears to have given up its Polish aspirations for the time being.

It is now the Poles' move. If it were left to President PILSUDSKI, doubtless there would be no peace until he had another try at Kiev; but after the experiences of the Spring and Summer it is hardly to be supposed that it will be left to him. TROTZKY, naturally enough, declares that PILSUDSKI is the true representative of Polish spirit, and doubtless PILSUDSKI's policy has been of considerable value to the Bolshevist propagandists; but there must be men in Poland who realize that a prolonged war cannot fail to be ruinous. The difficulties of dealing with the Bolsheviki are abundantly known, but if JOFFE means what he says it ought to be possible to get peace before Winter.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Buyers Must Protect Themselves.

Within reasonable limits, both the speed and the extent of the general price reduction which has now begun will depend on the intelligence with which consumers inform themselves as to industrial and commercial conditions, and on the energy which they display in making clear to producers and distributers their determination no longer to pay excessive prices.

While the war was on, and almost up to the present time, we have all accepted as a matter of course each fast-following advance of prices, admitting its necessity with little or no question, and paying it, if not gladly, at least with a consolatory feeling that thus in some mysterious way we were "doing our part" and showing our patriotism by refraining from complaint. We heard with resignation and pathetic faith the statements that this, that or the other thing—everything, in fact—"has gone up," when the makers of those statements, in most cases, would have told the truth if they had made the very different statement—"We saw a chance to put up this, that and the other thing, so of course we did it."

That evasion, however, should not be harshly condemned by anybody unless sure in his own heart that he himself would not have exploited the same opportunity to an equal degree if it had come to him. It was "business," as understood by all except merchants of sight extraordinarily and abnormally long, and the remedy is not denunciation, but comprehension and reasoned resistance. "Let the buyer be on his guard" is an old, old maxim of both common law and common sense, and the buyer who doesn't protect himself against everything except out-and-out fraud cannot be protected efficiently by anybody else—and deserves pity less for his wrongs than for his incompetence.

Replacement Values Considered.

Most of the comment on price prospects now making by dealers in the various commodities is to the effect that, while wholesale prices in several lines already have begun to fall and others soon will follow them, the effects of this change "cannot" be visible to the retail buyer much before Spring. The explanation of this curious phenomenon, when one is offered—which isn't often—is a reference to goods made of materials bought when prices were higher than now and to the "impossibility" of reducing retail prices until after these goods have been sold.

What the people who talk this way mean is not that the retail prices cannot be reduced at once, but that an immediate reduction involves the taking of a loss by the dealer and that he will not take that if he can help it. His reluctance is entirely natural, and he should not be scolded for feeling it or for expressing it as he does. None the less is the canny buyer in a position to make an effective answer.

He should recall the time, not so long ago, when the dealer, having on hand a stock of goods acquired cheaply, put them up the moment the wholesale prices of like goods were advanced, and so made a profit considerably larger than he had expected to make. That was action justified by all the orthodox economists, but the same authorities contend that the law of replacement values works both ways—in falling as well as in rising markets, that is—while retail dealers begin to talk about "impossibilities" when application of the law threatens to take from them the excessive profits it previously gave.

Against this the customer has a perfect right to protest, and the most effective protest is a refusal to buy until the dealers recognize the fact that with a privilege goes an obligation.

Farmers as Seen by the Senator.

To an assemblage composed half and half of Ohio dentists and of men employed by a company that insures plate glass, Senator HARDING, this week, after an evidently not very hopeful effort to discuss matters of professional interest to his hearers, turned to the always safe topic of farming and the farmer and treated it with the skillful mingling of reverence and vagueness which every experienced politician—and statesmen no less—has constantly on tap.

He knew that, as none of his hearers were farmers, his own freedom from agronomic knowledge would pass unnoticed, no matter what he said. He even ventured, for once, to be humorous. He declared that the farmer was the object of his deepest envy because, alone of human occupations known to him, farming is the one that enables its practitioner to sit on his own fence and "figuratively tell everybody to go and jump into the river."

Being as well aware as he is that it would be highly injudicious, to say the least of it, for either a Senator or a Presidential candidate thus to advise all and sundry of his fellow-creatures, it is little wonder that Mr. HARDING envies the farmer of his imagining. As little surprising is it that he and the dentists and the insurers of plate glass thought his portrait of the farmer true to nature. All friendliness, however, must now beg the Senator not to paint that picture again when the Pilgrimage to the Porch has been made by—farmers.

They, too, would smile at it, but with smiles so wry! Not for them are such illusions of an independence superior to that of other men—of a self-sufficiency that passed away with the Colonial period.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With regard to the editorial article published Sunday, a week ago, regarding the speech made by Senator Harding in Minneapolis. When did Senator Harding make a speech in Minneapolis?

The State Fair Grounds are not located in Minneapolis. They are located in Saint Paul. Senator Harding arrived at the Union Station, Saint Paul, and left from the Union Station, Saint Paul, and yet THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Tribune and The Evening Post continue to advertise the fact that Senator Harding spoke in Minneapolis. This egregious error has been happening for years and the time has arrived to have it stopped. Some day some of you people who persist in making this error will wake up to the fact that Saint Paul means business.

DAN E. WEIGLE,

THE PILGRIMAGE.

Oh, son, little son,
Do you know that I am here,
Weeping out my poor heart
On your grave, my dear—
Weeping my poor heart out
On this foreign sod,
While you are waiting for me
In the fragrant fields of God?

Oh, son, little son,
Can you stoop, this day of days,
And look down at your quiet grave
On which your Mother lays
The sweet-scented flowers
That we both loved the best,
When we walked among them
With the sun in the west?

I've brought you mignonette,
Our favorite, you know:
Dear, do you remember
How it used to grow
Outside Mother's window
Where we'd sit and read?
Ah, son, I sit alone there now
And think, but never read!

Oh, son, gallant son,
We never thought of death
When you sailed to face whatever
Life encountereth.
Oh, son, darling son,
I'll be brave and not moan,
If you'll lean down and love me
While I kneel here alone!

Farewell—flesh of my flesh
And bone of my own bone;
It can't be long till our souls meet
And be no more alone;
Lie still, here, where strangers
Will tend, with love, your grave.
I'll go home and pray God

THE LEAGUE'S RECORD TO DATE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your leading editorial article on Sept. 22 you administer a gentle reproof to Senator Harding for his reference to the ineffective character of the League of Nations, and you do me the honor to couple me with Senator Harding in that reproof. As always, the reproof is administered with the urbanity which has always characterized THE NEW YORK TIMES and makes it a delight to read its views, even when we do not agree with them. Audi alteram partem! Will you, therefore, kindly allow me a little space to make a brief reply?

It is true that Sweden and Finland on the one hand and Poland and Lithuania on the other have voluntarily referred a dispute to the Council for the League of Nations, but such reference did not involve the effectiveness of Article X. From this you argue the League's effectiveness to determine the larger issues of peace and war. Are you not guilty of the fallacy of too hasty generalization? Would you argue that, because England and the United States once referred the settlement of the Alabama claims to an arbitration tribunal at Geneva, the world in future could look with confidence to such voluntary agreements to arbitrate in all matters?

Does not the blind alley, in which humanity unhappily finds itself, lie in the fact that war is such an unspeakably horrible catastrophe that nations will never resort to it to determine any question about which there is an honest disagreement and which is not supposed to affect their vital interests? Have you any reason to question that, if there had been no League of Nations at all, Sweden and Finland, if indisposed to go to war, would have referred the Aland Island dispute to some kind of a tribunal if they could not adjust it by diplomatic conferences, and is not the same true of Poland and Lithuania?

If this be so, what advantage has the Supreme Council of the League of Nations in adjusting such quarrels over the Tribunal of the Hague Convention or the proposed International Court? Far from having any advantage, it has a positive disadvantage in the fact that the Supreme Council is an alliance of political power, whereas an international court is a judicial tribunal, and its decisions carry a corresponding moral weight.

The point of Senator Harding's address and of my own speech at Carnegie Hall, of which only excerpts were printed, was that the League had proved, and would prove, impotent to determine those larger issues of war and peace which a nation may think sufficiently vital to resort to the dread arbitrament of arms.

Let me give only a few reasons for my conclusions:

1. In my two months' absence in Europe I probably discussed the matter with nearly a hundred publicists of England, France and Belgium, many of whom were men of unquestioned standing. Few of them had any faith in the future of the League, although publicly some of them gave it the cold respect of lip-service.

2. When the Bolshevist were at the gates of Warsaw, and all Europe was trembling with a peril, which many publicists said was the greatest since August, 1914, it is significant that there was no attempt to appeal to the League to avert the peril. Poland did appeal to France, and France in turn appealed to England and Italy, and unhappily the Governments in the two last-named countries were unable, because of internal differences of opinion, to do more than advise Poland to submit to the supposed terms of the Bolsheviki, which, in my judgment, would have resulted, if it had been realized, in a moral surrender which would have gravely compromised the future of civilization. About that time the League met at San Sebastian. They discussed minor matters, but, by inaction, confessed their impotency to do anything to save Poland from that which seemed to be an almost certain and irremedial disaster.

3. Nothing measures public interest better than the newspaper press. During that time I saw very few references in editorials to the League of Nations as a practical factor in adjusting the disordered state of Europe. The few editorial references that I now recall spoke pessimistically of the efficacy of the League in one of the greatest crises of European history. Even more significant is the fact that the news from San Sebastian as to the doings of the League was relegated to an obscure corner of the papers and did not occupy as much space as the other leading topics of the day.

4. While I was in London the weakness of the League was a matter of comment and was raised in Parliament. The subject was assigned for discussion in the House of Lords, and public notice was given that it would be debated by some of the leaders of the House of Lords, among others Haldane, Bryce, Curzon and Sydenham. Of the whole body of the House of Lords less than fifteen attended.

5. This, of course, recalls a former incident in the House of Commons, when Mr. Lloyd George made a passing reference to the League of Nations and the whole House burst into derisive laughter, and the British Premier pathetically asked them not to laugh at the League of Nations.

6. Those who have had any opportunity to discuss the matter in France know that France has no faith in the League of Nations, and outside of a few zeal. s publicists like M. Bourgeois it never did have, except as it regarded the League as a means to bring the United States into the entanglements of European quarrels. France's acute apprehension when the Bolsheviki were at the gates of Warsaw was only less than that of Poland, and it is significant that France, notwithstanding its loss of man-power and disordered finances, made no appeal to the League of Nations, but, when England and Italy were unwilling to come to the relief of Poland, France on its own initiative first recognized General Wrangel and then sent its Generals to the aid of Poland, and the victory was won by French skill and Polish valor.

I do not question that the League of Nations, if it survives, could adjust many minor disputes, even as the old "concert of Europe" did until 1914, but it will settle nothing that would not be as effectively settled without the League, for I must recur to the truth which all history emphasizes, that when nations do not want a quarrel they can always find a method of settlement, but that when they do want a quarrrel, or when one wants a quarrel—for while it takes two to make a peace it takes only one to make a quarrel, and the chain of peace can never be stronger than its weakest link—then neither the League nor any other method of arbitration will avail. Far from being as effective as the judicial Tribunal of the Hague Convention or an international court, the Supreme Council of the League would be less effective, for all the smaller States of Europe are already in revolt against the new concert of power, for that is all that the Supreme Council of the League really is. LEAGUE THOUSAND CLUB.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to call your attention to a statement I issued today, as follows: "Less than $130,000 collected by us provided a contrast before the Senate committee yesterday with millions in the hands of the Republicans. Since the fate of the League and the peace of the world depend on the success of Cox and Roosevelt, I intend to call for a thousand friends of the League all over the country to match the President's subscription of $500 made recently in the same cause. This will provide a special fund of $500,000 to put the truth about the League before every voter. State and County Chairmen will be asked to assist, and we feel hopeful that there are at least 1,000 men in the United States who will give us $500 each for the League. Newspapers which favor the League will be asked to help us form the League Thousand Club. This plan will provide the means for a heavy assault against misrepresentation in the interest of mere partisanship." May I call upon you, in the name of the great issue to which we are so wholly devoted, to publish this appeal, to indorse it editorially and to invite citizens of your State to contribute as indicated. May I further request you to announce that you will receive, acknowledge and forward to the Democratic National Committee such five-hundred-dollar subscriptions as any of your readers may wish to send? This great service will be highly appreciated. None but the newspapers of America have it in their power to render it. GEORGE WHITE,

Chairman Democratic National Committee.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23.—President de la Huerta's illness is not serious his private secretary stated today. Reports of an operation were absolutely false, he said. The President slept this afternoon and is expected to return to the National Palace on Friday. The Mexican Government will declare free ports all cities in the border zone. They will comprise only the actual city limits. The order is effective Oct. 1.

General Francisco Mugica, having taken forcible possession of the Government of the State of Michoacan is in revolt against the Federal Government. His case has been referred to the Senate. The Federal Government will appoint a Provisional Governor until the decision of the Senate is rendered. The case of Mugica is not considered serious. He is one of the many Generals who only occupied official positions during the revolution. In the time of Carranza he was Chief of Vera Cruz customs. He is considered to have little weight.

The Government has suppressed all purchasing agencies of the National Railways now purchasing material in the United States. In future purchases will be made by open bidding in Mexico City.

JAPAN READY TO PROTEST.

Will Instruct Ambassador to Object if Land Law Passes.

HONOLULU, Sept. 23.—Cable advices from Tokio to the Nippu Jiji, Japanese language newspaper here, regarding anti-Japanese legislation in California report that the Diplomatic Council has decided that Japan will instruct Ambassador Shidehara to register vigorous protest if California passes the Japanese land laws on which there will be a referendum in November. The Ambassador's protest will be based on the ground that such legislation is unconstitutional and a violation of Japan's treaty rights, it was said.

Japan's original plan, according to the advices, was to ask the United States to appoint members to an American-Japanese commission which would effect a settlement of the Japanese problem in California and ward off possible anti-Japanese legislation. This plan was abandoned because it was believed it was too late for it to achieve any results.

The popular belief in Japan is that the anti-Japanese legislation in California will pass by a 10 to 1 vote, according to advices.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 24.—Declaring the open-shop principle to be "in no way hurtful to the legitimate activities of trade unions, and is not a check upon the right and proper affiliations of workmen banded together for legal and American objects," the Associated Industries of Paterson, comprising in its membership the Paterson silk manufacturers, announced today that they favored the open-shop principle in the silk mills. It was the third quarterly meeting of the Associated, and was held at the Hebrew Free School. A special appropriation of $3,000 was voted for conducting a three months' educational campaign in Paterson in the interest of the open-shop movement.

The purpose of the educational campaign was said to be "to win the sympathetic understanding of the public, the business men and the working people of the community, to the end that all branches may unite for the open shop in all branches of trades industry in Paterson."

The closed union shop was declared to be un-American, illegal and unfair to the independent workman and to the employer.

TAGGART FILES LIBEL SUIT.

Thomas Taggart, ex-Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and candidate for the United States Senate from Indiana, has sued The Brooklyn Standard-Union for $100,000 for alleged libel. The papers were filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn by John L. Lockwood, 2 Rector Street, counsel for Mr. Taggart. The answer is returnable before Sept. 28.

The suit is based on articles printed in The Standard-Union on Aug. 27 and 31, in each of which, according to the complaint in the action, the French Lick Springs Hotel, of which Mr. Taggart is the owner, was referred to as a "gambling place." Mr. Taggart asserts he was injured to the extent of $50,000 by each of the articles.

'DRY' CLERGYMEN REPLY TO CRITICS

ATTACKS REV. DR. LEACH

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23.—An unqualified denial was made this afternoon by Dr. James Empringham, General Superintendent of the Church Temperance Society, that seven members of the board of managers of the society had resigned because they were dissatisfied with the financial management of the organization.

Dr. Empringham, who is attending the international congress against alcoholism, said any resignations were due not to the cause assigned, but because the retiring managers did not agree that an absolutely "dry" policy should be conducted by the organization. According to Dr. Empringham, the constitution of the society is adamantine against intemperate drinking, but does allow moderate drinking. Personally he favors the "dryest" of platforms.

The Rev. Dr. Floyd S. Leach, assistant rector of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, New York, was singled out by Dr. Empringham, who said:

"The specific statements made by Dr. Leach in the Chronicle are absolutely false," said Dr. Empringham. Mr. William J. Schieffelin and others have already answered this. It is a reflection on Mr. Schieffelin. It has nothing to do with the rest of us.

"We will conduct a dry program as in the past. Dr. Chalmers and the board are in sympathy with this."

The Rev. Dr. James V. Chalmers, to whom Dr. Empringham alluded, is president of the Church Temperance Society and, like Dr. Empringham, is attending the anti-alcoholic conference. Both expect to return to New York tomorrow night.

The executive committee of the Episcopal Church Temperance Society has issued a reply to the statement signed by six of the seven men who resigned recently from its Board of Managers. The committee is composed of the Rev. Dr. James V. Chalmers, President of the organization; W. H. Reid and Mr. William J. Schieffelin, who is its Treasurer. The reply states that most of those who resigned did so because they were not in sympathy with a prohibition campaign that the society set out to wage.

I. R. T. DENIES COAL WASTE.

Company Replies to Queens Borough President's Charge.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company replied yesterday to the statement of Maurice E. Connolly, President of Queens Borough, that the company was selling ashes containing more than 44 per cent. of combustible material, thereby wasting coal to the extent of more than $446,000 a year. Mr. Connolly called the attention of Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon to the matter and asked that an inquiry be instituted to the end that the city's interest in the subways might be conserved. The reply of the company reads:

"The Interborough methods of coal consumption have been developed by the leading experts in the country. These methods have been the subject of study by other great industries.

"The company is today getting results in coal combustion comparable with those anywhere. For eight months from tests made daily the records of the chemical staff of the engineering department show that on the average only 3½ per cent. of the coal has remained in the ashes unconsumed.

"The Interborough's chemical staff has never had nor heard of such a high record as 40 per cent.

"The Interborough results represent as complete combustion as is obtainable in the present state of the art and with the kind of coal nowadays available."

At the office of the Public Service Commission it was said that Mr. Connolly's communication would receive early attention and that an inquiry would probably be instituted.

DROPS RUSSIAN MINISTER.

Chinese President Announces Withdrawal of Recognition.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Sept. 24.—A Presidential mandate issued yesterday evening proclaims that recognition of the Russian Minister and consuls is withdrawn in consequence of these officials of the Russian Government having lost their status since the revolution. The friendly relationship existing between the two countries will be maintained and Russian life and property will be protected. The Government directs the responsible authorities to submimt proposals concerning the Russian concesaions of Tientsin and Hankow and also the land acquired along the Chinese Eastern Railway. In withdrawing recognition of the Russian Minister, the Chinese Government expects no interference or protest from the diplomatic body.

The Government further explains that prior to a new Russian Government legally formed no recognition will be extended to any representatives of Russia.

PERU READY TO NEGOTIATE.

Report That She Wants to Discuss Border Problems with Chile.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 23.—A disposition on the part of Peru to enter into negotiations with Chile for the purpose of reaching a settlement of the Tacna-Arica controversy has been communicated to the Chilean Government, according to the newspaper Mercurio, which says it has received this information from "high authority." Federico Puga Borne, former chief of the Chilean Cabinet, has returned to this city from Lima, and it is said by the newspaper that he has brought a letter written by a Senator close to the Peruvian Government, in which the conditions under which negotiations might be opened are outlined.

These conditions, it is said, are that Chile shall withdraw her garrisons in the northern part of the country, take steps to counteract any hostility toward Peruvian elements, and accept in principle arbitration of the Tacna-Arica question. The journal adds that parliamentary circles attach little importance to these suggestions and that it is thought that the Chilean Government will form the same judgment.

QUITS SCIENTIST CHURCH.

Beecher's Granddaughter Will Practice Faith Independently.

In the future Mrs. Margaret Beecher White, granddaughter of Henry Ward Beecher, will be "an independent Christian Scientist." She has resigned from First Church of Christ Scientist, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, of which she was a charter member, and also from the Mother Church in Boston.

Mrs. Beecher will continue as a practitioner at her home, 101 West Eighty-fifth Street, but she will drop the use of the letters "C. S." after her name.

"It is just a matter of growth, and entirely personal," said Mrs. White yesterday to a TIMES reporter. "After eighteen years of faithful service to the Christian Science Church I came to the conclusion that I would be freer to practice the teachings of Mary Baker Eddy outside than inside the organization."

TODAY'S WEDDINGS.

ASSERTS DEMOCRATS AIDED BUSINESS MAN

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

The Republican Party claims that the Democratic Administration has been inefficient, that its work has been a failure, and gives this as one of the reasons why the Democrats should be defeated. One of the departments of the Government, on whose able management depends much of the prosperity of the country, is the Department of Commerce; therefore, I requested Secretary J. W. Alexander to discuss the work of his department so that the people might judge whether it had been a success under Democratic management. He said:

"The achievements of the Department of Commerce during more than seven and a half years of Democratic administration constitute a record of which the American people, and especially the interests directly affected, may well be proud. It is a record of constructive, progressive, forward-looking statesmanship, and the development of our internal and external trade has rendered service to the American business man, the value of which it would be hard to estimate. I can speak of the achievements of this department more freely because the policies which were formulated and carried out and have been marked with such great success were for the most part under the leadership and direction of my predecessor, Hon. William C. Redfield, who served as Secretary of Commerce during nearly seven years of the Wilson Administration.

"Under its first Democratic Secretary it became the chief purpose of the department to convince the business and industrial leaders of the country that it would be conducted as a service for the American business men and that it should be freely used as the vehicle with which to reach the markets of the world. The wisdom of that policy has been abundantly proved by results. The American business man today knows that, no matter what his problem may be or in what field he operates, the Department of Commerce stands ready at all times to assist him with its expert counsel and that it is always on the alert to promote his interests both at home and abroad.

"In the field of domestic trade it has developed new industries, assisted in the solution of a vast number of manufacturing and production problems. In the extension of our foreign trade it has helped to introduce American products in every land; it has aided in the solution of questions relating to customs, credit, methods of shipment and types of goods; it has sent its trade scouts and investigators to the remotest corners of the earth to find markets for our products and to develop new fields of enterprise for our finance, industry and trade.

Points to Our Great War Trade.

"With the outbreak of the war in Europe the United States became the world's greatest creditor nation. Possessed of the plants, labor and products necessary to supply the wants of mankind, the nations turned to the United States for goods and the means to pay for them. As a result the country's foreign commerce expanded with amazing rapidity. In the fiscal year 1913 the volume of our trade amounted to $4,279,000,000, exports being valued at $2,466,000,000 and imports at $1,813,000,000, leaving an apparent trade balance in our favor of $650,000,000. This apparent balance, however, was practically neutralized by the expenditures of our American tourists in Europe and by the payment to Europe of large sums annually as interest on European investments in the United States and in high freight rates to the owners of foreign vessels carrying our commerce.

"It would be interesting to follow step by step the development of our foreign trade, but suffice it to say that the apparent favorable trade balance has become real and increasingly larger each year until it reached during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, approximately $13,350,000,000, an unprecedented total, the trade balance in favor of the United States being about $3,000,000,000.

"During the war the Department of Commerce was among the most active branches of the Government and performed invaluable service. Its entire resources and personnel were placed unreservedly at the service of the military authorities. Its Bureaus of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Standards, Census, Fisheries and Coast and Geodetic Survey were particularly helpful in the collection of information and the solution of industrial and military problems, while the Bureau of Navigation, Lighthouses and Steamboat Inspection Service rendered invaluable service to our shipping.

"In the rehabilitation of the nation's commercial structure the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has been the instrumentality through which service of the greatest value has been extended to the business men of the nation.

"A complete reorganization of this bureau was effected shortly after the beginning of the first Wilson Administration, and three new services were inaugurated:

"1. Commercial Attaché Service.

"2. Trade Commissioner Service.

"3. District and Co-operative Offices.

"Our Commercial Attachés and Trade Commissioners are stationed in the principal world centres. The scope of their work covers practically the whole field of commercial, industrial and financial endeavors in the territory to which they are assigned. These ambassadors of business are in high repute in the countries where they operate and their service has proved so valuable that it has attracted the attention of the nation's leading commercial competitors and they have established a similar service.

Limited by Lack of Funds.

"I regret to say that the activities of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and its service to the business men of the country in domestic and foreign fields are greatly limited by the inadequate appropriation made for that service.

"The service of the Bureau of Standards in the development of our commerce and in the solution of the war problem has been of the greatest value. It promotes industrial research, aids manufacturers to secure accurate measurements in instruments and to standardize the method of measuring and testing. It assists in the fixing of standards of quality and materials and the use of honest weights and measures in daily trade. Federal, State and municipal governments, public utility corporations, educational institutions and industrial concerns are all embraced within the scope of its work.

"The development of optical glass was one of its greatest war accomplishments. The war shut off the foreign supply. Scientists of the Bureau of Standards immediately attacked the problem of increasing the domestic supply of optical glass, initiated scientific research, developed and improved many points of technique and placed the results of their work at the disposal of the American industry, and, finally, produced glass of high grade in numerous varieties and in quantity to meet the requirements of our military establishment.

"The Bureau of the Census has become, under the present Administration, one of the most valuable instruments of the Government in the development of the country's business organization. During the last seven years it has been brought into closer touch with the business interests of the country than ever before in its history. More efficient and rapid methods in the collection and distribution of statistics have been introduced to meet the urgent request of business men for more up-to-date information.

"The bureau is now engaged in taking the fourteenth decennial census, the most stupendous peacetime work ever undertaken by the Federal Government. In order to perform it in the most efficient and economical manner and to complete it within the limited period prescribed by law the bureau has been organized along strictly business lines. It has drawn on the experience of the past, corrected in a large measure faults of the administration, availed itself of the latest and most approved machinery and appliances, and the work is progressing in the most satisfactory manner and bids fair to be completed and all the information gathered made available within the fourteenth decennial census period.

"The Bureau of Navigation and the Steamboat Inspection Service are charged with the enforcement of our navigation laws, the inspection and the officering and manning of our ships, and despite the inadequate facilities at their command they are meeting all the requirements of this service satisfactorily.

"The Bureau of Fisheries, by scientific research and experiment and the propagation of food fishes, is rendering a great service by adding to the food supply of our country.

"The Lighthouse Service is rendering a great and necessary service to our water borne interests. It would not be possible to measure the value of this service in dollars and cents, as it not only affords protection to property but to lives as well.

"These are some of the services rendered by the Department of Commerce to the country under the present Administration.

Extols Daring of Exporters.

"The growth of our foreign commerce during and since the World War is marvelous. In view of the unsettled conditions in Europe and the demand for long time credits to meet the requirements of our foreign trade, I am amazed at the resourcefulness of those stout hearted, far seeing exporters, who thus far have overcome all difficulties and have kept the avenues of world trade open and provided markets for our surplus products.

"It has been the effort of this department to aid in stabilizing business conditions in this transmission period and to inspire confidence in the soundness of our economic situation. With no lack of raw materials, credit available for all the essential industries, labor fully employed and a ready market for the output of our mills and factories, and if the prices are readjusted on a reasonable basis to meet the demand of a discriminating consumer, there is nothing discouraging in the business outlook.

"I am a Democrat, I take just pride in the accomplishments of this Administration. The World War was the greatest calamity that ever befell the human race. It was the paramount duty of the statesmanship of the world to provide against such another calamity, hence I followed the proceedings of the Versailles Peace conference with absorbing interest and apart from any party considerations or the fact that our great President had borne such a conspicuous part in the covenant of the League of Nations I felt that in that great document there was a promise of peace between nations for generations to come and that it was our plain duty promptly to become a party in the league of Nations and do our part in healing the wounds of the war and restoring peace and prosperity to a war stricken world."

VIERECK RUSHES TO HARDING'S AID

Challenges Roosevelt's Charge That Senator Seeks Un-American Support.

DECLARES HIS OWN LOYALTY

Ex-Editor of Fatherland Says Democratic Administration Sought His Help.

George Sylvester Viereck of 202 East Forty-second Street, editor of The American Monthly, and who was editor of The Fatherland during the war, yesterday rushed to the defense of Senator Harding, the Republican Presidential candidate. It has been charged during the present campaign that the Republican nominee is receiving the support of pro-Germans, and in a recent speech at Syracuse Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, dwelt upon the subject. Yesterday Mr. Viereck sent to Mr. Roosevelt a telegram, in which he said:

"In your speech of Sept. 3 in Syracuse you refer to 'a small but dangerout element which was not loyal during the war.' I know of no such element. You score Senator Harding for 'seeking the support of un-American elements in the electorate,' and you cite my indorsement of his candidacy as an evidence of your infamous assertion. It is clear that you accept at par the brass checks of British propagandists.

"Had you consulted the fact, you would have discovered that the Administration of which you were a member never challenged my loyalty. In spite of the autocratic powers conferred upon the Postmaster General, it did not interfere with my publications. On the contrary, it both sought and accepted my co-operation during the war. We are for Harding because Harding is for America. You are willing to give John Bull six votes to our one. Harding refuses to sacrifice one fraction of our sovereignty to Mr. Wilson's British-made League of Nations.

"Evidently Mr. Harding's love for America is six times greater than yours. If Mr. Harding is a 100 per cent. American, you are a 16 per cent. American, or, to give the devil his due, a sixteen and two-thirds of 1 per cent. American. Once the issue before the American people was sound money against inferior money. Now the issue is sound Americanism against pseudo-Americanism. Once the issue was 16 to 1. Now the issue is 6 to 1.

"In neither case was there any doubt as to where men of my race stood. Between Great Britain and America, and America and any other nation, we are for America. Between Cox and Harding, we are for Harding. God helping us, we can do no other."

Mr. Viereck also sent a telegram to the Chairman of the Senate committee investigating campaign funds at Washington, which read:

"From a dispatch published this morning it appears that you questioned William B. Thompson as to whether I was in the employ of the Republican Committee. Permit me to state that I do not know Thompson from Adam. I have neither sought nor received one cent of Republican money. I serve no master, save my conscience and my country."

PLANS COMPULSORY LABOR.

German Government Getting Data on Industrial Conscription.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—The German Government has begun seriously to consider the question of the introduction of industrial conscription. The Ministry of National Economy is studying the matter and drawing up an exhaustive report on which the Government will act.

This step will be part of the great economic and industrial program which is in contemplation. It is beginning to be recognized much more fully that the general position of Germany cannot be retrieved merely by vast measures of taxation, but that it is necessary to harness the whole strength of the nation to its task. The nationalization of the coal mines and the vast quantity of coal required necessitate careful organizing and increasing of labor in the mines; but it is not only in that sphere that compulsory labor will be required. It is planned to employ it to bring about intensive production in all spheres of Germany's economic life. It will certainly take a powerful Government to push through such scheme.

ROOT PLAN PART OF LEAGUE.

Senator Walsh Attacks Harding for Picturing It as Substitute.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Following up his attack on Senator Harding's contention that the covenant of the League of Nations was in conflict with the Constitution of the United States, Senator Walsh of Montana today assailed the Republican assertion that the world court proposed by Senator Harding would take the place of the League.

Senator Walsh said that the world court was provided for by the covenant and that the commission of which Elihu Root was a member and which formulated a plan for the court "borrowed not only the ideas but the very language of the covenant." He said in part:

"That the opposition which has been so industriously fomented against the League of Nations is almost entirely partisan in character has had further confirmation in the comment made by the Republican press and the Wilson baiters on the world court plan, devised by the commission of which Senator Root was a member.

"Without perhaps making the direct assertion, every subtle effort is put forth to impress the public with the view that the world court is a substitute for and is to displace the League of Nations.

"These statements must certainly astound any one who knows that the organization of the world court is expressly provided for by the covenant and that it contemplated that the court and the Council should function contemporaneously, the former disposing of controversies that are justiciable in character and the latter dealing with those that are not.

"It is a most significant fact that none of the League antagonists have entered upon a critical analysis of the plan proposed by the Root commission, if it may be so denominated. The comment that has been indulged in is decidedly friendly. It is enough that it was or may be considered to be the work of Senator Root. It must be good. Comment is superfluous. As to the covenant—alas, it is Wilson's child."

PRESIDENTIAL BETS LAG.

Betting on the outcome of the Presidential election is at low ebb in the financial district. Those who have watched the odds of other years say that they cannot remember when there has been so little money wagered. The chief betting now is confined to what are called doubtful States. W. L. Darnell & Co. yesterday placed a wager of $3,500 to $2,500 that Harding would carry New York State by 175,000. There was a wager of $2,500 at even money that Harding would carry Ohio by 30,000.

The odds on the national race remain unchanged. Harding supporters are willing to wager 4 to 1 that he will be elected, while the Democrats are asking 6 to 1.

A Governmental Distinction

AT frequent intervals since the war ended considerable publicity has been given to the government standardization of motor trucks.

We take this opportunity to point out a salient fact in this connection. Of all motor vehicles classified as standard, four types—2, 3, 4 and 5—are designated as the motor truck class. In the first three of these types, namely, 2, 3 and 4, several different makes of motor trucks are listed as standard government equipment in each case.

But in type 5 (Five tons and over, including special engineer trucks) the Mack is the only truck named as standard. In other words, the "Bull Dog" is the one and only truck permanently retained by the U. S. Army as standard heavy-service equipment.

The Liberty truck, which was used in the war, was solely the product of a concentrated effort toward quantity production to meet a great emergency.

These facts are more or less common knowledge today. It is not generally known, however, that shortly after the United States declared war noted government engineers conducted exhaustive motor tests which the Mack engine alone survived. The U. S. Engineers requisitioned such quantities of Mack heavy-duty chassis that our production of all light models—1½ and 2 tons—had to be suspended during the war term.

Our greatest military men state that there is no real difference between military and commercial motor transportation. In both classes of service the best equipment is necessary to record the greatest possible ton-mileage within a given time.

LEYGUES NAMED FRENCH PREMIER

Millerand Appoints Clemenceau's Minister of Marine to Head the Cabinet.

POLICY NOT TO BE CHANGED

LEYGUES FOUGHT U-BOATS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine in Clemenceau's War Cabinet, is the new Premier and Foreign Minister. The rest of the Millerand Cabinet remains unchanged.

Does this mean that with characteristic firmness President Millerand has lost no time in beginning to put into practice his expressed intention of strengthening the Presidential influence? Actually he is now in the position of an American President with a Cabinet chosen wholly by himself, pledged to carry out his policies and with a chief whose past career warrants the assumption that he will venture on no inconvenient independent step.

That at least is how the situation appears on the face of things, but there is one factor in it which may modify this view compeltely. It is that except for the formal session tomorrow to receive the new President's message and the declaration of the new Premier Parliament will not be sitting until the Autumn session opens at the beginning of November. That is to say that the present arrangement may be just a stopgap destined to preserve continuity and prevent confusion during the period of parliamentary interregnum rather than a deliberate challenge of established usage on the part of the President.

The suggestion that some such temporary solution might be adopted has been put forward consistently in the newspapers of all shades of political opinion during the last three days along side the more general expectation that Briand would suggest Millerand as Premier, and it is significant that hardly any of them appeared to think that the temporary Cabinet implied an attempt at Presidential supremacy on American lines.

One thing, at least, is certain—M. Briand and his friends will not allow the Millerand-Leygues combination to rule unchallenged once Parliament reassembles. It has been common knowledge during the past few days that Briand had practically completed the formation of a powerful Cabinet capable of securing an adequate majority in the Chamber. His friends were confident that he would be the first choice as Millerand's successor.

I learn that what actually happened was that the President asked M. Briand if he was willing to tke his place as Premier and Foreign Minister at the head of unchanged cabinet. Briand declined, not unnaturally. On an ordinary occasion he would have replied, "If you don't accept me on my own terms, you will find that no Premier who is willing to take the office of yours will get a majority in the Chamber." Generally in ministerial circles the French Premiership is a little choice for this very reason. But now Parliament is to all practical intent on a vacation, and, even dmitting that Briand is strong enough to overthrow Leygues' Cabinet he cannot do so before November.

It is quite likely, too, that Briand himself recognized a lack of wisdom from a antional viewpoint of pressing for a wholesale ministerial change in the present circumstances, that is the parliamentary interregnum referred to by a communique issued this afternoon from the Presidency, after three years in the wilderness, an experienced politician like Briand can afford to wait si xweeks longer, and it may be taken for granted that he will not spend the whole period at his favorite pastime of fishing. At least not fishing for fish.

PARIS, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—During the consultation between President Millerand and M. Leygues today they found themselves in agreement in the idea that a Cabinet whose policy had been approved by both Chambers of the Parliament ought to be maintained.

It is recalled here that M. Leygues has an American son-in-law, Paul Rockwell, an Atlanta newspaper man who served with the French Foreign Legion during the war, and in 1916 married Jeanne Leygues, the new Premier's daughter, in Paris.

M. Paleologue, chief Secretary of the Foreign Office, resigned his position today. In a letter to President Millerand M. Paleologue said that when he accepted the appointment he considered that his duty ought to be at an end when M. Millerand (then Premier) left the Quai d'Orsay. The letter adds that "the absolute confidence you showed in me since, and, if I may say so, the close manner in which you have associated me in the daily work of your political conceptions can only confirm my original resolution."

LEYGUES IN SEVEN CABINETS.

New Premier Was a Leader in War on German Submarines.

Georges Leygues had been six times Minister of State and was well known as a lawyer and a writer on historical, political, economic and purely literary subjects, and also as an aggressive member of the Republican group of the Left, when on the night of Nov. 13, 1917, M. Clemenceau hastily summoned him to meet him at the Elysée on the following day.

The Painlevé Cabinet, with its passive resistance to the defeatists headed by Caillaux, had fallen, and President Poincaré believed that the Chamber was then in the spirit, after the revelations of the Bonnet Rouge affair, to back any Government which would bring about the prosecution of the internal enemies of the country. At that time M. Leygues held the post of President of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber and M. Clemenceau was President of the Senate Commission for the Army.

At their interview with President Poincaré, about noon on the 14th, there were also present René Renault, Raoul Péret, who received a few votes for President at the Versailles caucus last Wednesday, and the three former war Premiers, MM. Viviani, Ribot and Briand. M. Clemenceau had sat up all night writing out his program. It composed sixty pages.

"How would you explain it in a few words?" asked M. Poincaré.

"To purge France of traitors," answered the Tiger. "beating Germany will follow as a matter of course."

They examined and debated the new program, and the President asked M. Clemenceau to form his Cabinet in accordance with it. The list was announced on Nov. 17. On it M. Leygues was down for the portfolio of Marine.

It was not until the following January that the world began to hear of his work. Although not one of the founders, he became the most enthusiastic member of the Interallied Naval Council, and early in the new year it was learned that, from Nov. 29 till early in December, he had presided over, at the Ministry of Marine, the Naval Technical Committee of the Council which laid out a formidable offensive and defensive programme to circumvent the German U-boat campaign.

M. Leygues believed in a certain measure of publicity, quite contrary to the former practice of the Ministry of Marine. On May 26 he made public his first report, which, while giving no definite figures which would be calculated to encourage Germany and discourage the Allies, announced that in the preceding month America and England had built 40,000 tons more of shipping than the total losses brought about by the enemy's campaign. He followed out this system through the war, giving more and more details as circumstances of saftey warranted. On the 25th of the following June he categorically declared that the U-boat menace was at an end.

In Paris M. Leygues played a prominent part in the professional ceremonies and social courtesies which were extended to Secretary Daniels, American naval officers, and finally to President Wilson. As far as his own department was concerned he seconded Premier Clemenceau in demanding retribution for Germany's failure to carry out, first the armistice terms and then those of the Versailles Treaty, and demanded ship for ship for the German fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow; but a month before he left office he was ready to compromise on that point. When the famous Clemenceau Ministry retired on the election of M. Deschanel to the Presidency last January, M. Leygues went back to his seat in the Chamber, on the Republican Left.

Georges Jean Claude Leygues was born Nov. 28, 1858, at Villeneuve-sur-Lot. He was graduated at Toulouse and Bordeaux at an early age, and comparatively early entered political life. He was elected Deputy by the Department of Lot-et-Garonne in 1884, the year before the Seine elected M. Millerand, and has been continuously reëlected by the same district ever since. He held the portfolio of Public Instruction in the Dupuy Cabinet in 1804, was Minister of the Interior in the first Ribot Cabinet of 1895, again Minister of Public Instruction in the second Dupuy Cabinet in 1898, and the next year was one of those famous Frenchmen, including the newly elected President of France, who formed the Waldeck-Rousseau "Cabinet of Republican Defense." In 1906 he was Minister for the Colonies in the Sarrien Cabinet, and then after eleven years joined the Clemenceau Government, in the most threatening period of the war.

He is a Grand Cross in the orders Saints-Maurice et Lazare, of Saint-André, of Sainte Anne, of Elizabeth la Catholique, of the Etoile Polaire, and of the Takova. He is a famous traveller and Alpine climber. He has also received several academic honors and honorary, as well as earned, sporting trophies.

M. Leygues's literary work in his chosen subjects consists chiefly of a series of monographs and the volume, "School and Life."

William MacDonald, associate editor of The Nation, who is in charge of the preliminary arrangements of the Committee of One Hundred on Ireland which has been formed for an impartial investigation and public report on atrocities in Ireland, yesterday sent cablegrams to Mrs. Terence MacSwiney, wife of the Lord Mayor of Cork; Mrs. Thomas MacCurtain, widow of the late Lord Mayor of Cork; Mrs. Swanzy, mother of Police Inspector Swanzy, who met death a few weeks ago at Lisburn, and Sir Horace Plunkett, promoter of the Irish Dominion Government idea, asking them to come to the United States to appear before the commission at its sittings at Washington.

A similar invitation also has been cabled to the Chairman of the Town Council, Balbriggan, asking him to appear before the commission and testify regarding the "shooting up" of the town last Thursday by English police.

This is the first direct effort to get witnesses from Ireland or England for the committee. It will be followed by invitations to others who may be presumed to be in possession of important facts regardless of their individual affiliations in Ireland or England.

The members of the committee are choosing a commission of five members to conduct the investigation. The commission will hold public hearings in Washington or elsewhere and report their findings to the full committee. The personnel of the commission may be announced and the sittings of the commission begun in about ten days or two weeks.

NEW ZIONIST APPEAL.

Executive Office Calls for "Supreme Sacrifice" for National Home.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—An appeal to all Jews to "prove themselves worthy of their historic duty" and help establish the Jewish National Home in Palestine is made in a manifesto to the Jewish people of the world, just published by the executive office of the Zionist organization.

Explaining that the Supreme Council of the great powers has recognized the claims of the Jewish people to the Holy Land, the appeal points out that the Zionist organization is prepared to accept the co-operation of every other Jewish body, and says that only a supreme sacrifice on the part of all Jews will insure the realization of the hope deferred so many centuries. Immediate necessities for the development of Palestine are emphasized in the appeal, and special promise is held out of the spiritual regeneration resulting from the establishment of Palestine as an educational centre.

At a special conference today of English representatives of the "Ito" (Jewish territorial organization), the movement founded by Israel Zangwill in 1905 when he broke away from the Zionists, it was decided to co-operate with the Zionists in the development of Palestine, provided the mandate assured the Jews an autonomous basis for development. A resolution to this effect was forwarded to Earl Curzon, the Foreign Secretary, and the League of Nations. The chief speakers at the conference were Mr. Zangwill and Dr. David Jochelman.

Rubber Growers Plan to Cut Output, Raise Prices

LONDON, Sept. 24.—In order to raise the price of raw rubber, drastic steps are contemplated by the Rubber Growers' Association, which represents about one-third of the owners of the 3,000,000 acres of rubber under cultivation.

The association suggests to members and to other plantation owners that they so reduce their tappings of rubber trees as to effect a reduction in the output of 25 per cent.

COX AGAIN ATTACKS HAYS'S 'CONSPIRACY'

RAPS HARDING ON IRELAND

Position Ambiguous, Like That on League, He Says—Talks in Denver on Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 24.—Governor Cox had cordial receptions all along the line today as he carried his campaign into Colorado—a State which the Republicans say they will carry because of opposition to the present Administration.

It was a day in which the dramatic held the stage. In the early afternoon Governor Cox spoke from the same platform in Pueblo where President Wilson made his last address on his tour in behalf of the League of Nations, a year ago almost to the day.

In the evening Governor Cox spoke in the Auditorium in Denver, where soldiers called upon to keep order in connection with a street railway strike had been quartered.

It has been the boast of the Governor that in his six years as Chief Magistrate of Ohio he never called upon the soldiers to preserve order in industrial disputes in Ohio, but invoked instead the Golden Rule. He repeated that statement here tonight, and said that he was sure that his policy could be made applicable to the nation.

At Pueblo the Governor devoted most of his address to the League of Nations and to charges that Chairman Hays had sent out "scouts" whose duty it was to instruct Republican papers in the art of misrepresentation and suppression of the arguments presented by Cox.

Governor Cox produced the name of still another agent of Hays, whom he called Stephens. He asked the editors of Republican papers in this section to deny if they dared his statement that there had been a meeting at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, at which Stephens appeared and advised them as to the most effective methods to stand off the Cox peril.

On the subject of misrepresentation, he said:

"There is a deliberate attempt to deceive the people. More than that, there is a deliberate attempt to prevent, so far as it can be prevented, the newspapers through the Western country from publishing notices of our coming and from publishing notices of our speeches. Four days before I arrive at any city in the West, two scouts appear, and go to the Republican newspapers and say to them, 'Don't say much about Cox coming to town, and when he comes, ask him questions, but don't publish his answers; and then when he has left town, say that he had a poor meeting, and that he was coldly received.'

"Those fellows are traveling on the expense money gathered for corruption purposes in this campaign, but I ask you whether it is fair for any political boss to try and keep from the people of the United States the facts that come from both sides of this question. When you try a case in court, both sides are given the privilege of presenting the facts to the jury. That is all that we ask; but they know, the Senatorial oligarchy knows perfectly well, that they dare not permit the public to have the facts.

No Such Thing as "Wilson League."

"Now, my friend says that the second question is whether I stand for the Wilson covenant of the League of Nations. Mr. Editor, there isn't any such thing either to stand for or to stand against. It would be just as proper to say that it was a Taft covenant. President Taft advocated it before President Wilson advocated it. The covenant of the League of Nations, if you please, is an affair of the processes and the development of civilization. Why, the soldiers brought it back pressed into their hearts and they brought it back on the tips of their bayonets.

"In your creed of hate you would attempt to make your reading constituency believe that this is the affair of one man, one man in the world who attempts, through pride of authorship or through arbitrary spirit or through some other impulse which you improperly and unjustly attribute to him, that he wants to fasten it upon the affairs of the mankind of the world."

"Mr. Editor, I think you will agree with me that it is as much a Taft covenant as it is a Wilson covenant.

"Isn't it a striking coincidence that just one year ago tomorrow this great statesman, an outstanding figure in the affairs of the world, delivered his last public address upon this rostrum? Who knows, it may be—but, God grant, it will not be—his last public utterance on the rostrum?

"He picked up the torch as it was thrown down by the 81,000 American soldiers that now sleep in France. He picked up the torch of civilization as it fell from their hands, paralyzed by the wounds of battle, and went to the peace table. He said, 'This war was fought honorably and it must be concluded honorably.' Then when he came back and faced a conspiracy, he went to the people of America.

"It has been decreed that in this campaign I should assume leadership in this great cause. Thank God that my strength has been conserved and I have been enabled to preach the gospel from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific, and I believe that my strength will be continued until the 2d day of November, 1920, and then, I am convinced, that the League of Nations, not a Wilson League, not a Taft League, not a Root League, not a British League, not a French League, but a League in behalf of the humanity of the world, will have been adopted."

Governor Cox said further on this point:

"If you ask me whose League of Nations this is, I'll give you my honest opinion. This is a league that God Almighty Himself intended should work out the changes between the old order and the new order in the world."

Governor Cox then took up the subject of Article X, and accused the Republican leaders of absolute misrepresentation of it, adding that he wanted to make a fighting talk on the subject.

"How do you construe Article X.," he asked. "Why, I'll tell you. It simply says that territorial burglary shall cease in the world. It provides that in the event of external aggression such aggression shall be construed as an unfriendly act in the face of the League, and that the moral strength of the world shall be directed to restrain external aggression."

Attacks Harding on Ireland.

At the meeting in Denver tonight Governor Cox assailed the position taken yesterday by Senator Harding on the question of Irish freedom. He said that he did not understand the meaning of the Senator's expression, "it is not a question for official America," this because the Senator took no part in framing as ambiguous as his position on the League of Nations. Nor did Governor Cox think it in good taste, he said, for Senator Harding to make allusion to the resolution of sympathy with Ireland, adopted by the United States Senate, ing that expression.

"It was one of the 1,136 roll calls which he dodged," said the Governor. He then restated his position on Ireland, which is that he will bring the matter to the attention of the League as soon as America enters it, if he is elected President.

Going back to the subject of newspaper representation, Governor Cox charged that Chairman Hays was "adopting the tactics of the sneaking guerrilla in attempting to poison the wells of information."

"It is shameful," the Governor went on, "that the funds of the Republican organization should be used to make this kind of a campaign at a time when humanity is to pass on a question involving more interests and more people than at any other time in the world. Rich men living in comfort who have contributed to the Republican Campaign Fund certainly ought to be proud of the fact that they made it possible for Hays to conduct this sort of fight. Hays is afraid to have both sides presented to the jury; he is afraid of the facts.

DENVER, Sept. 24 (Associated Press.)—The name of President Wilson evoked a demonstration when Governor Cox told of "malignant" attacks which he said were made upon the President by Republican leaders. The Governor's address was interrupted while hundreds rose and cheered, and finally gave three cheers for the President.

"The name of Woodrow Wilson will be chanted by children of nations of the earth when the names of Henry Cabot Lodge and his associates of the Senatorial oligarchy have been buried in the oblivion of time," the Governor said.

Hecklers gave the Governor a lively time. Once a man in the gallery shouted that he favored a separate peace with Germany. Governor Cox said: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"Have you noticed that pro-Germans in New York are to support Senator Harding because he favors a separate peace in Germany?" asked the Governor, cutting off further interruptions, while the crowd roared approval.

Cox and Harding Greet American Legion; Cleveland Ready for Convention Opening

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—Indications today are that the largest crowd that ever visited Cleveland will be here for the parade of the American Legion, which will be held Monday afternoon, the opening day of the three days' convention. Requests are being received from all parts of the State for reserved seats along the line of march.

The parade will be more of a pageant typifying the spirit of the legion and the spirit with which the United States went into the war, Franklin d'Oller, National Commander, declared.

"The American Legion is looking forward rather than backward," he said. "The men who will march here will be marching again for ideals, and those ideals are service to the country and to comrades."

Messages of greeting were received today from Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican Presidential candidate; Governor James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate; Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

After welcoming the Legion to Ohio, Governor Cox's message read in part:

"It is my hope that every request and recommendation made, and to be made, by your body will receive the serious consideration of all parties interested. Nothing would displease me more than to see our Government and our people forget the great service rendered by your members in the successful war struggle in behalf of civilization. I hope the activities of your organization will assist in keeping fresh in the minds of our people the duty and obligation our country owes to those who served in time of need.

"I sincerely trust that your organization will continue to maintain and strive for high ideals, and that it will live, grow and flourish, and serve as a guide and inspiration to our future generations."

"Our soldiers, sailors and marines fought, not as Republicans or Democrats, but as citizens for the preservation of American rights and perpetuation of American ideals.

"Adhering to the non-partisan spirit of co-operation shown by all Americans during the war, the American Legion happily has expressed the determination to remain free from party politics. You cast your ballots not collectively but as individuals, but your service with the colors has made you even more conscious of the necessity for preservation of our nationality. To the spirit of the American Legion America now looks for leadership in maintaining the rights and ideals for which you fought."

General John J. Pershing also wired a message of greeting, which read in part:

"On this occasion of your second annual convention I wish to congratulate you upon the splendid work you have accomplished during the last year.

"The times have changed little since a year ago, since the world remains disturbed and men are restless and impatient. I ask you to keep one thought clearly in your mind. You men fought the war and saved our country from disaster. Now face each problem with a resolute, unwavering determination that the fruits of our victory shall not have been in vain."

MACSWINEY FAMILY ATTACKS BRITISH PRESS

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A statement issued today over the signature of members of the family of Terence MacSwiney charges the British press with distorting reports concerning the Lord Mayor's condition. It asserts that the Government asked the Newspaper Proprietors' Association that "if certain information should come to their knowledge to withhold it from publication." The statement announces also that the MacSwiney family will cease to give to the British press any statements concerning the Lord Mayor. Frequent bulletins, however, still will be issued to foreign press representatives in London.

It was stated at the offices of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association today that no communication had been received from the Government concerning Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

At the commencement of the struggle at Brixton Prison," says the statement issued by the MacSwiney family, "the English press treated the matter as fairly as could be expected, but as the interest of the public of England became stirred by the press reports the Government became apprehensive and issued a note to the Newspaper Association, and after that to the family and Father Dominic (the Lord Mayor's chaplain), saying we have all been victims of this campaign of falsehood."

Denial is made at the Home Office that the Government has made any attempt to influence the newspapers.

Mary MacSwiney, after visiting her brother, the Lord Mayor, at Brixton Prison this afternoon, stated he was very much weaker.

The report issued by the Home Office this morning said that Lord Mayor MacSwiney's condition was virtually unchanged.

Tonight's bulletin, issued by the Irish Self-Determination League, said Lord Mayor MacSwiney was extremely exhausted and suffering from severe pains in the head. He still was conscious.

HARDING'S VOTE ON IRELAND

Against Expression of Sympathy by Senate, Says White.

Senator Harding's record of voting on the Irish question when it was before the United States Senate was made public yesterday by George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. When the question first came up, Chairman White said, Senator Harding failed to vote, and when it came up the second time he voted against it. The Chairman said:

"In speaking yesterday at Marion on the Irish question Senator Harding said: 'We voted an expression of that sympathy in the Senate at the time the peace delegates were conferring in Paris.'

"This is a disingenuous statement and is intended to catch the Irish vote. The facts are, as disclosed on page 733 of the Congressional Record of 1919, that not only did Senator Harding not vote for that expression of sympathy for Ireland in the Senate at that time (June 6, 1919), but that some months later, when the question was again put up to the Senate by Senator Gerry, he is recorded on the 18th day of March, on page 4,830 of the Congressional Record of 1920 as voting against it."

DUBLIN POST OFFICE RAIDED AND ROBBED

LYNCH INQUIRY IN SECRET

DUBLIN, Sept. 24.—The general post office was raided and robbed by armed men last night.

The miscreants blew open the safe and decamped with several thousand pounds in money, comprising the wages and bonus of the pay office staff.

The Government and the corporation are at issue over the inquiry into the death of Councilor Lynch, a prominent Limerick Sinn Feiner, who was shot on Wednesday morning in his apartment at the Royal Exchange Hotel, Dublin.

The City Coroner, who is a corporation official, was ordered by the corporation to hold the inquest, but was forbidden to do so by General Sir Nevil Macready, commander of military forces in Ireland, who in the capacity of Lord Justice, in the absence of the Lord Lieutenant, directed a military inquiry instead.

Today the military inquiry was opened, but from it were excluded the Lord Mayor and Attorney Patrick Lynch, who is representing the next of kin. The press was told that part of the proceedings would be secret and that it would be informed later what stages of it might be attended.

Council for Lynch's brother, who is an army sergeant major stationed in London, has demanded an inquest.

Strong public feeling has been aroused over the affair, the Sinn Feiners declaring "the shooting of Lynch in his bedroom by a dozen armed soldiers is the first step in the policy of getting rid of Sinn Fein leaders."

The military version is that Lynch resisted arrest with a revolver and that the shooting was inevitable.

MANNIX TALKS OF PEACE.

Suggests England Withdraw Troops and State Best Terms for Ireland.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Archbishop Mannix, the Australian prelate, in the course of his speech at the dinner tendered him by the Catholic Bishops and priests of Portsmouth, Cloyne and Southwark last night, denied he was an agitator or hated Englishmen. He admired and respected Englishmen, he stated.

The Archbishop urged that if England would withdraw the troops from Ireland and tell the Irish the most she was prepared to give, consistent with the safety of the empire, Ireland would be reconciled and peace and friendship would be restored.

GENERAL FIRED ON IN CORK.

Commander in South Ireland Escapes Injury and Returns Fire.

DUBLIN, Sept. 24.—Official announcement is made of an attempt to assassinate Major General Strickland, commander in Southern Ireland, while the General was motoring through the streets of Cork this evening. He was not injured. The General returned the fire, it is believed, with effect.

The automobile containing three or four men, coming down Patrick Street hill from the direction of the military barracks, was fired on this evening by nine or ten men with revolvers. The occupants of the automobile returned the fire.

A 10-year-old boy, a bystander, received a flesh wound in the arm. The members of the attacking party fled up the hill and apparently escaped.

To add to the disturbed situation in Cork, a serious epidemic of typhoid fever has broken out and all the hospitals are filled with patients.

HARDING FOR THRIFT TO CUT LIVING COSTS

ASSAILS SHIPPING BOARD

Refuses Los Angeles Request to Set Aside Day for Study of Treaty and League.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 24.—Reduction of the high cost of living rests in the practice of thrift, increased efficiency of production, reduced cost of Government and, above all, determination not to live beyond one's means, Senator Harding said today in an address from his front porch to a delegation of 1,000 West Virginians.

"I wish I could be specific, my countrymen, on this point," the Senator said. "It is a very easy thing to stand before a company of one's countrymen and inveigh against the high cost of living, cry out against profiteering and say we mean to bring living costs down. But I won't cheat my fellow countrymen in order to win their favor in this campaign."

The Senator denounced Government ownership of railroads.

"We don't believe in the paralyzing hand of the Government being placed upon any American activity that ought to be in the hands of private initiative and genius," he continued. "We have witnessed inflation of the currency, enormous expansion of credits. America wants to get back and I will emphasize the words 'get back,' for America wants once more to get back to stability and dependability and know where we are in the normal pursuits of this Republic.

"The Republican appeal is going to continue to be to the confidence of America. We do not intend to discuss petty things unworthy of consideration in a great national campaign. The Republican Party wants either the confidence and the faith of America or it does not desire to assume the responsibilities of government in this trying time. The nation is too big for petty things just now and the issues are infinitely too serious to be obscured by any sort of vaudeville performance on the part of anybody in this Republic."

Consider It Attack on Cox.

"Two enormously big things are involved in this campaign," Senator Harding went on. "The first of them is to maintain the freedom of this Republic to work out its own destiny and make its own program for the advancement of the American people. The second is the restoration of America to the stable ways of peace.

"The trouble with us today is that the Democratic Party, responsible in administration, riveted its attention on a dream across the sea, while we of the Republican Party are thinking of actualities in the United States.

"And I want to say in passing, one of the great problems of the incoming Administration will be to take 12,000,000 tons of shipping which was wrought in the emergency and turn it into an effective agency of widened American commerce in peace. I do not know, my countrymen, of a single failure of the present Administration comparable to that of the United States Shipping Board. It has been one continual fiasco from the beginning. When the war came to an end, with the shipping at our command we ought to have been in position to establish immediately ship lines in parts of the world, but today the Shipping Board is still inefficient and scarcely functioning.

"In this connection I want to promise you that one of the first acts of the incoming Administration will be to unfurl the flag on all the paths of the seas.

"I know that it is in the American heart to have somebody somehow say, and say truthfully, that we are going to modify the extraordinarily high cost of living. I have asked not a score, not a hundred, but hundreds of men in talking on this trmendously important subject, to tell me the one specific thing or the specific things that can be done to bring this about, and I have yet to hear one man who can speak with candor and tell me specific thing to be done. I know some means that may be harmonized in bringing about a reduction in cost of living and I repeat them to you. The first great contribution to the solution must be made by you yourselves. You cannot have a reduction of the cost of living under the natural operations of business so long as America continues to consume in the delirium of war extravagance. I make it a practice in my own life if I find something more expensive than I think I can afford to buy, to decline to buy. Next, increased efficiency of production. You cannot have high wages and reduced cost of production unless you have better efficiency accompany the high wages. I care not who may attempt to challenge the statement.

Preaches Gospel of Thrift.

"In the next place I want to preach the gospel of thrift and economy. The nation which will make the first recovery from the waste and depression of the World War will be the nation that lives thriftily and within its means. I preach the gospel of thrift for the United States. I do not mean that I advocate a lower standard of American living. I rejoice that America can live high. But America must live within her means.

"We do live high in the United States and I want it to continue. Indeed, my countrymen, the Republican Party stands for the policy that means maintenance of American standards. I have not the slightest objection to the standards of the world being made the same.

"But I do insist that when that is done Old World standards must be lifted up to ours, and not our standards lowered to those of the Old World.

"Another thing that is very near my heart, and I promise you this day in all the sincerity I know, that when this enterprise succeeds, as I believe it will on Nov. 2, we are going to reduce the cost of Government. And a reduced cost of Government will make its very notable contribution to a lowered cost of living.

"Here in the United States we have seen the cost of Government mount from approximately a billion dollars a year to more than thirty billion dollars a year in the prosecution of the war. The day will never come, my countrymen, even with exacting economy that the cost of the Federal Government will be less than three billion dollars a year; and even that figure isn't possible to the Democratic Party. It is more concerned with keeping its partisans in office than serving the welfare of the American people.

"When I am elected I promise you there are going to be hundreds of thousands of Americans in Washington and elsewhere in the service of the Government, who will go back home to take their places in the activities of production.

"There is another phase of the situation. As a Republican I like to think that up to the time of the Wilson Administration, with its new freedom, one never knew that he paid a Federal tax. Under the Republican Party of protection we made the foreigner pay so much for the privilege of trading in American markets that we did not have to assess our own people directly to carry on the functions of Government. Then the Wilson Administration came in and changed all that. They asked us to sharpen our wits in competition with the world. Indeed, we did sharpen them, but we dulled our activities, and at the time the war broke out we were fast approaching industrial paralysis in the United States. We were fast paying the penalty of Democratic control of Government when the World War broke out and erected a protective barrier that fostered American trade such as no Republican tariff policy could ever accomplish."

Refuses to Urge Study of Treaty.

Senator Harding sent an abrupt reply to Milton H. Berry of Los Angeles, who sent the candidate a telegram containing the following suggestion:

There is doubtless a large percentage of voters, especially women, who have not read the Treaty of Versailles, therefore in order that all may be given the opportunity for enlightenment you will join with Governor Cox in an appeal to the public to set aside Oct. 20, as League of Nations Sunday. Request of the newspapers to publish the Treaty of Versailles together with the Lodge and Hitchcock proposed reservations and to call upon the leading men and women as well as the clergy in all communities to discuss on that day this momentous question.

The Senator's answer was as follows:

Your proposal is wholly impractical. The treaty and covenant could not be read in two long sessions, and the reading would be useless without illumination. It required the Senate several months of study and debate fully to understand; indeed, I doubt if we realize all the dangers in the League covenant now. But we shall continue to point out the menaces and objections until the referendum on Nov. 2.

More than 3,000 travelling salesmen from all parts of the country will arrive in Marion tomorrow morning on more than thirty special trains. Ohio will make the biggest turnout, but Chicago will send a solid trainload of travelers, and several cars will come from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit and Indianapolis.

To Address Women Oct. 1.

Harding headquarters announce tonight what will possibly be the most important speech the Republican candidate will make before election, on Oct. 1, to a gathering of prominent women of widely varying political affiliations, coming to Marion from all parts of the country. Senator Harding will present his views on health, sanitation, education, women and children in industry, and kindred subjects.

The day has been set aside by the women of Marion, regardless of political party affiliation, as social justice day, and on that occasion thousands of local women will march as a non-political group, to the front porch to hear the senator's views of social justice.

Local factories and industries will be closed on that day in order to permit thousands of women workers to hear Senator Harding. A committee consisting of Mrs. Richard Edwards, Chairman, Mrs. Raymond Robbins, and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rhinehart, is perfecting the arrangements for the day.

Senator Harding has been invited and has accepted speaking engagements at two big Ohio meetings, the first of these, Saturday, Oct. 2, is a basket picnic of farmers at Wilson's Grove, between Plain City and Jefferson. The scene of the meeting is in the corner of these three counties, Franklin, Madison and Union, and is in the heart of the great corn belt of Ohio.

The second is Wednesday, Oct. 20, at Jackson, in Jackson County. All Southern Ohio will be represented at the meeting and special trains will be run from all points.

Bulletin No. 1 of the Rexall stores' straw vote on President has attracted much interest in Marion. Four years ago the Rexall Stores took a poll for eight days. The tabulated returns showed that Wilson would carry California and New Hampshire. When the votes of those two States were finally tabulated they showed that the Rexall poll had come within one-eighth of one per cent. of an accurate prediction. The last bulletin of this year's poll shows the voting for one day at the 8,000 Rexall stores. They are in every State and every considerable town. The first day's poll this year shows a total of 103,624 votes. According to these figures Harding will carry Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, Washington, Wisconsins and Wyoming.

POLES LOCATE CAPT. COOPER

American Airman Held by Reds—Kelly Is Dead.

WARSAW, Sept. 24 (Associated Press)—Peasants living in the territory reoccupied by the Poles are authority for the statement that Captain Merion Cooper of Jacksonville, Fla., a member of the Kosciusko Aerial Squadron, is a prisoner in the hands of the Bolsheviki, and that Captain Arthur D. Kelly of Richmond, Va., a member of the same squadron, died from wounds after he had been shot down by the Bolsheviki. Cooper and Kelly have been missing for about two months.

The peasants say that Cooper's motor was struck by a bullet during an attack on General Budenny's army, and the aviator was forced to land. The American was rushed by horsemen of Budenny's cavalry, but he escaped into a clump of woods, where later he was surrounded and made prisoner. The majority of the Bolsheviki, according to the peasants, were for killing Cooper, but a Bolshevik who had lived in the United States insisted on hearing his story. After talking to Cooper for some time in perfect English the Bolshevik induced his comrades to spare the American, who was taken to Kiev.

Kelly on the flight which resulted in his death was the observer for a Polish lieutenant piloting a bombing plane against Budenny's forces. Kelly's plane was shot down, and he received wounds, from which he died some time afterward.

SOVIETS SHOWING ALARM.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Sept. 24.—The second session of the Polish-Russian Peace Conference produced a dramatic surprise today. Adolf Joffe, President of the Bolshevist delegation, in presenting the new Russian terms, stated that thet Soviet Government was prepared to drop its demands for the reduction of the Polish Army, for the surrender of arms, for the cessation of war industries and for the control of the disputed railway line.

This unexpected hoisting of the white flag was in accordance with a direct order from Moscow, received only the previous night and decided upon at a meeting specially called on Thursday of the Central Executive Committee, representing all the Russian Soviets. It must have come as a great surprise to Joffe himself, for only a few days ago he declared emphatically in an interview that the Soviet Government was going to insist on Polish disarmament.

It was equally well known that the Poles were determined to reject any outside interference in this question or national defense. It would have constituted, therefore, a hopeless obstacle to the conclusion of peace, and the Russian climb down is interpreted as indicating that Moscow views the military situation as serious, at any rate for the immediate future.

5,000 Machinists to Strike In American Can Plants

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 24.—A general strike against the American Can Company, involving its fifty-six plants and five thousand machinists, was called today by the Executive Committee of the International Association of Machinists and approved by the convention of the association, which is in session here.

PEACE OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Russians Have Eliminated Virtually All Conditions Designed to Sovietize Poland.

OCT. 5 IS SET AS TIME LIMIT

If Poles Do Not Accept Then a Winter Bolshevist Offensive Is Threatened.

RIGA, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—Adolf Joffe, head of the Bolshevist peace mission which is treating with the Poles, electrified a dull session of the peace conference today and lent real interest to the occasion when he presented to the Poles the Russian Government's armistice terms, which carried with them an ultimatum that Soviet Russia would start a Winter campaign if an armistice was not arranged within ten days.

The offer came as a complete surprise, the Polish counterproposals to the Soviet terms offered at Minsk being the order of the day. Consequently the Polish delegation was unable to make any response directly to the un

BASES BOMB HOPES ON SLENDER CLUES

POWDER MEN ARE EXAMINED

Grand Jury Also Heard Experts—Story of Flight from Scene Is Discounted.

William J. Flynn, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Federal Department of Justice, said last night the investigation into the Wall Sreet bomb disaster had not run into a blind alley as there still remained a few leads to follow and it might be that a single shred of evidence would solve the affair and place responsibility. Hope that criminals would be brought to speedy retribution dwindled earlier in the day when another high official of the bureau said the Federal detectives were absolutely without a lead to aid them in the hunt for the guilty.

This official frankly said that every possible clue, no matter how hopeless or futile it seemed, had been followed to its end and that there remained no perceptible step that might be taken to reveal the plotters.

This gloomy view of the situation, vouchsafed in response to inquiries by newspaper men, was interpreted as putting the crime in the category of thoes unsolved mysteries which only chance or dogged, unremiting detective work could illuminate. While there would always remain the possibility that one of the conspirators would "squeal" on his pals or that some "stool pigeon" would stumble upon incriminating evidence, there appeared to be no more immediate prospect that the bombers would be brought to justice.

Police Also Are Baffled.

Although the police would not commit themselves so openly as did the Federal official, it was learned that they too were nearing the end of the more obvious lines of their inquiry. The five detectives who have been making a search for some blacksmith who could identify the shoes of the horse which drew the "death wagon" to Wall Street, have combed through most of the metropolitan area without success. It is expected this work will be completed by Monday.

Both the Department of Justice and the police made it clear that "promising" clues of previous days had come to nought. The Government men announced that they had sifted to the bottom stories of persons who told of three men who were seen running away after the explosion, and they all came back to this: three elderly Hungarian peddlers, who chanced to be in Wall Strget at the time but who had no wagon, did run away after—or possibly still more accurately; at the instant of—the explosion. They were not the only ones who ran and their motive was precisely the same as that which actuated thousands of others. These men, it was said, had been investigated thoroughly and it had been proved they had not the remotest connection with the crime.

The police examined at length William A. O'Neill, the Bank of America watchman, whose story of seeing a wagon with a wooden box on it before the new Assay Office door immediately before the explosion so impressed the Department of Justice men. They decided O'Neill's story was valueless. It was said his observation, for one thing, was made some time before the explosion.

Powder Officials Testify.

The Grand Jury heard the powder company officials and drivers whom it had not found time to examine on Thursday. It also took the testimony of Acting Inspector John Coughlin, in charge of the Detective Bureau; Colonel B. W. Barton, U. S. A., a retired ordnance officer, and Colonel George O. Eaton, former head of the Municipal Bureau of Explosives.

Carl Dittmar, President of the Dittmar Powder Company, testified that in his opinion the explosion was caused not by any commercial powder, but by some home-made concoction, perhaps with potassium chlorate as a base and sulphur, sugar or some other easily obtainable substance as the material to be oxidized.

Mark O. Prentiss, Chairman of the United States Clearing House of Foreign Credits of 111 Broadway, who told just after the explosion of having received a "warning" which at the time he regarded as a joke and which, in substance, threatened vengeance unless foreign exchange were adjusted, turned over to Chief Flyan of the Justice Department's Investigation Bureau a letter postmarked at Norfolk, Va., on Sept. 16 and written on thin, unmarked paper, which read:

Mark O. Prentis,
Chairman of the United States Clearing House of Foreign Credits,
New York, N. Y.

We told you we were going to give your dirty bunch hell, eh! Now come on down with sterling, franks, or some of your buntch better look out for your damnd skin

The letter closed with a crudely drawn arrow instead of a period.

Mr. Prentiss said that while he had paid no attention to the first warning, received before the explosion, the possibility that the perpetrators of the bomb outrage might have fled south and that one of them could be the author of the letter prompted him to give it to the authorities.

Benefit Fund Authorized.

Official steps to collect a fund for the benefit of relatives of such of the thirty-five persons killed in the explosion as needed aid were taken yesterday by Mayor Hylan, who wrote to Harold Daniels of 61 Broad Street thanking him for a check for $250 and asking that he serve on a committee to collect the fund. The other members of the committee are John R. Ogden, Chairman; F. B. Keech & Co., 7 Wall Street; Nathan J. Miller, Treasurer, of Miller & Co., 120 Broadway; Arthur Turnbull, Post & Flagg, 49 Broad Street; J. W. Harriman, Harriman Bank, 111 Broadway; Walter Price of E. & C. Randolph, 11 Broadway; Henry Sanderson of C. D. Barney & Co., 15 Broad Street; Walter Sachs, Goldman, Sachs & Co., 60 Wall Street; Thomas Denny, Denny, Pomeroy & Co., 30 Pine Street, and C. Buckman of Bucknan, Tychon & Co., 111 Broadway.

Edwin P. Fischer of 23 West Ninety-second Street, who sent from Canada to friends here warnings of the explosion which he explained as of telepathic origin when he returned here for examination, was committed yesterday to the psycopathic ward at Bellevue for ten days' observation by Dr. Menas S. Gregory. Fischer already had been in the hosptial for five days under an informal arrangement whereby he was to be committed to a private institution as soon as his insanity was established by medical testimony. As he was becoming restive, his sister, Mrs. Laura Pope of Forest Hills, L. I., signed a complaint of insanity against him and Fischer was taken to Yorkville Court by a Bomb Squad detective. Robert A. Pope, the defendant's brother-in-law, corroborated his wife's testimony that Fischer should be committed for his own sake.

$11,000 IN POLICE STATION.

Two men, one of them carrying a handbag, approached Patrolman Joseph Meury in the corridors of Police Headquarters early last night.

"Can we leave this bag here until tomorrow for safekeeping?" one of them asked of Meury.

"What is there in it?" Meury asked.

"Money," was the reply. "We had $11,000 payroll cash on hand this afternoon, and we don't want to leave it in the safe overnight. We want to leave it here until early tomorrow, when we are going to pay off some men at Broadway and Fulton Street."

Meury took the visitors to Lieut. McCarrick, to whom they presented a letter signed by A. L. Gorham of the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Company of 52 Vanderbilt Avenue. The Lieutenant had the bag sealed and placed it in one of the offices, where it remained overnight.

B.R.T. STRIKE WANES, SERVICE IMPROVES

NIGHT TRAINS PUT BACK

Service on the B. R. T. was much improved yesterday and the company announced they now have a permanent force of 8,721 men for their elevated, subway and trolley systems. The normal force is about 10,000. All-night service was furnished last night on all lines except a few short trolley lines. The company announced yesterday that 889 more strikers had reported for work and that all the strikebreakers had left.

A police order issued last night instructed all policemen assigned to strike duty to report back to their precincts this morning. It was explained at Police Headquarters that in the future the men would be assigned to strike duty in their own precincts.

Deputy Police Commissioner Leach, who has been investigating the finding of a stick of dynamite in the Reid Avenue station of the Fulton Street elevated road, said yesterday that he did not believe it was the work of the Reds nor of the strikers. Detectives working on the case agreed the bomb was made by some one not familiar with explosives.

Magistrate Brown in the Bridge Plaza Court yesterday held Harry Rabinowitz of 317 Bradford Street, Brooklyn, in $500 bail for examination on a charge of disorderly conduct made by Kenneth Durland of 6 Charles Street, Brooklyn. Rabinowitz was arrested yesterday morning after Durland, who is a clerk in a bank in the financial district, caught him in the act of chalking on a bulletin board on the Lorimer Street station of the Broadway elevated line the following: "This station will be next to be blown up on Friday at 9 P. M."

"I was only fooling," explained Rabinowitz to the Magistrate. The latter declared that the recent bomb explosion in Wall Street took all the humor out of such a deed. Rabinowitz was unable to furnish bail.

SEARCH FOR GROVER AT BERGDOLL TRIAL

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Spectators at the trial today of Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, her son, Charles A. Braun, James E. Romig, a former Magistrate; Albert S. Mitchell, automobile salesman, and Harry Schuh, charged with conspiring to aid Grover and Erwin Bergdoll to evade the draft, were forced to march out in single file to allow Department of Justice agents to search for Grover Bergdoll.

He was not found. The precaution was taken after they received word that the fugitive had been attending sessions of the trial. Two agents stood in the narrow doorway and closely examined each spectator.

The taking of testimony closed today, and court adjourned until Monday, when counsel will make their final pleas to the jury.

Erwin Bergdoll, who is serving a four-year sentence in Fort Leavenworth, took the stand today in an effort to obtain the acquittal of his mother, brother and the other defendants. He was clothed in the brown denim uniform of an army prisoner and two armed guards stood beside him while he testified. He denied any one had aided him in his flight.

"No one induced me to run off," he declared. While the United States was at war with Germany, Erwin testified he and Grover flashed many days near Hagerstown, Md. Under cross examination, he detailed his skipping across the country, part of the time with his brother Grover, now a fugitive.

He also told how he had spent long stretches of time at his home at Broomall, Delaware County, sleeping in a barn to foil raiders who might appear at the house.

Following the escape of Grover, May 21, from two army guards in this city, Erwin said he had remained away from his home until he decided to surrender last July 20.

The Federal agents, he said, not only were visible to him as they raided his home and that of his brother, Charles Braun, which adjoins, but they also ran through the barn. They did not search the barn, however, very carefully, he testified.

The raid on his home, the witness said, was on the morning of Jan. 7, the same day that his brother Grover was captured at his mother's suburban residence.

Twenty Carloads of Books Sold in One Month

Big facts and big figures tell the story of the most wonderful work in the world, THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, The Children's Encyclopedia. In a single month it took 200,000 volumes to satisfy the public demand. Think what that means in popularity and usefulness! Think what that means in terms of work necessary to be done in a single month.

The printing for one month's sale required 17 presses and 60 men. The paper making required two paper machines and 150 men; the binding 70 men and 80 girls; the boxes for shipment the entire output of a saw mill for a week. These boxes placed end to end would reach four miles.

All this that the boys and girls who needed THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE in one month might not wait for it.

Two different printing establishments and three binderies are kept constantly at work. For 10 years the printing has never been stopped. This is the most remarkable publication of modern times, and is being sold today all over the world in five different languages. If you have a child in your home, what does this mean to you?

Give Your Child His Chance

When you were a boy or a girl, there was something that you longed to do, or yearned to be, when you grew up. How about it? Did you achieve those things which were undoubtedly your natural bent, and in which you would have been most successful had you been allowed to follow them out? Perhaps nobody interfered with you, but they did not know what to do with these thoughts and longings and you did not get your fair chance to be all you might have been.

Today all that is changed. A new force has come into the life of the home and the school—a new chance is given for the child to find himself.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is based upon psychology, the proper understanding of the mind of a child. It is the child's own country, and the 16 Great Departments, with their 10,000 striking illustrations are the open doors for his choosing. Place this remarkable work in your home and watch which one of the departments of knowledge he opens first and which holds his interest longest, Natural Science, History, Biography, Astronomy, Physiology, Art, Literature, Poetry, or Manual Training. It will be the almost certain test of his particular bent, ability or genius. In many cases the future of a boy or girl will be determined by the possession of this work.

The Eyes The Greatest Teachers

The larger part of our information is obtained through the eyes. The nerves from the eyes to the brain are twenty-two times as large as the nerves from the ear to the brain. The eyes are the first and greatest teachers. For the first seven years of a child's life practically all of its knowledge is taken in through the eyes. One of the chief reasons why THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE appeals so strongly to the child is because of its thousands of striking educational pictures, which show and explain to the child of today the whole wonderful world.

Outdoor nature is here in all its wealth of beauty, the worlds in the sky, the world in the waters, the world in forest and field, with plates of birds, animals and fishes, cows and dogs and horses, in their natural colors; pictures of countries foreign and familiar showing the people, their habits and customs, and natural scenery; portraits of famous men and women.

Every step of important industrial processes is illustrated and described. There are reproductions of the works of great Artists and Sculptors. Most important of all, the practical things of every-day life and common use are wonderfully illustrated and explained.

LONDON QUARTET IN BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

GREETED WITH ENTHUSIASM

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 24.—The second day of the Berkshire festival of chamber music had special features of interest in both the morning and afternoon concerts; perhaps most significant of the afternoon when the London String Quartet made its first American appearance, playing for the first time in this country two quartets by modern Englishmen and giving a foretaste of the Beethoven cycle that it has arranged to present in New York next month.

These four players, Messrs. James Levey, Thomas W. Petrie, H. Waldo Warner and C. Warwick Evans, come without great preliminary flourishing and are scarcely known, except to enthusiastic quartet specialists, in America, but they made a highly favorable impression by their playing today. It is quartet playing of the better sort, stimulating to the higher musical interest. It shows not only the finish and precision of ensemble that are needed, but a rich tone full of sap, finely graduated to a thread of pianissimo, a nervous sense of rythm and an abundance of spirit and enthusiasm guided by a leader of authority who feels and knows and whose feeling and knowledge are shared by his fellows; nor should it be overlooked that these Englishmen were playing in a September sweiter to which they must have been quite unaccustomed, and also that the second violin was playing with a cap over one of his fingers—so to speak, a handicap.

They played a quartet in E minor by Frank Bridge and a "folk song quartette" called a fantasy. Op. 18, by H. Waldo Warner, the viola player of the party. Of these Mr. Bridge alone is known in this country, but scarcely more than by name, though he has written a considerable number of musical works, and has a reputation, amply supported by the quartet played today, as a composer of distinct and unmistakable personality, a personal tang, it has been well called.

It would be too much to style this quartet great or powerfully original music; but it is music of persuasive and seizing charm, spontaneous and of a kindling vitality. It follows custom in appearing in four movements; but the treatment is free withal, a modern freedom in harmony in rhythmic and melodic development, which take shape as a natural expression guided by an underlying feeling for beauty.

The opening allegro is entrancing in its riotous variety of mood, vivacious, gay, wistful; a spirit that reappears after an adagio of suave and intense expressiveness in an allegretto genially charged with spirit, if not the actually of an English folksong, and is followed by an agitated finale in which there is an interesting development of strongly marked rhythmic figures. The listener is struck by the extreme felicity of the instrumental part writing, its flowing independence and never-failing flow and brilliancy of sound. It is not for nothing that Mr. Bridge is himself a quartet player, an accomplished master of the viola.

The London Quartet played this music with an immense gusto and an obvious and contagious conviction that was communicated in enthusiasm to the audience. It did equal justice to Mr. Warner's fantasy quartet on a quaint and delightful folk tune from one of Cecil Sharp's collections. This tune came from the English Berkshire and it was a pleasant coincidence, doubtless not more, by which it was brought to the Massachusetts Berkshire. Mr. Warner has made this tune serve his purposes in a variety of ingenious ways, all gathered into a logical unity of expression of genuine musical beauty.

In Beethoven's second Rasumoffsky Quartet the London players showed their deeply grounded artistic quality. Their powers in Beethoven will be studied next month more at leisure in Aeolian Hall.

The morning concert was given up to a program of sonatas for piano and violin played by Efrem Zimbalist and John Powell. There were Brahms's Sonata in D minor, op. 108; Beethoven's in G, op. 96, and between them Mr. Powell's in A flat. A program somewhat overfull, as festival programs are apt to be, especially since Mr. Powell's sonata is itself somewhat overlong. It is a comparatively new work, still in manuscript, by one who has shown originality and creative spirit in composition and had been played only once before, two seasons ago, in New York. In form it may be considered somewhat experimental; it is in one movement, in which the four usual divisions are sensed without difficulty.

Mr. Powell points out in the program that the first allegro comprises the exposition and "first development," and that after the scherzo and andante sections there is a "second development," recapitulation and coda. Here is an ingenious and serviceable development of the principles of sonata form that goes far toward justifying itself in the result.

Mr. Powell was not at loss for musical ideas in writing this sonata, nor lacking in keen sense of beauty. He has not sought for expression in an idiom not native to him, but has written naturally, without fear of being thought "old fashioned" or behind the time. The themes are plastic and musically significant. As a Virginian born he has found one of at least a negroid quality that he uses with skill and taste, not forcing the note nor falling into vulgarity, but gaining piquancy and individuality. He treats his material with great command of resource, perhaps more naturally as well as with greater elaboration and brilliancy on the piano than on the violin and with a rich inventive fancy. It may be said that sometimes he gives his fancy too free a rein, that he expatiates more largely than his material really warrants, that at times he loses himself in his own fascinating details, but the sonata is full of beauty and fine feeling as well as of brilliancy, and was heard with great pleasure in a performance wherein Mr. Zimbalist seconded the composer with admirable skill and devotion.

CONVICT HAD CLOTHES OF SLAIN MINING MAN

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—Admitting that he had nailed shut the door to the closet in the cellar at 655 South Catalina Street, where the body of Joseph C. Denton, mining man, was found Thursday, James C. Crowhurst, a plumber, living at 1,021 South Hobart Street, yesterday made a sworn statement to Detectives Lyon and Box which contained sensational developments in the murder mystery.

Crowhurst was held for investigation after it was learned, detectives say, that he had listed for sale with local real estate men the Denton house; that he had in his possession a dress suit belonging to Denton; that he had sold some of Denton's clothing, and that he had in his possession the coat and vest which matched the trousers in which Denton's body was clothed when it was stuffed into the closet.

Points to which detectives attach significance were made in his statement briefly as follows:

Crowhurst met a woman who he says is Mrs. R. C. Peete by doing plumbing work for her. On his first visit to the cellar of the Denton home, early in June, he noticed the room in which the body was found. Fresh earth was there then, and only one nail had been driven to keep the door shut. Mrs. Peete told him, he says, that the room "is some affair of Mr. Denton's" and not to disturb it. He noticed on his second visit to the cellar that three or four nails had been driven into the door instead of one.

Just before Aug. 12, Crowhurst says, Mrs. Peete told him that she had received word from Denton saying that Denton was married again. Mrs. Peete said Denton told her to give his clothing away because he had lost his right arm and implied getting an entire new outfit. Instead of giving it away, Crowhurst declares, she asked him to sell it for her and that this accounts for his having possession of the murdered man's apparel. He listed the property for sale, he asserted, at the request of Mrs. Peete, who said the figure of $25,000 given was set by Mr. Denton.

Mrs. M. Tilton, 310 South Alvarado Street, gave Police Detective Canton a handbag full of personal effects of the slain man, which she said was given her by Mrs. Peete. In this bag were a bank book, a costly watch and other personal articles.

Also in the bag was a pawn ticket for a man's diamond ring. The ticket was dated Aug. 9. A $600 diamond ring worn by Denton was missing from his finger when the body was found. Detectives began work to trace the ring in Los Angeles to ascertain if the ring taken from Denton and the one pawned by Mrs. Peete are the same.

POLICEMAN'S CRITIC GUILTY.

George W. Delaney, a sailor, 24 years old, received a suspended sentence from Magistrate Ten Eyck in the Yorkville Court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct made by Patrolman Hanrahan of the West 123d Street station, who locked up Delaney as the sailor was taking the patrolman's number and threatening to report him as "a fine officer," because the policeman said he "couldn't do anything" about the burning of a British flag of which Delaney had complained.

Delaney testified that when he reported the flag had been burned in the gutter by a gang who tore it from one of the business buildings in 125th Street, decorated in celebration of 125th Street Week, the policeman said, "Good, they ought to burn all of them! The British flag is no good anyway."

Hanrahan denied that utterance and said that when Delaney, who is an American, complained to him, he found remnants of the burned flag in the gutter, but did not know who burned it. Delaney, he said, returned about midnight and despite the explanation that the policeman could do nothing under the circumstances, made the threat to report him, which was followed by the arrest.

FOUR "MATCH PRESIDENT."

Officials at Democratic National Headquarters were cheered up yesterday at the response coming in to the appeal sent out by Chairman White for contribution to a "Match-the-President" fund to finance the campaign of "truth telling in behalf of the League of Nations." The first response yesterday came from James Durkin of Spokane, Wash., who telegraphed as follows:

"Am sending you a draft for $500 to match the President's contribution, for I consider the League of Nations is the most sacred and important document ever written by mortal man, giving safety to the living and protection to the unborn."

"Put me down for $500 to match the President," was General Tyson's telegram. Chairman White and William M. Marah, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, also contributed $500 each.

THREE MORE KILLED IN TURIN DISORDERS

Rifle Firing Continues and Bomb Is Thrown Near Central Police Station.

LACK SUPPORT OF PEOPLE

Placards Calling for "Death to the King" Are Torn—Lenin Interference Resented.

ROME, Sept. 23.—Disorders continue at Turin and rifle firing is sometimes assuming the character of a battle in the outskirts of the city, according to dispatches reaching Rome. Three more persons have been killed, it is said, among them being Mario Santini, President of the Young Men's Nationalist Association.

A bomb was thrown in San Carlo Square, near the Central Police Office, but no one was killed or injured, but nearby buildings were struck by fragments. Police and military authorities are showing extraordinary activity and have made about 200 arrests.

It appears the agitation has been carried on by Extremists, who do not have the support of the population. Dispatches received here say street cars carrying placards with such inscriptions as "Viva Lenin," "Death to the King," and "Death to the Royal Guards" were surrounded by indignant townspeople when they reached the centre of the city. Conductors were dragged from the cars and beaten and the posters were torn to pieces.

A resolution passed by the Council of the Workmen's League, inviting the people to remain calm and not to jeopardize negotiations in the metal workers' dispute by acts of violence, is published by the newspaper Avanti.

Food Controller Soleri made a statement that food conditions throughout the country made it necessary to adopt measures to prevent an increase in the present deficit of about 6,000,000,000 lire, which has been caused by the system of purchasing wheat abroad and selling it below cost in this country.

A committee will draft a bill to be presented to Parliament which will have for its object a solution of this problem.

Resent Lenin Interference.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 24.—Italian Socialists are becoming increasingly incensed at the high handed manner in which Lenin treats certain members of their party. Enthusiasm for the Russian dictator is beginning to cool since he attempts to dictate to the Italians. As long as he merely enunciated principles which appealed to the masses well and good, but the latest move of Lenin in excluding the Socialists Turati and Modigliani from the third Internationale has brought the Italian Socialist Party to revolt.

A Socialists' congress will be held early in December to decide the line of conduct to be taken. A division in the party is now almost inevitable, and will probably result in the formation of a true communist party. The two opposing groups in the Socialist Party are trying to stand firm and force their adversaries from the field.

A schism in the Socialist Party would react on the whole political life of the country.

MILAN, Sept. 24.—The National Federation of Workers in the chemical and textile industries have notified the General Confederation of Labor that they require a pledge for the extension of Giolitti's decree on syndicalist control to their interests.

The federation states that the official Socialist Party executive is backing their movement and that unless a favorable reply is forthcoming within a short period the workers are prepared to take direct action by the seizure of factories not already occupied.

All foremen in the great Terni Steel Works abandoned their posts today because, being satisfied with the Rome concordat, they decline to abet metal workers in converting the economic question into a political struggle.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Workmen employed at the Orlando shipyard at Leghorn have refused to turn the plant back to the owners until they are paid wages for the time they have been on strike, says a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

MRS. SPRECKELS SEEKS BARRETT'S EXTRADITION

Accuses Husband of Alice Drexel of Theft of £16,500 Necklace —He Denies Charge.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Solicitors representing Mrs. John Spreckels, Jr., of California have instructed the police to inaugurate extradition proceedings for William Barrett, an American and husband of Alice Drexel of Philadelphia, who is reported to be under surveillance by the police of Los Angeles, Cal.

A warrant charging Barrett with the theft of a pearl necklace valued at £16,500 was issued on the application of Mrs. Spreckels in the Marlborough police court on Sept. 17. Mrs. Spreckels, who is staying at a West End hotel, has canceled her passage on a liner sailing tomorrow for New York and will await the return of her husband, who is in Norway.

Mrs. Spreckels's secretary said today that Mrs. Spreckels met Barrett, whom she had known several years, at the Sandown race course some months ago, and as she was not acquainted in London he offered to introduce her to his friends. The secretary declared Mrs. Spreckels requested Barrett to attend to some dealings for her with jewelers and gave him the necklace, which she wanted cleaned and restrung. Time elapsed, but Barrett avoided discussion as to the whereabouts of the necklace, the secretary said, and eventually he left London. Barrett's continued silence determined Mrs. Spreckels to inaugurate proceedings, which resulted in the issuance of the police court warrant.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 24.—William Barrett, for whose arrest a warrant was reported to have been issued in London on Sept. 17 in connection with the theft of a pearl necklace valued at £16,500, the property of Mrs. John Spreckels, Jr., was said to be visiting friends in a suburb of Los Angeles today.

Barrett visited the District Attorney's office here Wednesday, accompanied by a detective, who then passed the night with him at a downtown hotel. It was denied at Police Headquarters that he was under arrest. Yesterday afternoon Barrett parted company with the detective. He said the matter was "all a mistake." He added:

"There is nothing criminal in my connection with Mrs. Spreckels and her jewels, and as soon as my London solicitor can investigate and wire I am sure that I will be cleared of implication."

"LA BOHEME" AT MANHATTAN

Anna Fitziu a Lovely Mimi in San Carlo Opera Production.

"La Boheme" was given at the Manhattan last night instead of "Lohengrin," which is not yet ready. In the old opera house Murger's story is singularly touching and gay. Once again, in memory, the small but vigorous Trentini snaps her fingers under Sammarco's amorous nose; and the young McCormack lifts his small sweet tenor in the moonlight. What does it matter if Trentini is no longer there; if McCormack has grown something stouter, to fit a larger house; if Sammarco, along with Renaud and Dalmores, with half that happy crew, is only a memory? Agostini, Fitziu and Valle will do very well. It is true that Mr. Agostini's voice was a little harsh—sometimes a little flat. It is remarkable that with so little breath he should do so much. It is also true that the chorus was a little indefinite. But one must have imagination. It is good to sweeten the present somewhat from the past. One must get along with what there is.

Very lovely was Miss Fitziu as Mimi, very beautiful her high C at the end of the first act. She is apt to reach a little for her Gs and her As—to hold what she has and slide for what comes after. It is a small fault in a brilliant voice. She is a quiet Mimi; her motions, her gestures, are slow and even. One can sit back and look at her. Well, and the better; she is worth looking at.

Mr. Valle gave an excellent performance of Marcelle. He is no actor to boast of; but last night it was good to hear him. Miss Keltie proved to be a pretty but not a very sharp Musette. Mr. Merola conducted.

Today's operas are "Butterfly" and "Trovatore." "Lohengrin" will be given Monday night.

Gropper's Son Came for His Legacy.

When Edward Gropper of 64 East Ninetieth Street made his will, on Oct. 26 last, it contained a provision for an expected heir, in a trust fund of $5,000, the income to go for its support and the principal to be given it upon becoming of age. Gropper died last month, and a month later to a day, a son, Israel, was born to his widow, Martha E. Gropper. Gropper left the widow $15,000 in cash, and the residuary estate to his father and brothers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Selling of industrial stocks slowed down yesterday after a number of substantial declines had occurred in the morning, and a narrower list of issues was dealt in than the day before. While there was less pressure, it was noted that traders were not disposed to construe anything in the day's news developments as a sign that events in the merchandise field had spent their force, and, in consequence, stocks displayed slight rallying power. Automobile and tire company shares receded more than others, which was not unnatural in the light of the downward readjustment of certain automobile prices and the close relation between the motor and rubber industries. Railroad issues were again firm and, apparently, as unconcerned as at any time during the week over the cuttings of goods quotations. It was likely that considerable of the short selling and liquidation of manufacturing company issues, which proceeded practically from start to close of Thursday's business, was checked yesterday, as participants began to take stock of price cuts, wondering whether there was not some danger of overdoing sales after the prolonged period of depressed prices during the Summer.

Call money was unchanged, but there was a fresh impression upon the market for time funds from gradually increasing supplies, which is reflective of price reactions in industry and of a slackened demand for credit. Loans secured by "mixed" collateral were quoted at 7¾ and 8 per cent. for the longer maturities, compared with a firm 8 per cent. the day before, and "industrial" loans were a quarter per cent. lower at 8 per cent. for sixty and ninety-day accommodation, as well as periods of four months and longer. It is rather curious that in the span of a few days the financial community has almost ceased to comment upon the probabilities of tight money for the late Autumn, but the explanation lies in the attention drawn to the important influence directed toward the loosening of money and credit rates, namely, that contained in the movement of commodity prices and indications of slackened activity here and there. The crops are by no means gathered and sent into the markets, and until the credit requirements engaged in this task have been met there is no guarantee that money rates will continue their course of the last fortnight.

The Government's report on the foreign trade of August showed that while there was a rather sharp decline of $67,000,000 from the July record of exports, imports receded $18,000,000 and there was supplied hardly enough material for deductions about the course of international merchandise transactions. The decline of imports stood in comparison with a recession of $16,000,000 in the July inflow as compared with June, but the total was $212,000,000 greater than in August of last year. The trade statement, like those of preceding months, showed that the time is yet to be reached when the foreign exchanges are to be affected favorably by an excess of imports, the balance last month in favor of the United States being $65,000,000. Still, much significance may be attached to the manner in which Europe has "come back" this year, for a large part of the 57 per cent. expansion of imports in the first eight months of 1920 over 1919 has resulted from the European revival.

Export buying seemed to be removed, at least temporarily, as a supporting factor in the wheat market for the December and March options fell 11 and 12 cents per bushel, respectively. But wheat is going out of the country at a tremendous rate, the shipments during the week ended Sept. 23 from the United States and Canada amounting to 10,674,450 bushels, according to Bradstreet's, only about 200,000 bushels less than the preceding week's extremely large outflow. Corn futures declined 2¼ cents further and other grains were weak.

The foreign exchange market was quiet and speculative selling appeared to be the major influence in bringing a decline of 2¼ cents in sterling. Liberty bonds and Victory notes were again prominent in a broad and rising bond market.

LIBERTY BONDS HIT HIGHEST SINCE MAY

REST OF LIST RISES TOO

Investors Buying In Present Upward Movement Likely to Hold Purchases, Dealers Say.

The strength of the bond market was again manifested yesterday in a general advance which prevailed throughout the list of high-grade investment securities. There was a notable upturn in Liberty bonds and Victory notes, almost all of which were up 1 per cent. or more on the day. In the railroad department prices were somewhat higher, and the demand was said to be very good. The same applied to public utility bonds and guaranteed stocks.

In the Liberty bond market the best prices since the decline which culminated the latter part of May were recorded. In the appended table are shown yesterday's closing prices, the low prices of last week and the net changes for yesterday, and the improvement from the low quotations of last week:

First 4s	87.90	85.34	1.28		2.56
Second 4s	87.20	84.60	1.34		2.60
First 4½s	88.40	85.52	1.10		2.88
Second 4½s	87.32	84.50	1.08		2.82
Third 4½s	90.16	88.24	1.00		1.92
Fourth 4½s	87.36	84.80	.88		2.56
Victory 3¾s	96.08	95.40	.44		.68
Victory 4¾s	96.08	95.40	.42		.68

The amount of business being transacted in war bonds has been large recently, but dealers say it would have been a good deal larger if there had been more bonds for sale. A paucity of offerings has been a notable feature of the market for some little time past and in the last few days it has been especially noticeable. Many bond men report that they are experiencing difficulty in executing buying orders without causing an undue and too rapid appreciating in quotations.

At yesterday's high prices the Liberty bond market had recovered substantially half of the big loss which these bonds sustained between the first of the year and the extreme low prices which were scored in the latter part of May. The first 3½s per cents and the second 4¼s per cents. have been the only issues which have been conspicuous by their slow and slight recovery. The others have regained about half of their Spring declines. The second 4 per cents. and the fourth 4¼ per cents. have recovered slightly more than half.

The quality of the buying which has accomplished this recovery has been of extremely high class, according to bankers interested in the market. The Spring selling which sent quotations down to their lowest on record came largely from corporations which needed working capital and found it more expedient to dispose of their war bonds than to pay the high rates demanded for loan accommodation, and from individuals who needed the proceeds of their war bonds to help them defray living expenses. Now, on the present upward movement, the buying has been, to a very great extent, from investors who, the bond dealers say, are not so likely to throw over their purchases, and because of this it is predicted that the market for Liberty Bonds and Victory notes will in future be a good deal more stable than it has been in the past.

Offer $2,500,000 Power Bonds.

The National City Company, Cassatt & Co. and Graham, Parsons & Co. are offering $2,500,000 general and refunding mortgage bonds of the Consumers Power Company of Michigan. The offering price is 91¼ and interest, thus yielding slightly more than 8 per cent. to the investor. The bonds are redeemable in whole or part at the option of the company on any interest payment date upon sixty days' notice, at 105 and accrued interest, on or before July 1, 1925, at 103 and interest thereafter on or before July 1, 1930 and at 101 and interest thereafter but prior to maturity. The bonds are dated July 1, 1920, and mature July 1, 1935. They are 7 per cent. issue of Series B.

$15,000,000 INCREASE IN MOTOR MERGER

DETAILS ARE COMPLETED

Underwriters Agree to Waive Profits on New Financing Provided.

The plan of readjustment for the Maxwell Motor Company and the Chalmers Motor Corporation has been agreed to by all of the important interests in both companies, including New York, Chicago and Detroit banking interests. The union of Maxwell and Chalmers is provided for in a new company having an authorized capital of 1,000,000 shares of which 200,000 shares are to be Class A stock and 800,000 shares Class B stock. It is proposed to issue 153,000 shares of Class A stock and 620,179 shares of Class D stock. The Class A stock is to have priority as to assets over the Class B shares and also as to non-cumulative dividends up to $8 a share.

It is stated that the readjustment will raise $15,000,000 of new capital. The underwriters, it is asserted, have agreed to supply the new financing without profit to themselves and stockholders of the respective old companies will be offered the same privileges as the underwriters.

The Maxwell Company has outstanding $13,133,342 first preferred stock, $10,127,468 second preferred and $12,855,158. The capital of the Chalmers Company consists of $4,400,000 preferred and 400,000 shares of common stock. There is outstanding an issue of $3,150,000 6 per cent. notes due Oct. 1 of next year.

D., L. & W. Expansion Plans.

News from Buffalo that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western was looking over the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad with the view of absorbing it and thus gaining an entrance into one of the biggest and busiest of the Pennsylvania bituminuous coal regions as well as Pittsburgh, Rochester and intervening points, stirred competing interests keenly yesterday. That the Buffalo dispatches were correct and that such a consolidation is probable received credence in local railroad quarters yesterday, as it has been known for some time that Lackawanna officials were out over the B. R. & P. lines. In addition the fact that President Truesdale of the Lackawanna refused yesterday to make any statement regarding the situation leads to the belief that negotiations are on between the two roads. Heretofore Lackawanna has held firmly to the anthracite business and the interest of other coal roads in the fact that the taking over of the B. R. & P., would mean that Lackawanna would haul a big tonnage of bituminous, was not surprising.

Prosperous Carriers and Mergers.

While a great crop of rumors regarding railroad mergers has been sown and in many instances harvested by the professional element, it is now admitted that several of the prosperous roads may take over additional properties within the next few months. It is obvious, according to railroad men, that such systems as Lackawanna, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison, and the like are in a position to acquire properties which would improve their physical positions as transportation companies. On the other hand, rumors to the effect that Union Pacific was to take over Chicago, Great Western, that Lackawanna would absorb Erie, the Nickel Plate and some others, that Canadian Pacific would buy Erie, and other reports which usually originated in pool circles, are generally discredited as the law states that in consolidations competition must be maintained as much as possible.

A Change in Sentiment.

While stock prices sought lower levels yesterday, as far as the industrials, motors, and some of the tire issues were concerned, it was apparent in the late afternoon that sentiment had undergone a considerable change. In the early trading the tend was plainly downward, due in large part to fear of a continued general price-cutting movement throughout the country. In the afternoon, however, trading fell off rapidly, and little interest other than that of the shorts who were running to cover on a comparatively small scale, was apparent. A fair share of the selling was done for professional account, and when the day wore on without continuous reports of a further broad movement to cut prices, it was plain that sentiment wavered and with the shorts underwent a sudden change. Several emphatic announcements that there would be no slashing of prices, which came from various influential sources, served to steady the situation.

A Mexican Verdict.

From time to time lower courts in Mexico render decisions upholding the Carranza decrees which demanded denouncement of oil property, or on failure of this opened the property to denouncement by other than the one who would be considered the indisputable owner of the land and the petroleum rights under our laws. Another decision of this sort has recently come forth. These are not causing the least worry to the oil companies since the decisions are taken for granted. The real case will be tried before the Mexican Supreme Court, and it remains to be seen whether the confiscatory features of the decrees will be upheld. Certainly to have them upheld might infer that the seeking of American capital to further finance Mexican industries was simply another invitation to become entangled in interminable controversies to protect investments.

A World Shortage of Steel.

The fact that exports of steel and steel products are constantly increasing is tangible evidence that there is a shortage of wide proportions in this field of industry. Should the American market become demoralized, with no active demand for steel, it is therefore probable that increasingly large allotments of steel would be made to foreign consumers, many of whom are anxiously awaiting fulfillment of their orders. Despite what are called high steel prices here the quotations are actually low as compared with the figures which foreign manufacturers are able to name. The differential of low labor costs which in years gone by worked to the advantage of the European manufacturers no longer exists.

Attracting Buyers?

There may well be some doubt created in the minds of those who are undertaking drastic price reductions as to whether the display will actually attract buyers. It is not improbable that for the time being at least buyers may be repelled from the market. It is a difficult thing to induce the stocking of goods on any extensive scale in a falling market. There is always the fear on the part of the purchaser that he may be getting in a bit too soon, and this hesitancy makes for a reduction in volume of business in primary markets. Under such circumstances overhead increases as compared to output and profits suffer.

Kelly Springfield.

Word that the Kelly-Springfield Company was preparing to issue a new block of common stock amounting to 82,000 shares caused a sharp break in the shares on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. They lost 6¾ points for the day. In view of the condition in the automobile industry the rubber shares are not being looked upon with such high favor as a short time ago.

Easier Money Predicted.

A banker whose word on money matters is worth consideration predicts that "commercial money will be at 6 per cent. by December." It does not necessarily follow from this, he says, that commercial paper will be readily discountable at 6 per cent., but he does think that banks which now are lending funds to regular customers at 7 per cent. will be charging only 6 per cent. by the end of the year, and that a fair percentage of clients agree with him is evident from the virtual disappearance of all demand for time money for the maturities which will carry over into the new year. Incidentally, quotations on time loans yesterday were down another quarter or so, and while there was no more business than on other recent days, the decline in quotations was regarded as significant of the present trend.

Another straw showing the direction of the financial wind was to be had in the reduction of the dealers' buying rate" for bankers' acceptances. This buying rate has stood at 6¼ per cent. for some time, but this week it has been reduced to 6⅛ per cent. As a matter of fact, some dealers say that the reduction would have occurred last week had there been any appreciable demand for paper. During this week the demand has quickened a good deal, and the volume of bills which was backing up in dealers' hands has been pretty well cut into. The improved demand, which has come frrom local sources as well as from the small interior banks, is due, at least in part, bankers believe, to the decline in general money market rates.

Public Utilities.

Not all of the bullishness in the investment market is confined to Governments and high-grade railroad issues. The public utilities, after a long period of dullness and decline, are coming back and in the process some shrewd investment dealers are making handsome profits. The market for good public utilities is described by dealers as "very thin on the offering side," which is to say, there are few potential sellers and many potential buyers. The line of reasoning which begets this state of affairs is simple: Public utilities want down because of the low fixed rates at which they were allowed to sell their products and services, and because of the rising cost of everything they had to buy, whether labor or materials. Now the idea is spreading that their costs will shortly begin to decline, if they have not already started to, and with many companies around the country recently having received permission to increase rates, with others likely to receive this permission in the near future, the utilities seem to be in a fair way of making some money.

GENERAL ELECTRIC TO OFFER MEN STOCK

Plans to Issue 50,000 Shares to be Sold to Employes on Installment Payments.

MARKET PRICE TO GOVERN

C. A. Coffin, Chairman of Board, Anxious for Direct Interest of Workers in Company.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the General Electric Company has been called for the purpose of voting upon a proposition to authorize the sale of shares in the company to employes. C. A. Coffin, Chairman of the board of the company, in sending out the call for the special meeting, says that it has long been the view of the directors that ownership of stock by employes is greatly to be desired, both as a means of investing their savings and of creating a direct and personal interest in the company's welfare. The amount of stock it is proposed to sell to employes is not to exceed 50,000 shares.

In the letter accompanying the call for the special meeting Mr. Coffin says, in part:

"Acquisition of such stock by employes in a large way is not practicable except through some plan permitting the purchase upon installment payments. Until recently it has not been possible for your company to adopt such a plan for the reason that stock was not available for this purpose. But under the New York Stock Corporation law as amended in 1919 a corporation now may, with the consent of its stockholders, sell stock to its employes.

"It is under the provisions of this statute that you are now asked to vote authority to the Directors to sell not more than 50,000 shares of the authorized and unissued capital stock of the company to its employes.

"It is proposed that the subscription price shall be substantially the market price at the time the offer is made, payment for the shares to be made by periodical deductions from payroll. In order that all complexity and detail shall as far as possible be avoided, there will be no allowance or adjustment for interest either on payments made or on unpaid balances upon completion of the subscription payments the company will give a credit to the employe which shall represent approximately the net return had he been an actual holder of the stock and had received the dividends thereon from the date of his subscription.

"It is proposed that an employe whose subscription is canceled because of illness, unemployment or other reason may receive back the money deducted from his pay with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

Seeks Large Fee from Estate Which Holds His Note for $2,000.

Papers filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday show that while Edward Lauterbach, lawyer, has a claim for $25,000 against the estate of Elsie V. I. Blumhardt, who died last January, leaving $266,548, the estate holds his note for $2,000. George J. Blumhardt, executor of the estate, was the husband of the decedent. Mr. Lauterbach contends that he earned the $25,00 in settling the estate of Mrs. Blumhardt's former husband, Bernard Ilifelder, and that Mrs. Blumhardt agreed to leave him the money in her will but failed to do so. The Surrogate is expected to refer the matter to a referee to take testimony.

The bulk of the estate went to the second husband.

STOCK EXCHANGE DUES UP.

Will Be $1,000 Instead of $300 Unless Majority Disapproves.

The New York Stock Exchange is preparing to raise the annual dues from $300 a year to $1,000. An amendment to the constitution providing for this has been approved by the Governing Committee and will become law unless a majority vote of the Exchange members disapproves the action within a week.

In explaining the reason for the increase William H. Remick, President of the Stock Exchange, in a letter to members says:

"The building operation which has been made necessary by the enormous increase in the number of listed stocks and the growth of our business has developed unlooked for requirements in the way of expenditures for replacements upon our present building.

"The payroll of our institution has of necessity, as in all other institutions, advanced enormously. Supplies of every name and nature have not been laggards, and we find ourselves in need of relief.

"The revenue of the Exchange is largely dependent upon the activities of its members. Any increase in the volume of business will decrease the amount of dues required to enable the Governing Committee to keep well within the limit which has been fixed as the maximum in the proposed change of the constitution."

BOSTON TAXI DRIVERS QUIT.

Strike When Demand of $5-a-Day Wage Is Refused.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—A strike of taxicab drivers began here today. Drivers of nearly every taxi service company ran their cars into the garages beginning at noon, turned in their meters for reading and settlement and quit. They want $5 a day. A taxi driver's tips here average $1 a day, according to the President of one of the principal companies. Their daily wage is $3.60 for nine hours.

Taxicabs were scarce on the streets and stands this afternoon. Some of the company managers said they would continue operation with non-union men if possible; others said service would be suspended until a settlement was reached.

The managers claim the union vote was in violation of an agreement which was to run until next February, while the union leaders hold that an advance in taxi fares last May entitled the drivers to increased wages.

BEARS IN NEW RAID FORCE COTTON DOWN

Selling Pressure Forces Market to the Lowest Level for This Movement.

SPOT IS OFF 100 POINTS

There was another bad smash in yesterday's cotton market, and prices broke to new low levels for the present movement. Spot cotton lost another 100 points, falling to the basis of 28.50 for middling, which is the lowest the local spot market has seen since a year ago last Spring, when the market started up from around 25 cents for spots. New Orleans also recorded a new low record for spots for more than a year and other Southern markets were soft, with prices falling.

Selling was again general. The ring and the Wall Street houses and the South all joined in the operation, and whatever news of a bullish factor developed was completely ignored. Rumors that a number of private crop estimates will be well under the Government's last figures were lost sight of, as was also the fact that the British coal miners' strike has been postponed, with fair chance of being averted altogether. Against these were placed the continued favorable weather reports and the advices coming in from the trade of big reductions in goods prices, and from a market viewpoint the bearish factors far outweighed the bullish influences.

Contract prices were down for near months but slightly up for distant months at the opening. Then the selling pressure developed and the whole list, with the exception of July, fell under the previous day's closing. The pressure was heaviest in the near months, with October declining 90 points at the extreme, December 65, January 55 and March 45. May lost only 25 points and July never got under Thursday's close. There was a slight rally at the close, but this served to win back not more than 15 to 20 points on the average.

FINANCIAL CONGRESS OPENS IN BRUSSELS

Experts from Fifty Nations Present—Ador Delivers Presidential Address.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24.—Financial experts of the world today invaded the Belgian House of Commons, the amphitheatre of which was crowded, for the formal opening of the International Conference at 3 P. M. One of the most noteworthy features of the gathering is that among the fifty nations not a single woman has been found to contribute to the discussions.

There is another marked and deplorable absence. Russia's old allies and enemies are all here except the Turks, whose knowledge of finance is nearly limited to the art of borrowing. But Russia herself has still no voice in these international affairs. The Soviet Government by its refusal to accept the Commission of Investigation and not the League of Nations is responsible for this crying void.

No popular interest, it must be admitted, has been evoked here by the conference and the sober mood of the delegates was reflected in the Presidential address of M. Ador. Like a solid, honest Switzer, he eschewed imaginative phrasing, and did not even attempt closely to characterize the problems the conference has to grapple with.

There could, he said, be no speedy escape from the consequences of the war. Not with impunity had millions of young lives been sacrificed, entire countries been devastated and means of production and transport partially destroyed. Economic disorder had followed this accumulated ruin. They must not delude themselves with the idea that the causes of profound discontent now general would suddenly disappear, but the world expected them to find methods of universal co-operation that would help it to emerge from its troubles.

M. De la Croix then welcomed the conference on behalf of the Belgian Government and people. He said it had given rise to great hopes and he was confident its work would not be in vain.

The Organizing Committee having been elected the conference adjourned.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 24 (Associated Press).—The union of belligerents, as well as neutrals, as a prerequisite to the preservation of the world from economic and financial ruin was the keynote of the address of Gustave Ador as presiding officer at the opening session of the international financial conference today. The same sentiments were voiced by Premier Delacroix of Belgium in his speech of welcome to the delegates who have gathered, at the call of the League of Nations, to take under consideration plans for ameliorating the financial ills of the world generally.

"In Union There Is Strength," Belgium's motto, cut in stone, was in full view of the delegates assembled in the Chamber of Deputies.

"That union," said M. Ador, pointing to the motto, "presupposes full discharge of obligations subscribed to in treaties of peace."

Both speakers dwelt upon the necessity of all nations accepting necessary sacrifices in the spirit of international brotherhood in order to solve the world's financial problems.

M. Ador expressed conviction that the "gradual suppression of economic barriers and a return to unrestricted trade were conditions necessary to enable the peoples to concentrate on their work for recovery from the effects of war." He read a message from the League of Nations Council informing the delegates that the sessions must be confined to the originally outlined financial problems.

The message reminded the conference that other questions, such as those dealing with economic affairs, could not be considered, and that treaties already signed or matters under discussion between different nations could not be brought into the deliberations.

Reading of the national balance sheets was deferred and the congress adjourned until tomorrow morning.

ENDS RICHMOND FRANCHISES

Estimate Board Revokes Them—City Plans 5-Cent Lines.

A resolution sent to the Board of Estimate by Commissioner Grover A. Whalen revoking all franchises of the Richmond Light & Railroad Company because of failure to operate cars continuously was adopted yesterday without being read. The company is operating cars on all of its lines and will continue to do so under an injunction of the Federal Court prohibiting interference with it. The city is expected to ask the Court to withdraw the injunction so that it can prepare for the operation of municipal lines.

Mr. Whalen also called to the attention of the board the situation of the Staten Island Midland Railway Company, which is running cars under the protection of a Federal receiver. He said the city was prepared to take over this property and thus make a clean sweep of private trolley operation in Richmond. He promised to operate both lines at a five-cent fare. The Richmond Company is charging an eight-cent fare by authority of the Public Service Commission, and it is alleged that the Midland Company, is also getting an eight-cent fare by charging passengers an extra 3 cents for a short trip over the tracks of the Richmond Company. Mr. Whalen says this is illegal.

On July 13 last the Board of Aldermen approved an appropriation of $300,000 for the purchase of cars to be operated by the city on the lines of the Midland Company. All that remainder, Mr. Whalen explained, was to finish a few details, provided the consent of the Court was obtained.

The Board of Estimate approved revised specifications submitted by Mr. Whalen for the purchase of fifty motor vehicles.

OUR ARGENTINE TRADE HURT

Unfavorable Exchange Makes Some Buyers Refuse to Accept Drafts.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 23.—Business men now here from the United States say that American business in Argentina is seriously endangered as a result of the unafavorable exchange rate.

"Unless the situation is promptly relieved, we cannot prevent a loss of a good part of our business," said the official of an American bank today. "Even some of the best firms on various pretexts are failing to accept drafts, and the Custom Houses are filled with products from the United States, left there for the account of shippers."

The crisis came, according to an American importer, after heavy buying "when the already high prices suddenly were increased 15 per cent. or more by the fall in Argentine money."

"Many merchants," the importer continued, "then refused to accept sight drafts, asking extensions for the purpose of allowing the situation to grow normal. Where these extensions were refused there has been considerable dissatisfaction. Representatives of European countries are pleased at this situation, seeing a chance to regain their former position, and some of them are believed to be opposing measures which would help a return to normal. The remedy seems to be the granting of credits so as to allow the situation to adjust itself during the coming crop movement."

$20,000,000 SWINDLE CHARGED; 8 INDICTED

Tuxpam Star Oil Officers and Stock Agents Accused of Using Mails to Defraud.

FRENCH MARQUIS ITS HEAD

Indictment Supersedes One Returned a Year Ago—Calls Glittering Promises False.

The Tuxpam Star Oil Corporation and eight individuals serving as its officers or as agents engaged in selling its stock were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of using the mails to defraud investors. Prosecutors Ben A. Matthews and Jerome Simmons, who collected the facts on which the indictment is based, said that the defendants had sold the entire capital stock of the Tuxpam Company, amounting to $20,000,000, at an average of $1 a share. The victims of the defendants, they said, are scattered all over the United States.

The indictment supersedes one found in April, 1919, which named only Louis Roumagnac, said to be a French Marquis, President of the company, John R. Bryant, a director, and two selling agents, Benjamin Hurtoda Mendoza and George F. Breen. In the current indictment the name of Roumagnac reappears, together with the following persons accused of having marketed the stock: James O'Brien, Frank J. Smith and George F. Breen of the New York brokerage firm of James O'Brien & Co., and of the Boston firm of Frank J. Smith & Co.; Samuel S. Campbell and Nathaniel D. McCaffrey of S. S. Campbell & Co.; Alexander Low of Low Brothers of this city and Francis Imandt, Treasurer of the defendant company.

Glittering Promises Held Out.

The indictment says that the Tuxpam Company was incorporated in Delaware in June, 1917, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, that later it increased the capital to twenty times this amount and that the sole business of the concern was to dispose of its stock by means of various kinds of glittering advertising in newspapers and magazines, by circulars sent through the mails, by telegrams, ticker service and in other ways. Every statement made by the company and its selling agents, the indictment says, concerning property owned by the corporation and its yield of oil was false.

Among the printed statements sent to thousands of citizens were many alleging that the corporation owned large and valuable tracts of oil-producing lands in Mexico, that it controlled other tracts, that one of its many wells was yielding 1,500 barrels of oil a day and earning a net profit of $25,000 a month. It was alleged that all of the earnings were being put back into the property.

Statements also made by the defendants in their stock-selling schemes were to the effect that plans were being formulated by which the corporation would get possession of 182,723 acres of land in addition to the 18,414 acres already owned by it and that the value of the property would be more than $15,000,000.

Six Victims Named.

It was also stated that options had been obtained on other tracts worth $118,662,000 and that part of the property was situated on the Panuco River, where was located one oil well producing 50,000 barrels of oil a day. Then the indictment reads:

"Each of these representations, as the defendants well knew, were and would be false and fraudulent and the said defendants intended thereby to deceive and defraud said victims and stockholders."

Just how the defendants divided the alleged enormous sum collected has not yet been discovered. Among the victims whose names appear in the indictment are: C. M. Lounsberry, Brooklyn; James Dutilaff, Milwaukee, Wis.; E. B. Doolittle, Hazelton, Pa.; Edward F. Klinlick, Greenwich, Conn.; Warren Lander, Pembroke, Ky., and Fred C. Abbey, Monmouth, Ill.

When Roumagnac was arrested on the first indictment he was held in $10,000 bail, which he forfeited by going to France. Later he returned and surrendered himself. He made an unsuccessful effort to have the forfeiture of the bail cancelled. He is now in France. The new defendants appeared before Federal Judge Sheppard and pleaded not guilty. They were held in $3,000 bail each except Low, who was held in $7,500.

Defective Cap Saves Newspaper Plant.

CASS LAKE, Minn., Sept. 24.—An attempt to wreck the Cass Lake Times Building last night was frustrated by a defective cap on three half-pound sticks of dynamite placed against the main entrance. The dynamite was discovered this morning with the fuse burned down to the cap. The Times is a weekly newspaper, and its owners could ascribe no reason for the dynamiting attempt.

They recommended to the commission that higher liabilities be imposed.

WHEAT MARKET BREAKS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Heavy selling led to a sharp break in wheat prices today. Part of the selling appeared to be on European account and part was said to be hedging from the Southwest. Later, buying for a house with seaboard connections helped to rally the market somewhat. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1½c to 7¼c lower, with December $2.32 to $2.34¾ and March $2.20 to $2.24, weer followed by a moderate reduction from initial bottom figures.

Liberal receipts had a bearish effect on corn. After opening ⅝c to 3c lower, with December 98¼c to 98⅝c, the market scored additional losses, December and May selling at the lowest prices yet this season.

All deliveries of oats fell in sympathy with corn to a new low price level for the 1920 crop, starting unchanged to ⅝c down, with December at 57¼c to 57½c.

POSTAL BANKS EXPANSION

Millions Now Lost on Wildcat Schemes Also Would Be Safely Deposited, He Says.

Asserting that if the plan of Eugene Meyer, Jr., for expanding and improving the Postal Savings Bank system would accomplish a reduction of interest charges, even to the July, 1919, basis, it would save the States and cities $66,000,000, Clarkson Potter of the firm of W. R. Compton & Co., investment bankers, told the United States Senate Committee on Reconstruction yesterday that he concurred heartily in the Meyer suggestion. The session is one of a series being held at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street by the committee, of which Senator William M. Calder is Chairman.

Mr. Potter, who was Assistant Director of the War Loan Organization of the United States Treasury, pointed out that this country was underdeveloped in the percentage of savings depositors in comparison with other countries and believed that the number of depositors could be increased until they equal or exceed the proportion in foreign countries, where the postal savings system has reached the highest development.

"Our first and most immediate problem," said Mr. Potter, "is how best to reduce or extinguish the indebtedness represented by the Treasury certificates and next to consider ways and means of retiring at or before maturity as much of the Victory Loan as possible. It is impossible to state the amount of increased savings deposits which would come as a result of an increase in the rate of interest on Postal Savings deposits, but I feel convinced that the increase would be material. Retirement of the floating debt would do more to relieve the banking institutions of a burden which they have been carrying for many months and to stimulate the investment market than anything I can conceive."

Mr. Potter recalled that the Capital Issues Committee, after a careful study of the situation, had estimated that the minimum annual loss from investment in fraudulent enterprises and wildcat schemes was at least $500,000,000, and of this loss Mr. Potter agreed that some $200,000,000 could be saved under the Meyer plan.

"One of the most important features of such a plan," continued Mr. Potter, "is undoubtedly the encouragement of the habit of thrift. Such a habit, acquired as a result of the deposit of funds in Postal Savings Banks, undoubtedly would tend to create new investors in Government securities and other high grade investments." Mr. Potter was not fearful that savings institutions would suffer by the development of the postal savings system. During the period of the Liberty Loan campaigns there had been apprehension of the same sort, but the actual result was quite the opposite, for savings deposits as a whole increased rapidly.

Speaking of the effect of the rise in interest rates within the last year on Treasury certificates, which in turn affects the whole financial situation, Mr. Potter presented figures based upon the compilation of The Bond Buyer, a publication which specializes in matters relating to the issues of municipal bonds. He stated that the total amount of State and municipal issues in the year ended June 30, 1920, was $795,000,000, and that the average net income basis for July, 1919, was 4.91 per cent. and the average net income basis for June, 1920, was 5.52 per cent.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Ribbon Bags in Favor Again.

Ribbon bags have regained first place in the demand, outdistancing beaded types. The bags made up of jacquard satins and tapestries seem most popular, though the latest novelty in cut velvet is making very good progress. Fashion appears to favor the open top bag and those made with circular tops of celluloid. One model made of cut velvet is rather small, has a circular or lampshade top of celluloid and hangs by means of a leather thong.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

Gray goods were very quiet in this market yesterday, in addition to which there was a distinct willingness apparent on the part of sellers, both first and second hands, to respond more to buyers' ideas of what goods were worth. The latter paid 9 cents for 38½-inch 44-40s., with other print-cloth sales running as follows: 39-inch 68-72s., 15¾ cents; 38½-inch 64-60s., 14½ cents, and 28½-inch 60-48s., 12 cents. Sheetings business was limited, but among the few sales put through were 5-yard cloths at 12½ cents and 5.50s. at 11½ cents. Sateens were dull and weak.

Roman Stripes Lead Ribbons.

The chief demand of the moment in ribbons is for Roman stripes. These are wanted in varying widths. Multicolored plaids are reported to have the next call in the business passing, and following them Roman bayaderes. The latter are wanted in widths from 4 to 6 inches. The plaids are asked for in widths varying from 6 to 8 inches. Cutters-up are the principal customers at present, using ribbons for sashes and girdles. The demand for this purpose sprang up some little time back and, now that garments are shown in the stores with ribbon trimming, the retailers are also making purchases of ribbon. Prices are stated to be firm, following the news of the action taken to stabilize raw silk values by the Japanese Government.

Taking Several Bites.

The selling agent for a woolen mill frankly admitted yesterday that his opening quotations were not prices he thought he could get, but what he figured his costs and normal profit at. Since he brought out the line, he has made reductions which are more in accordance with what the trade wants. The mill agents are now questioning the policy of "taking two or three bites at the cherry." Many of them, who welcomed the slight reductions made by the leading market interest, are now looking at the matter in another light. If they had the Spring opening to do over again, quite a few would have made one instead of several price slashes. This would, they feel, have put more confidence in the trade as a whole.

Light Stocks Will Help.

Advocates of careful buying during the last six months or more appear due to have a chance to say "I told you so." With recent reductions in leading makes of cotton goods, automobiles, &c., reported so widely by the newspapers, it is said that it is going to be difficult for the "slow retreaters" among the retailers to convince their customers that prices to the consumer should not be slashed at once. While to do so would doubtless mean hardship and loss to many retailers and might not be wholly fair to them, it is possible that the public, by another strike against buying may force the reductions. In that event, it is evident that the store with the smallest stocks of high-priced goods on hand will have the least to lose.

Frequent Ordering and Styles.

Besides the advantage of quick turnovers obtained through small but frequent purchasing, there is said to be another benefit in that present common method of buying. It is that, by means of small orders, the manufacturers are induced to prepare fresh styles as a means of attracting business. At present the limitations imposed by the simplicity which fashion demands are making it rather difficult for the manufacturers to produce original designs, but even in the face of this obstacle retail buyers say that wonders are being accomplished. With a tendency in the direction of more ornate effects, it is said that a bewildering array of styles will probably be provided in the near future.

Coal Trade Conditions Better.

With a general back-to-work movement on the part of the outlaw coal strikers, Seward's Journal will say today, the local hard coal outlook is more encouraging. It will be another week, however, before receipts at tidewater show much of an increase. After nearly three weeks of idleness, the collieries required a certain amount of pumping and repair work before they were in shape to produce a normal tonnage, and this took several days. Bituminous prices have been stronger in the mining region this week and steadier at tidewater.

Prohibition Did This.

The head of a prominent shoe manufacturing concern who has recently returned to this country from abroad said yesterday that he has about perfected plans for opening a retail shoe shop in Paris in which to handle American shoes of the highest grade. One of the principal reasons for this, he said, will be to go after the trade of wealthy South Americans. These travelers, he asserted, are again appearing in Europe, particularly in Paris, in large numbers after several war years, during which they came to the United States and became accustomed to fine American shoes. Careful inquiry by the manufacturer in question brought out the fact that they no longer intend to come to this country for their purchases, largely because of prohibition, which, he said, they regard as "stupid." Consequently he is going after their trade in Paris.

Garment Deliveries Slow.

A slowing up in garment deliveries has been noticed in the local trade. A leading buyer ascribed this to the small amount of goods that was cut up and to the interference with production by the holidays in the trade. His opinion is that the former surplus, except for undesirable goods, has been pretty well cleaned up, and some difficulties may be ahead of stores that want merchandise and want it in a hurry. Any tendency to increase prices, he thought, by reason of the condition that exists will be opposed by the public announcement of lower prices and the public's expectation of getting them.

Matting Factories Closed.

Owing to a political situation which has resulted in warfare, the Lintan, China, factories making mattings and matting rugs have been closed temporarily. Notice to this effect was sent to the trade yesterday by the wholesale department of W. & J. Sloane, the information having been received by cable from the Canton office of the firm. If the war continues, the cable also states, shipments will be delayed somewhat. The notice further asserts that "while this information is very meagre, we are passing it along to you so that you will be in a position to know exactly how the matting market is at this time."

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Those of Dairy Products Were Among the Few Not Lowered.

The downward trend to commodities prices this week, as shown by Dun's list, was so marked that it would not have required many more declines to make them outnumber the advances by three to one. Epon in the foodstuffs, which have been slower to drop than many other articles, there were just short of twice as many declines as advances. The dairy products alone showed price strength. The most numerous fluctuations of the week took place in the combined markets for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, where nearly half of the changes in the general list took place.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

The feature of the local market for foodstuffs was supplied by the sharp breaks in flour. Spring patents declined 75 cents a barrel, in sympathy with the drop in wheat, and Winter straights were off 40 cents a barrel. Middle Western lard was lower here also, but bacon was higher. Hams did not change. At Chicago there were no advances. Mess pork did not change, but there were declines in all of the live meats and in short ribs as well.

In the dairy products here the best creamery butter advanced 3½ cents a pound, with the State dairy stock, common to fair, up a cent a pound. Cheese prices were unchanged. The nearby fancy eggs showed a rise of 4 cents a dozen, while the best Westerns moved up 2 cents. They now show margins of 7 and 5 cents a dozen, respectively, over the corresponding 1919 prices.

A decline in choice evaporated apples was the only change in the listed fresh or dried fruits for the week, and for the first time in a long period there were no revisions in the listed vegetables. The tea and spice lists were also unchanged, while in the coffees the only revision was a drop in No. 4 Santos. Fine granulated sugar again eased off a little, but there was no change in the best raw sugar. In the grain list, wheat, corn, oats, rye, malting barley and prime timothy hay were all cheaper, but a higher price was quoted on long rye straw.

Thirty-three revisions were the week's toll of the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils. Of these eighteen were downward. Among the features were further declines in menthol and camphor. Electrolytic copper was lower this week, but it supplied the sole change in the list for metals. In the naval stores pitch, resin and turpentine were off. Leathers contined quotably unchanged, but in the hide list declines were seen in Texas, heavy native cow and branded cow stock. There were no advances.

The paper list showed declines in news roll and in M. F. book stock. Tallow advanced. Both Eastern and Brazilian crude rubbers showed a weaker tone, and some weakness was seen in Chinese raw silk near the end of the week. Japanese silk, however, advanced somewhat.

No marked changes took place in the woolen or silk trades during the week. Burlaps were no more settled than usual of late, while in the cottons there was a further easing off in the prices of standard goods. Gray goods lost quite a little strength near the close of the week after a very promising start.

COLVER SAYS TRADE IS HALTED BY LAWS

HITS EXCESS PROFITS TAX

Calls It Penalty on Economy—Export Trade in Cotton Goods Is Urged.

MAPLEWOOD, N. H., Sept. 24.—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers at the banquet which brought to a close here tonight its two days' semi-annual meeting, listened to addresses by Dr. Charles A. Eaton of New York, associate editor of Leslie's Weekly, and William B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission. Both dwelt on general problems of business, government and taxation.

Mr. Colver described the methods used by the Federal Trade Commission and continued:

"Business is suffering under a very real hardship. It is this: Laws made to apply to business are of necessity inflexible, while business changes day by day. What is good for one industry is bad for another. What amounts to mortal sin in one industry may be actually a virtue in another. So it is that we have a body of anti-trust laws drawn to meet certain known business sins, but, in the very nature of their drawing, so inflexible as to work hardship. The multitude of decisions which have been handed down have, of necessity, created a zone of doubt through which business has to pass, and yet where each step it takes it fears a pitfall."

Opposes Repeal of the Laws.

He said it would not be wise to repeal the anti-trust laws and that it was impossible for the Federal Trade Commission to make rulings in advance.

"That leaves business in doubt," he went on, "and doubt breeds suspicion and fear and despair. Sometimes it breeds defiance of law."

He advocated the principle contained in a bill introduced in Congress by Representative Steele of Pennsylvania which would enable any concern "about to embark on any course of conduct" to come voluntarily to the Government and explain what it wanted to do, whereupon it would be given an acknowledgment of the receipt of its declaration. This would act as a bar to prosecution for [illegible] of its plans unless complaint were made by some citizen that the public interest or business institutions were being definitely injured by its course of conduct.

"I believe," he said, "that some such arrangement as that would bring to American business that flexibility and understanding of individual cases as would permit it to expand and go forward and continue the giant strides that its boundless energy indicates and that it should take."

He condemned the excess profits tax as "a penalty upon economy, upon conservative capitalization and upon quantity production," and said that while the theory of a graduated income tax was sound it had its limit, "and that limit has been more than reached." The result, he said was the turning of capital to non-taxable State and municipal bonds, with a consequent "orgy of public expenditures."

Says Public Pays Too Heavily.

"So long as taxes are collected as now, as indirectly as possible, the ultimate tax payer, which is to say the consuming public, pays not only the tax bill but the tax bill multiplied from five to ten times. Some method of taxation must be sought which will stimulate production rather than impede it, so that as supply tends to catch up with demand prices will tend to fall."

He favored applying taxation "to idleness, non-production and speculation."

Dr. Eaton, discussing methods of increasing production in industry, said that the chief cause of diminishing production was ill-will on the part of the workers.

"The great fundamental need of industry in America today," he said, "is leadership and education. The normal leader of American workingmen is the man who employs them."

He said that most industrial difficulties were due to ignorance on the part of both employer and employe, and urged education of both in the processes and problems of industry and its relations to society. He favored as a partial solution of industrial difficulties a form of strike insurance which not only would protect employers against strike losses, but would provide the machinery "for the education of both parties in industry and for the prevention of threatened strikes."

Urges Export of Cotton Goods.

The need for export trade in the cotton industry of this country was urged today by speakers at the meeting.

Daniel E. Douty of New York asserted that "America should distribute cotton goods to the world in place of raw cotton," and added that "the time has passed when the cotton manufacturers can hear with indifference the appeal of the Southern planter for a fair price which will yield him a just return." A tariff wall will protect our domestic markets, the speaker continued, but will not obtain foreign trade, and will assist in the competition in foreign markets only by taxing domestic consumers in order to sell at lower prices abroad.

Oscar K. Davis of New York, Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, said that "the cotton manufacturing industry of Europe is rapidly approaching its pre-war output, and soon America will be faced by the fiercest competition in the cotton buying markets of the world. Great Britain, Japan, Italy and Germany are devoting their best energies to securing the trade, and only a systematic campaign laid out on broad lines can successfully meet the competitive conditions that prevail in foreign markets.

"We have reached the period of industrial development in the United States where foreign trade has become distinctly and incontestably a matter of national service. We shall not enjoy stable conditions at home, we shall not maintain domestic prosperity unless we maintain our foreign trade."

The foreign exchange situation was discussed by Dr. B. Anderson, Jr., of New York. He said that continued violent fluctuations in the exchange rates were inevitable because of the abandonment of the gold standard in Europe. The speaker pointed out methods by which exporters and importers could avoid these risks.

FINED WITH DAUGHTERS.

Two Women in Court for Shoplifting—Men Go to Workhouse.

Two mothers and a daughter of each were among five women arraigned before Justices Herrman, Salmon and O'Keefe in Special Sessions yesterday on charges of shoplifting made by agents of the Stores Mutual Protective Association, at R. H. Macy & Co., Mrs. Marianna Torres, and her daughter, Amparo, 21, of 114 West Eightieth Street, were each fined $100 for the theft of merchandise valued at $16. Mrs. Pauline Pribio, who said she lived at Danbury, Conn., was fined $50, on her plea of guilty to taking merchandise valued at $14.42. Her daughter, Marian, was released on a suspended sentence. The fines were paid.

Frank and Joseph Carter, brothers, aged 21 and 24, of 25 South Street, were sentenced to the workhouse for four months for stealing four pair of gloves and a belt, all valued at $10.20. Anna Wilson, who said she lived at 379 West Twenty-third Street, went to the workhouse for three months for stealing a $10 coat from the National Outlet Company in West Twenty-fourth Street.

SAY ENGLISH FIRMS WANT COAL STRIKE

Business Men Here on Celtic Assert Plants Then Will Be Closed in Fight on Labor.

Business men who arrived yesterday from England on the White Star liner Celtic expressed their opinion that the coal miners would finally decide not to go on strike, because they know that the manufacturers and mill owners want them to do so. The big corporations want their plants shut down and to fight the struggle between capital and labor to a finish.

Under the existing conditions, the passengers pointed out, British manufacturers cannot accept contracts from foreign countries because they do not know what the coal situation is going to be. The shipping companies are handicapped in the same way, and they intend to take advantage of the slump in the freight business to lay up a number of vessels. Passengers of the Celtic who were well acquainted with the conditions in Liverpool said that several of the largest Atlantic liners would be laid up after the western passenger rush is over in November, because it will not pay to operate them. If the coal strike does take place they think it quite probable that the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board will close the Port of Liverpool.

Among the cabin passengers on board was Mrs. S. Parkes Cadman, wife of the pastor of the Central Congregational Church in Brooklyn, who was accompanied by her two daughters. She said that Dr. Cadman had stopped in England to deliver the address on Sept. 27 in Southampton at the unveiling of a memorial commemorating the departure of the Pilgrims from that port 300 years ago.

T. Laughton Blood, who is an American brother-in-law of Harold Sanderson, Chairman of the International Mercantile Marine Company, was down on the passenger list with the prefix "Sir" in front of his name, indicating that he had been knighted. He laughed when questioned by the reporters about the honor conferred upon him by King George and replied that it was probably a joke of some of his relatives in England.

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, a former leader of the militant suffragettes in England, arrived on the Celtic to make a tour of the United States to appeal to women voters. Mrs. Lawrence will tell of the conditions of women and children in war-racked Europe and urge American women to unite and to use their vote in a vigorous campaign for disarmament and for a lasting peace. She was met at the pier by Fran Velia Hertzka, an Austrian suffragist who arrived last week from Vienna and will lecture on the same platform with Mrs. Lawrence.

To resume the second course of six months lectures at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Sir Arthur Newsholme, K. C. B., arrived with Lady Newsholme. Sir Arthur finished one series of lectures a year ago and said this year he would point out the lessons of the war in sanitation and hygiene and the use of new remedies.

The Celtic brought 225 first, 290 second and 1,439 third class passengers from Liverpool and Queenstown. Of the latter class 400 were citizens and were released at the pier, and the remainder were held on board.

BARES MILKMEN'S $150,000.

Faction of Drivers' Union Seeks to Tie Up Big Fund.

Statements that the Milk Wagon Drivers' Local Union No. 584, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, had a bank-deposit of $150,000 were made in the Supreme Court yesterday in an injunction suit to tie up the funds pending a suit to determine the validity of the election of officers at a special meeting on March 22 last.

The petition of the persons who allege that they are the legal officers of the union states that on March 11 last charges were made against four members of the union and a committee was appointed to hear them. It is alleged that on the night the committee was to report the four members, acting with their friends, got possession of the assembly room, prevented the report of the committee from being heard, and deposed Michael J. Cashal as President, Max J. Scharf as Secretary-Treasurer, and George Whelan as Recording Secretary. It is alleged that at a regular meeting of the union on May 8 the action at the meeting of March 22 was repudiated, but the opposition remained in possession of the books and funds of the union and committed assaults upon other members.

'BABE' RUTH TO AID CHURCH.

"Babe" Ruth, the home run king, will appear at a carnival to be held tonight in the Jackson Heights Casino, at Elmhurst, L. I., for the purpose of raising money to pay for the Roman Catholic Church of Joan of Arc at the apartment colony there. He will autograph baseballs to be sold at auction by him and by the Rev. Ward G. Meehan, pastor of the church, and he will give a closeup demonstration of how he holds the bat "when he knocks them over the fence." Ruth will be accompanied to the carnival by the boys' band of St. Mary's Industrial Home at Baltimore.

It was the Joan of Arc parish that bought a sectional church at a lumber mill in the West, and then spent months chasing elusive sections of the edifice along various railroads between New York and Chicago. First, the roof arrived at Elmhurst, then the side wall sections, and finally the foundation timbers, so that the first work was done with the last piece to arrive. The work of erection is almost completed, and Father Meehan is holding the carnival to pay for it.

CHEMISTS OPEN WAR ON GERMAN GOODS

BUSINESS TRICKERY BARED

No German firm, nor any American firm with German affiliations, will be permitted to have exhibits in the Seventh Annual Exposition of the Chemical Industries, to be held in September, 1921, in the Eighth Coast Defense Command Armory at Jerome Avenue and Kingsbridge Road, the Bronx, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. Charles H. Herty, President of the American Chemical Society and Chairman of the Advisory Board of the exposition.

Dr. Herty pointed to the all-American chemical show which closes its exhibition in Grand Central Palace today as ample proof that there is enough chemical genius in this country without giving Germany another opportunity to build up another espionage system here through her dyestuffs and other chemical industries. He said there was ample evidence that German chemists and manufacturers already were at work deriding American products, particularly dyestuffs, with the idea that a gullible buying public might be made to provide a "dumping ground" for German products.

It is the belief of the members of the Advisory Board of the Chemical Exposition that the Germans, while working covertly at their program of tearing down the reputation of American products, would make their first public bid for American chemical markets by thrusting in a large number of exhibits at the Chemical Exposition and other public shows.

American Called "Gullible."

In making the announcement Dr. Herty called attention to a book written by S. Herzog, a German consulting engineer, for private circulation among German chemists and manufacturers, in which plans were outlined for a surreptitious drive for the recovery of world markets in the chemistry field. Herr Herzog pointed out that one of the most fruitful fields would be "gullible America."

A copy of Herr Herzog's book, entitled "The Future of German Industrial Exports," was obtained by the United States Food Administration and annotated copies were struck off in this country for circulation among chemists and manufacturers. A preface to the American translation was written by Herbert Hoover, Vernon Kellogg and Frederic C. Walcott, and it was there might be no misreading of the meaning of each chapter the translator provided abundant notes of them.

"This book was obviously written exclusively for home consumption and not intended for those outside the Iron Circle," said the preface. "It should be a warning to us. We should study it with care and keep our eyes and ears alert for other warnings of the sort."

Dr. Herty pointed out some of the extracts in the book to prove his contention that the Germans had resolved to take advantage of every subterfuge to regain their trade, and that they had not forgotten the lesson given them by their master forger, Bismarck.

Excerpts from German Book.

Speaking of covering up the origin of German goods in the hope of fooling foreign trade Herr Herzog writes:

"The German makeup is to be avoided wherever at all feasible out of regard for the rehabilitation of trade with formerly hostile countries. The German garb of manufactured articles must be put away. The most difficult of our obstacles to overcome are those through which the German character of export product is visibly and immediately recognized by foreigners in general.

"The makeup (of goods) must for the present adapt itself exclusively to the taste of the customer, even if a thorough-going change in the manufacturing process is involved."

The American Chemical Society is to combat the propaganda wherever it raises its head and will challenge the products even after the "Made in Germany" mark is taken off.

On the ground that the firm had no contract for space in the chemical exposition but was sharing space with another firm that did have a contract for an exhibitor's booth, Dr. Herty and the Advisory Board yesterday asked a company in the exposition to withdraw its exhibit. They said that some complaints had been made to the board that the firm was selling German chemical products, but this charge was denied by the officers of the company. They consented to withdraw their exhibit.

Jones is confined to a hospital as the result of his long exposure, but made the identification by telegraph after receiving a description of the body.

CROISIC BUILDING IN ANOTHER DEAL

BIG PROFIT FOR SELLER

Profit-making possibilities in transactions involving Fifth Avenue were evidenced yesterday in the resale of another tall office structure in the Madison Square section.

The Knickerbocker Realty Company sold, at a big advance, the twenty-story Croisic Building, at the northwest corner of Twenty-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue, to an operator, who in turn is said to have a deal well advanced for its resale to a large downtown corporation, which intends to take it over for occupancy. Tankoos, Smith & Co. negotiated the transaction.

The Croisic Building was purchased three weeks ago by the Knickerbocker Realty Company from the Terra Realty Company at a price said to involve $2,150,000.

The building has a frontage of 56.6 feet on the avenue and 127.6 feet on the street. L. & M. Jones erected the building about fifteen years ago. Among the prominent tenants are Dennison & Co., who occupy the store and basement; the Mississippi Wire and Glass Company, the American Lead Pencil Company, Stetson & Co., &c. A large portion of the space expires within the near future, and it is understood that when the resale is made the new owner will occupy the building as a permanent home and gradually absorb the office space as it expires.

Biscuit Company Adds to Realty.

The National Biscuit Company, steadily adding to his holdings in the block bounded by Ninth and Tenth Avenues, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets, where its plant is located, has purchased for $200,000 from Anna P. McCullagh and others the old six-story McMullen warehouse, at 410 to 416 West Sixteenth Street, on a plot 100.4 by 117.4 by irregular, located 123 feet west of Ninth Avenue.

With this purchase the company is now in possession of the entire block with the exception of the six-story saloon property at the southwest corner of Ninth Avenue and Sixteenth Street, 25 by 100, and the adjoining three-story twenty-five foot garage at 408 West Sixteenth Street. A couple of years ago the company brought most of the block from the Bradish Johnson estate, from which it had leased the property. Subsequently it added a few parcels on Ninth Avenue to its holdings.

Other Business Building Deals.

Arthur Cutler & Co. sold 516 Eighth Avenue and 270 and 272 West Thirty-sixth Street, forming the southeast corner, a five-story store and business building, 25 by 100, to the 516 Eighth Avenue Corporation. This is the third sale of the property within the past two months by these brokers. The property was held at $125,000.

Spear & Co. sold for the estate of Herman Levy the six-story mercantile building, 25 by 92, at 35 West Nineteenth Street, to a client for investment.

Coster Homestead Resold.

Joseph P. Day resold the old Coster homestead, together with a plot of eighty-six lots, which comprises the two blocks square, bounded by Edison Ave, Barkley Avenue, Hollywood Avenue and Otis Avenue, for William A. Cokeley, representing a client, to Dr. Herman Schwartz. The seller acquired the property last Thursday at the Coster Estate Auction Sale, conducted by Mr. Day, in the Exchange Salesroom, paying $43,500 for the residence and lots. The resale was made at a substantial profit. In addition to the homestead, the sale included a one-story frame barn, a one-story stone garage and several outbuildings.

Staten Island.

Edmund Schaefer purchased from Mrs. Martha J. Kenworthy, through the Cornell Real Estate and Auction Company, Incorporated, a large tract of land on Ward Avenue, Grand View Park, opposite the residence of Lewis Nixon. Mr. Schaefer will lay the grounds ou in parklike effect and will erect two semi-bungalows, one for his daughter, the other for his son.

Fewer Rooms Save Housekeeping Cares

People of the right taste (and sound judgment) have sought their ideal in new houses, and usually failed to find it. They have said:

"We want the best neighborhood—

"We want a sound land investment—

"We must be near our work and pleasures—

"We WILL NOT take shoddy

"second rate or even averagely good planning and construction. Because we know the only way to make our investment profitable hereafter is to own a home that will be permanently desirable; and will fully remunerate us for all the little touches of landscaping, gardening and the items of house adornment inspired by ownership. "We can't find that house!"—

Kew Gardens has it now

Ready to move in this week. The new six room houses are architecturally without a peer around New York. Every detail is of the best—no expense has been spared because demands this policy. In twenty to forty years, they will be pointed to as models of their kind.

Solid, Permanent Investment Value

We did not build many. Don't be one of those who will come back a little later and wish they had secured one.

3 CASES, 1 DEATH, OF PARALYSIS HERE

GIRL FATALLY STRICKEN

Situation in This City One to Cause Worry, but No Alarm, Says Commissioner.

Anterior poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, has made its reappearance in this city. Three cases and one death from the disease were reported yesterday to Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland. This follows within two weeks of the warning sent by Dr. Copeland to every physician in this city to be on the lookout for the disease, which is now prevalent in Boston. In that city, it is reported, there were between two and three hundred cases this month. The disease has also appeared up-State.

Yesterday's report is unusual, for there have been only forty-eight cases of the disease and eight deaths in this city since January 1. The Commissioner said that the disease was one that figured occasionally in the records, and that while the present situation was one to cause worry it was not one to cause alarm.

Faith E. Schmohl, the thirteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schmohl, Jr., of 59 Hamilton Avenue, New Brighton, S. I., died in New York Hospital at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

Until Wednesday the child appeared to be in the best of health. She had attended the Staten Island Academy last year and was about to commence another year. On Wednesday morning she answered the postman's whistle. She closed the door and went into the dining room. Her mother asked her about the mail and she was unable to answer her. Her throat muscles seemed paralyzed and the power of speech was temporarily lost.

Dr. Charles Pearson, who was called in, suspected the nature of the disease and advised that a specialist be consulted. Paroxysms of coughing set in and these were followed by periods of coma. The child was removed to New York Hospital.

"This is a time for extreme carefulness," said Commissioner Copeland. "Although infantile paralysis has made its appearance in Boston and there have been a few cases up-State, the condition in this city has been about normal when compared to other years, with the exception of 1916, when the disease was epidemic here. Infantile paralysis is an infectious disease and handling it is a doubtful matter for we do not know just how it is conveyed.

"All suspicious cases should be at once reported to the Health Department, and if it is desired laboratory examinations will be made of the spinal fluid so that efforts to check the infection can be made at once."

In his warning to the doctors Dr. Copeland said:

"In view of the fact that the diagnosis of a typical abortive or even of typical cases of acute anterior poliomyelitis is difficult during periods when the disease is of infrequent occurrence, it is thought desirable to inform all physicians practicing in the City of New York to be alert to the occurrence of cases of this disease in their private or institutional practice.

"The non-paralytic or abortive type of the disease should particularly be kept in mind. Also, one should view with suspicion the following combinations of early symptoms: Fever, vomiting, slight diarrhoea, listlessness, unusual fretfulness or drowsiness. Likewise one should watch for the later symptoms of weakness in any extremity, skin and muscular sensitiveness, spinal pain, especially on flexion, apparent or real rigidity of the neck muscles, Kernig's and MacEwen's signs."

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—Ninety-four cases of infantile paralysis were reported in Massachusetts in August and 134 so far this month. Boston had forty-four cases in August and forty-seven this month.

WOMAN LEAPS FROM HOTEL.

Son Witnesses Suicide — Mother Grieved Over Husband's Death.

Mrs. Rosie Blick, widow of S. Blick, formerly a commission merchant of 346 Greenwich Street, ended her life yesterday by jumping from a window on the fifth floor of the Hotel Hamilton, West Seventy-third Street, where she had an apartment. She died before her son, who saw her leap, could reach her side.

Mrs. Blick had been despondent since the death of her husband last May, it was said. Her son, William Blick, learned Thursday that his mother contemplated suicide and kept a close watch on her during the night and yesterday. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Blick walked out of the apartment into the hallway. Her son followed her, but she had disappeared. He then went to the front of the building, and was just in time to see his mother leap. Her body just missed hitting the canopy over the hotel's entrance.

Justice Townsend Scudder, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, yesterday dismissed a demurrer filed by the John Wanamaker department store in the suit of Frederick L. Ryon of Flushing, L. I., to set aside transfers of securities made to the store in payment of a debt of $16,000 contracted by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Ryon. Mrs. Ryon, who is now in California, is alleged to have left her husband last January, less than a year after their marriage. Later, Ryon alleges, he discovered that she had contracted several large bills. He alleged in his suit that the department store represented to him that he was responsible for his wife's debts when he really was not.

The store demurred to the complaint, asserting that Ryon had not stated a cause of action. Justice Scudder ruled that the complaint was good, inasmuch as Ryon alleged fraud. The store was allowed time in which to file an answer. Mr. Ryon is the son of Augustus M. Ryon of Flushing, President of the Point o' Woods Association.

How Will Labor Vote?

Labor is torn by conflicting feelings as it prepares to vote in the approaching Presidential election, if we may judge by the papers that claim to speak for it. It is told by Mr. Gompers that Cox is labor's true friend; it is told by Republican leaders that Harding's election will mean prosperity and the "full dinner-pail," and is assured by more radical advisers that Debs or Christensen is the only true apostle of freedom. Any one who can poll all or even a large part of the labor vote would, of course, win hands down, but how the worker will vote after all this contrary advice nobody seems to know. No one, at least, is predicting the election of Christensen or Debs, so the choice narrows down to the two journalists from Ohio. An interesting omission is the absence of any appeal to the workers to vote for this or that candidate to restore the workman's beer.

Telegrams sent by THE LITERARY DIGEST to the Labor press, for light on the probable complexion of labor's vote this year, brings replies that give an impression of cross currents and confusion. However, at this stage of the campaign, it is undoubtedly the only line that the public can get upon the probable attitude of organized labor in the coming election.

The leading article in THE DIGEST this week, September 25th, presents the subject in an interesting and comprehensive form. It will be read with interest by hundreds of thousands of men and women.
